I believe that building an atmosphere of caring and potential will be beneficial to the future students...

It is a well-rounded plan of improvement. These structures will benefit all students.

- Rita Whatley, Principal

Adjusting to new sights and sounds is a feat many students had to overcome during the numerous changes that took place this school year. Modifications, advances, and completely new additions arose all around us from the beginning of the year to the end. Views from our classroom windows included mounds of dirt, bulldozers, construction workers, and rubble. Over the loud humming of the trucks, we tried to make out the assignments screamed by our teachers, who were trying to be heard. A two-story academic wing was being built to accommodate the growing number of students, and across the campus a new fine arts building was being built. The school's appearance was not the only one to be altered. Our clothing styles had to be modified in order to fit Kennedale's first ever standardized dress code. Even with this dramatic change, our spirits remained unbroken and we continued to show our unique personalities through our dress. Learning to deal with new teachers was a must because around every newly painted corner we saw someone we had never seen before. The faculty underwent a significant transformation, with one-fourth of all staff new to Kennedale. Even with a number of new teachers, not all changes were new. Faculty switched subjects, became substitutes, or moved into the principal's big office. Innovations were all around, from inside the school to out on the athletic fields. Numerous changes were made to the athletic department including a realignment of districts, which brought the challenge and excitement of new opponents, and an expansion of the stadium which allowed more fans to see their favorite Wildcat teams play. All of this progress towards a better school community has put us through a complete change of environment; a complete metamorphosis.

[evolving TRADITIONS

“ Kennedale provides a family atmosphere. We are a small community that takes care of each other. We have each other's backs and we work as one. ”

- Sam Craig, senior

From our dancing mascot to the band marching down the hallways on Homecoming, traditions are all around us. They make each student or faculty member recognizably a Wildcat. While we support our school by attending games, competitions, and pep rallies, our traditions and Wildcat pride stay close to our hearts. This year, however, our routine way of life was disrupted. We acquired a construction site and a new standardized dress code, which together brought changes to our traditional way of life. Due to the construction, our usual walks around the school had to be rerouted. Our lessons were often interrupted by yellow hard hats bobbing outside, or the booming sound of concrete being crushed. The school's makeover coincided with an appearance change of our own. The standardized dress code came into play this year, removing pictures of hoodies, t-shirts, and jeans out of the way and replacing them with polos, khakis, and closed toeshoes. Despite the drastic changes, our school spirit shone, especially on spirit Fridays when we wore KHS t-shirts and jeans. Even though many traditions are school-oriented, tradition is more than just the school life. It is the time we share together outside the school walls, making memories that will last a lifetime. We work jobs to save money or splurge it, spend time at home with family, go shopping, and just hang out with friends. These friends and adventures that take place in high school are the parts of who we are in the future.

magical MEMORIES

Students, alumni, and fans unite for Homecoming]

Tradition was kept alive this year during Homecoming. Homecoming has been around since the earliest of high school days, and remains one of the school's finest traditions and events. Students, teachers, and other faculty members got into the Wildcat spirit all week long during the festivities which included playing dress up on designated days and decorating the four hallways Thursday night for the class contest. Friday came with high hopes and excited spirits as we awaited the game of the year while enjoying the usual Homecoming day sights and sounds of mums and garters. Friday night the stands were packed with screaming fans waiting for the game and the halftime presentation of the homecoming court. Student council members had worked furiously for weeks to get the halftime ceremony up and running. They put on a spectacular show filled with flowers, crowns, and a red carpet walkway. The band filled the back center of the field, playing a salute to the Homecoming court as they walked through the colorguard's flags.

The king and queen were announced after all the couples walked the red carpet. Last year's king Cody West, and queen Belinda Cook crowned this year's couple Andrew Bruffy and Amanda McKissick. The experience was one the court would never forget. The Homecoming moments weren't just for the court, however. All ages of fans showed up to remember their high school days, enjoy their present ones, or to look forward to them. These Homecoming moments will be a special memory for years to come.

Arm in arm, the varsity captains lead their team on to the field ready to take on Hillsboro. Senior Ben Richardson earned the honorary title of captain for this special game and successfully led the team to a shutout victory. "The homecoming game is one of the most important games all year," said Richardson.

With the Homecoming banner proudly displayed, the cheerleaders anxiously await the run-through of the football team. As the team tore through the banner, the band played the fight song and the crowd cheered. This long-standing tradition pumped up the team, the cheerleaders, and the fans.

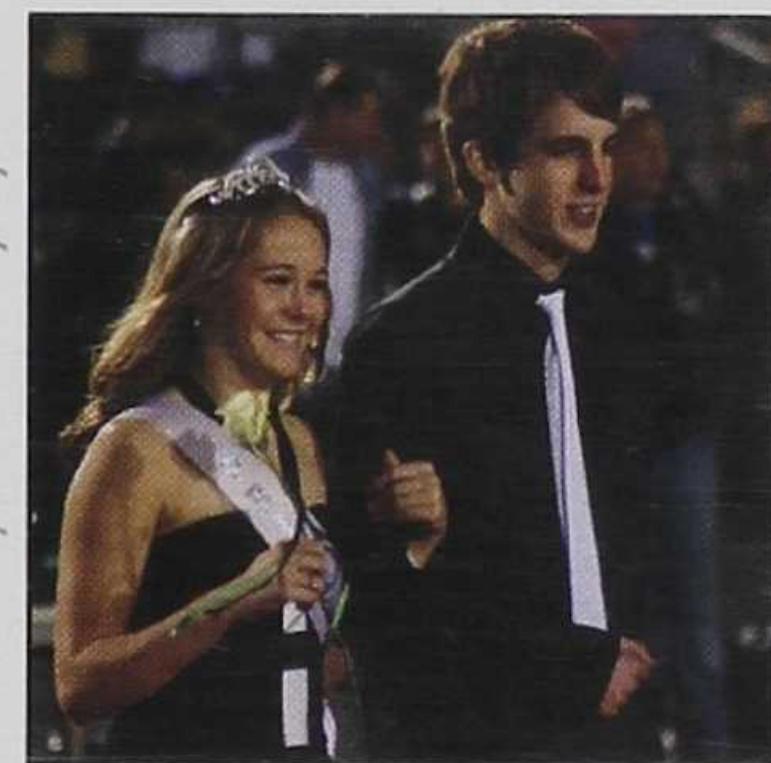

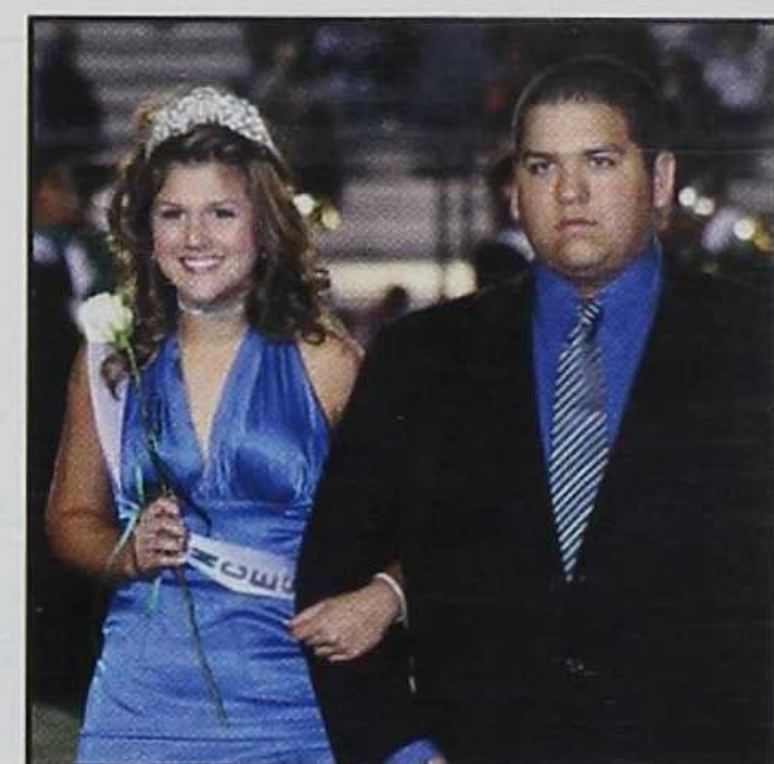

As bright as the stars in the sky, Andrew Bruffy glances at his girlfriend Amanda McKissick as they are crowned the 2007 Homecoming King and Queen. The couple was excited to receive this honor together. "I'm glad I got nominated with my boyfriend," happily remarked McKissick.

Walking through the waving flags, Brittany McPartlin and Max Moore receive the attention of the crowd as part of the Homecoming court. Homecoming was an especially important event for many students, especially the court. McPartlin added, "It was special because this is something I know I'll remember for the rest of my life."

Energizing the crowd, Willie the Wildcat shows off his school spirit during the Homecoming game by dancing on the sidelines. Willie, performed by senior Samantha Craig, went to every football game with his escorts juniors Amanda Mantooth and Mandy Seremet. "My escorts are a very important part in being mascot," said Craig.

"My favorite part of the pep rally is when the football captains introduce their teammates and invite everyone to come down and watch the game."

Pumped up and too excited for "inside voices," Wildcats cheered and yelled for the support of the Wildcat teams, as well as their own class during the battle cries. The band played various tunes, the cheerleaders cheered their hearts out, the Aristokats danced the rally away, and the sports captains invited everyone to attend their games during every much anticipated pep rally. Pep rallies themselves were a memorable tradition well upheld, but no pep rally would ever be the same without the important battle cry competition between the classes. Students, as well as faculty members, came together with loud voices and high hopes to stop the other classes from winning the coveted battle. Showing spirit wasn't scheduled for only Friday pep rallies, but other days as well,

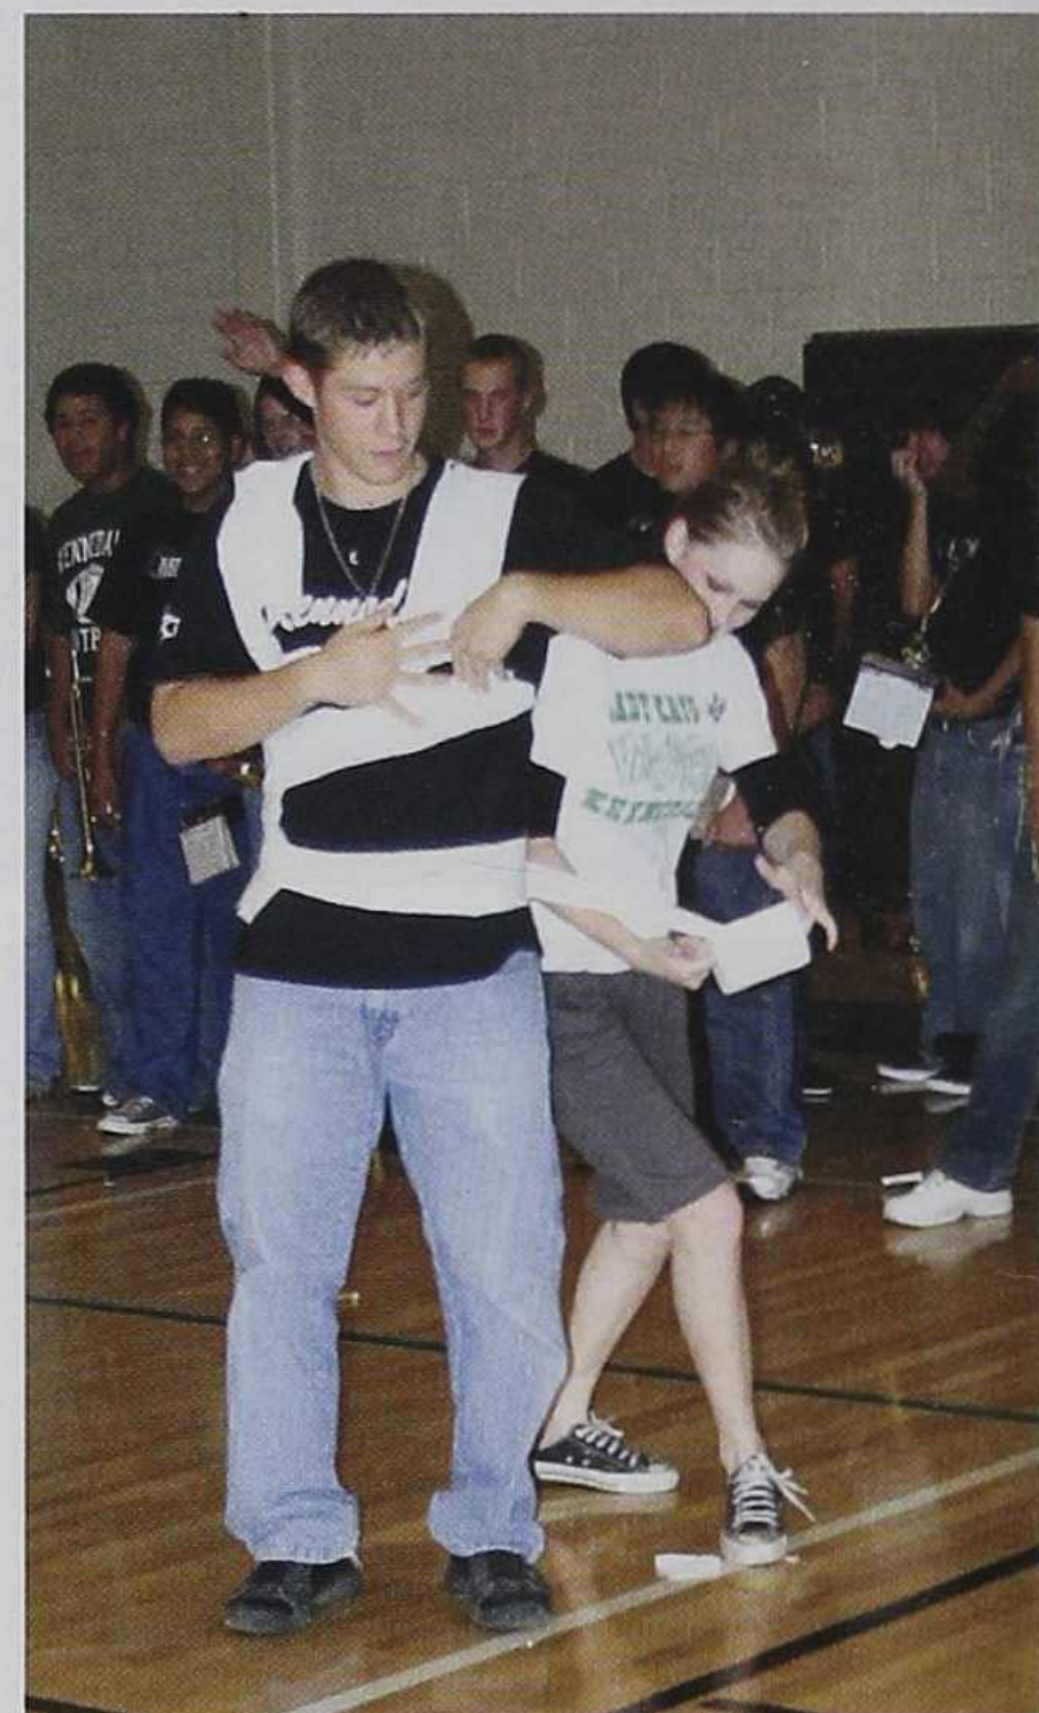

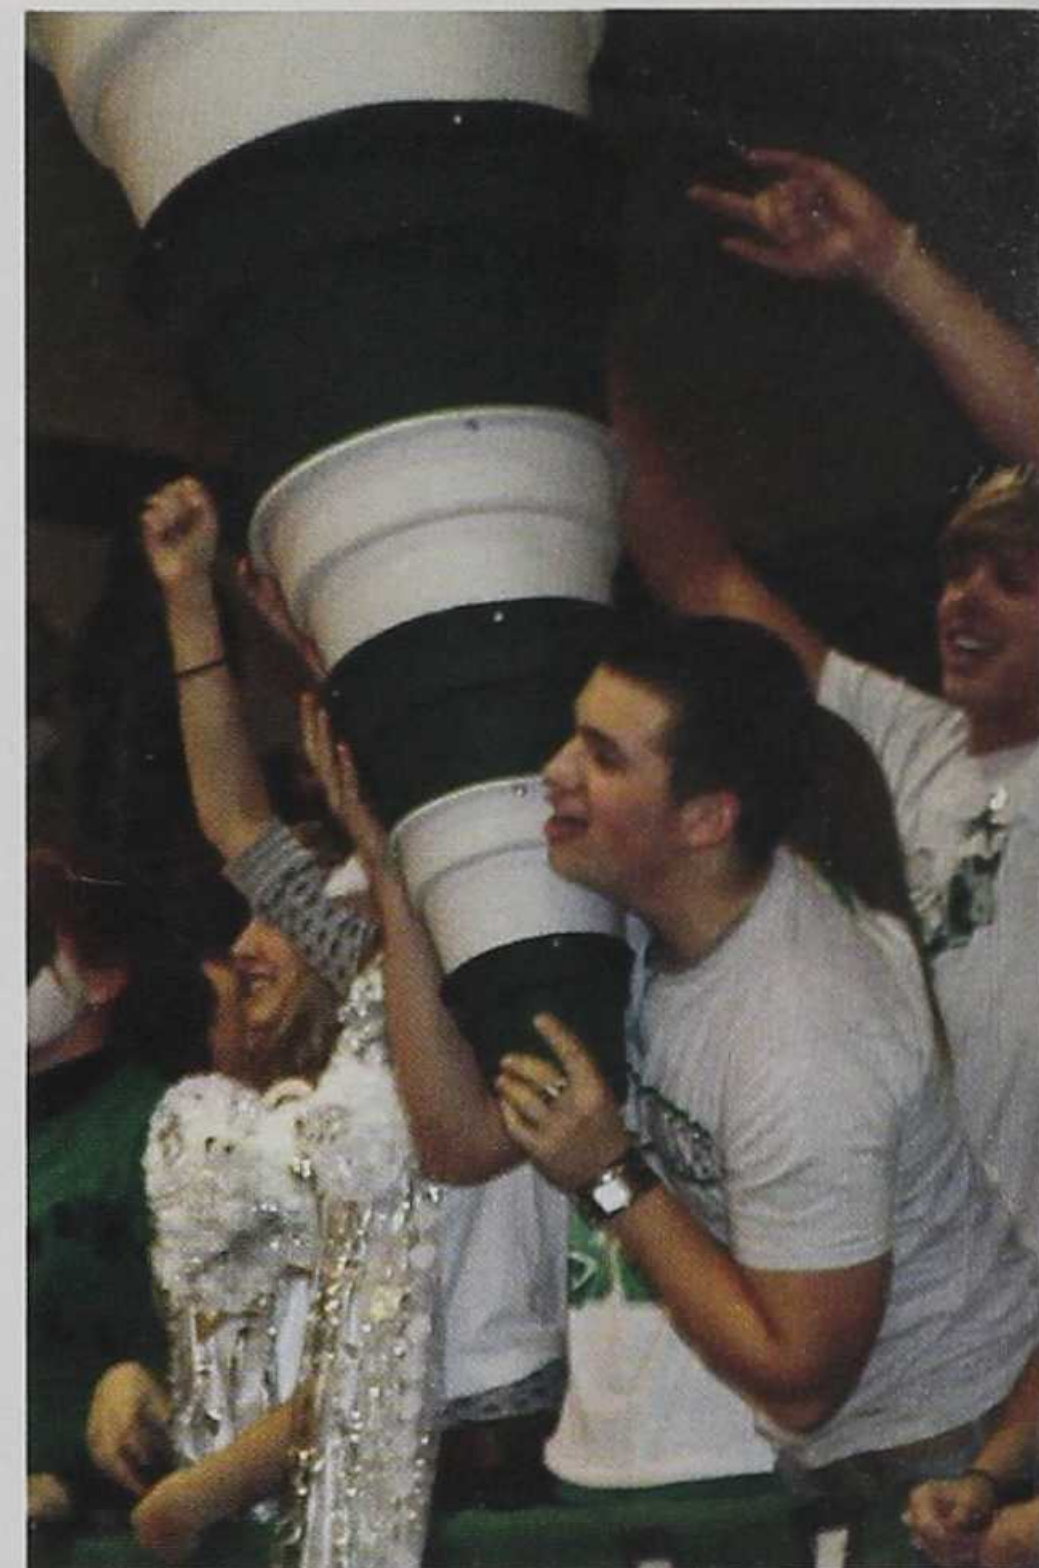

With his gigantic megaphone and outrageous school spirit, senior Chris Reynolds raises his voice at the homecoming pep rally. Reynolds was up front for most pep rallies and was a major help to the seniors with their spirited cheers. "It's sad because I'm going to miss my megaphone days, but I'm glad to be graduating this year," commented Reynolds.

Getting red in the face, senior Travis Ford yells intensely into the microphone while competing with his class in the battle cry competition. Which ever class showed the most spirit was rewarded the spirit stick and received the all-important bragging rights. The battle cry was one of the many activities that made pep rallies special, and gave graduating seniors an amazing memory that they will be able to take with them.

especially during Homecoming week. During Homecoming week, students joined in the festivities designed to let them show off school spirit and the fun side of their personalities as well. Each day of the week students were allowed to add extras to the dress code in order to fit into the dress up day. Dressing up in fun clothing and adding accessories has been a tradition most students look forward to with great excitement. Every Thursday during Homecoming, several students stay after school and led to spectacular sights. This year the juniors took home the prize for their first hallway win, with the theme "Life is a Game." Whether or not they won the battle cry or the hall decorations, students will never forget the time spent cheering at pep rallies and getting pumped for the next big event.

All tangled up, juniors Ryan Watson and Brittany Sims represent the junior class while competing against the other classes in a game at one of the pep rallies. Watson was pulled down the basketball court on a blanket and then wrapped in a roll of toilet paper by Sims. The game was fun and exciting but also a struggle for some; Watson explained, "The toilet paper kept breaking so it was frustrating."

Decked out in 80's fashion, underclassmen Burgandi Johnston, Stacia Newton, and Meaghan McMeans show off their bodacious spirit during Homecoming week. The long-standing tradition of dressing up was something special to look forward to for Newton as well as other students, "I like dressing up during Homecoming week because we don't have to be in dress code and it's a fun way to show school spirit."

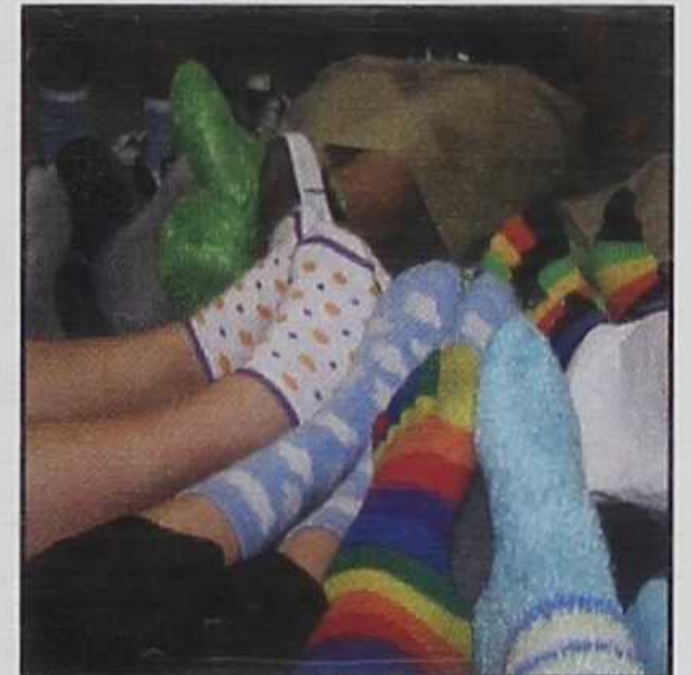

Covered in paint, juniors David Heeps, Cory Boone, Matt Linguist, and sophomore Ryan Pugh, show off their crazy spirit by painting their faces and chests at one of the home football games. The boys arrived at every game painted in school colors ready to cheer for another victory of the Kennedale Wildcats. Heeps said, "It's a fun way to be spirited with my buddies."

Skylar Stone (12th)

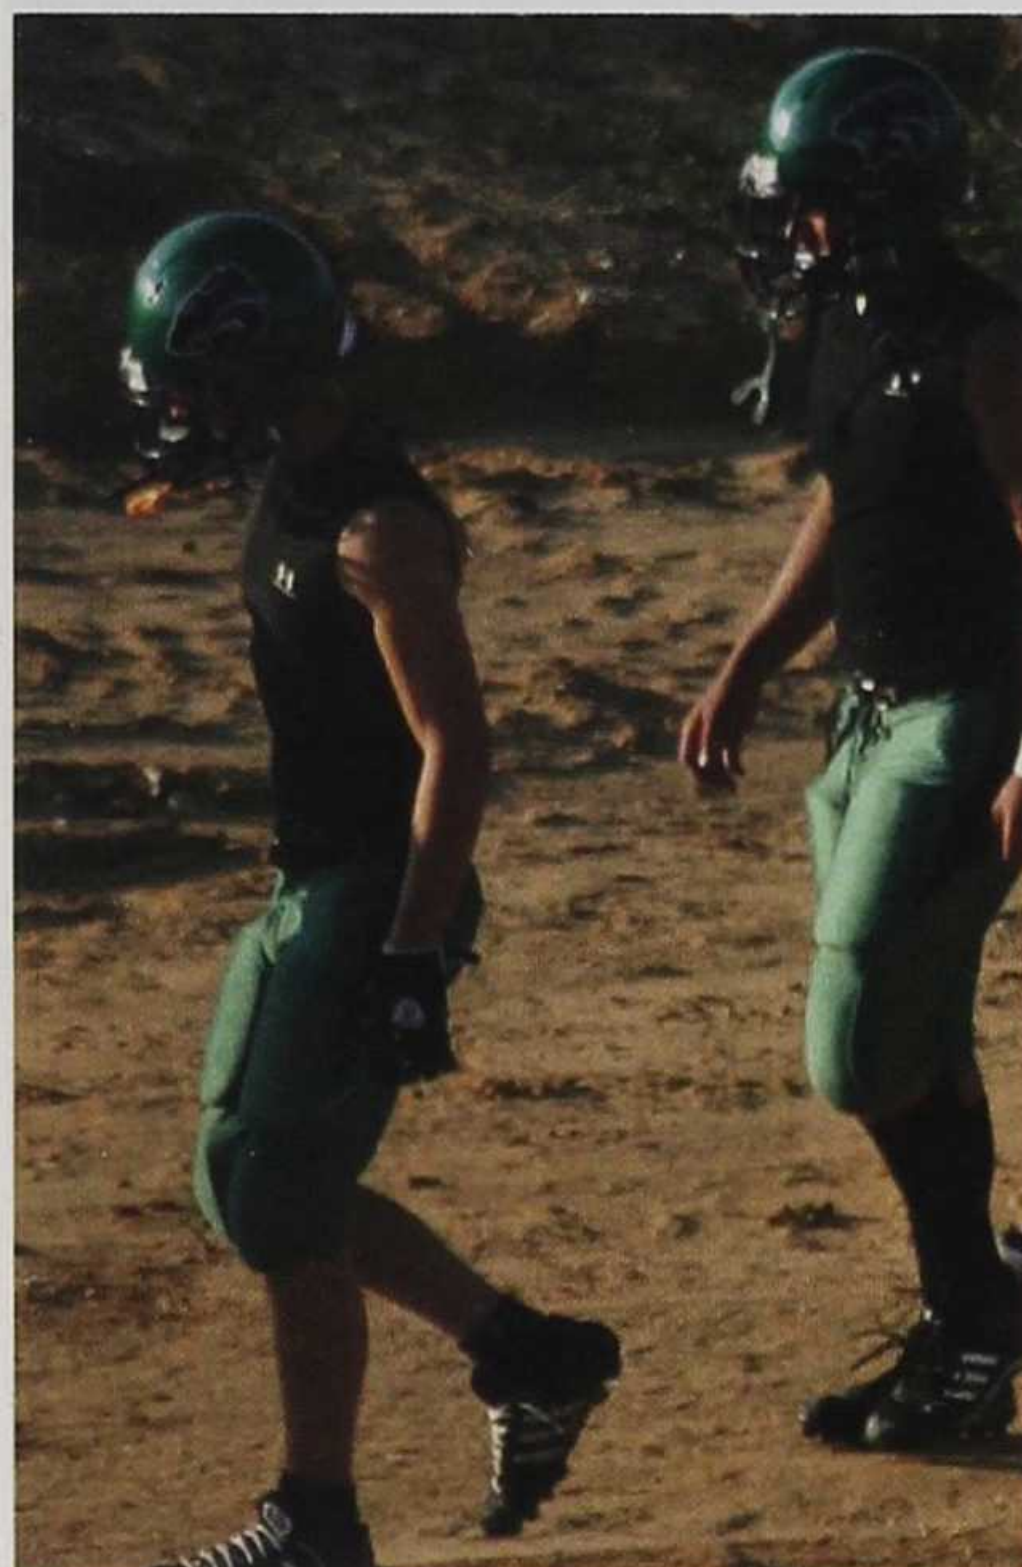

A common site on campus, a construction worker pauses to adjust his tractor. Tractors and bulldozers were used to demolish previous land structures and build the foundation for what was to become our brand new two-story academic wing. This new building will make space for 18 new classrooms to house our growing student population.

Heading to the field house, Raphael Brooks ducks underneath the partially opened garage door. Due to the construction, many of the side doors were closed off and the garage door was the only quick way to the athletic facilities. "It's quicker than having to walk around the whole school," said Brooks, a junior on the varsity football team.

Trying hard to concentrate while construction takes place just inches from the classroom window, sophomore Lauren Mleczo does her best to ignore it. "It's annoying, but I've learned to tune it out and now I even forget about it sometimes," said Mleczo. Much of the construction took place alongside many classrooms, causing numerous disruptions during class.

[copingwith CONSTRUCTION

Students adapt to the changing environment]

The school underwent major construction and with that change came trucks, construction workers, hammers, and hard hats. From temporary doors to boarded up holes, students had to keep up with their daily routines now including tuning out the sound of constant hammering and beeping. On dealing with the everyday commotion the construction brought, Mrs. Thacker said, "On most days it isn't too bad, but when the classroom starts to vibrate, it becomes difficult to concentrate." Senior AP English teacher, Ms. Brooke, jokingly said, "What? WHAT? I'm sorry, I can't hear you over the construction. Oh, what do I think of it? Well, it's not too bad if you enjoy reshelving all your books!" Students in Art class also had a hard time concentrating on completing their assignments. "The desks and tables shake, which make it extremely difficult to draw a straight line," said junior Mandy Seremet. Over time, students grew used to the noise and learned to ignore it, but at first it always created a few moments of laughter that became a welcomed break during the days learning.

When the dust had settled and the cement dried, our school will be host to a brand new indoor practice facility, field house, fine arts center, two-story academic wing, and numerous stadium additions. These additions will benefit our school by including more rooms for programs and additional space for halls. The fine arts building will allow those in our school district's fine arts to have a venue in which to practice and perform. All in all, the construction was only a small token we paid for the numerous rewards we will reap.

With the addition of the new academic wing, construction materials occupy portions of the parking lot. Many of the faculty parking spots were lost to the construction and caused the parking lot to fill up quickly in the mornings. Students were also forced to enter the 300 hallway and walk between faculty cars. "I choose to park in the front row now because all of the traffic next to my car has formed small dents," stated Mrs. Sherri Wade.

Walking through the muddy fields, football players collect dirt before practice even begins. "Your cleats get muddy and then you have to beat them on the concrete to clean them off. There are also loud noises and funny smells all during practice," said senior football player Aaron LeBruce.

- > Cafeteria will have a third serving line

Pros

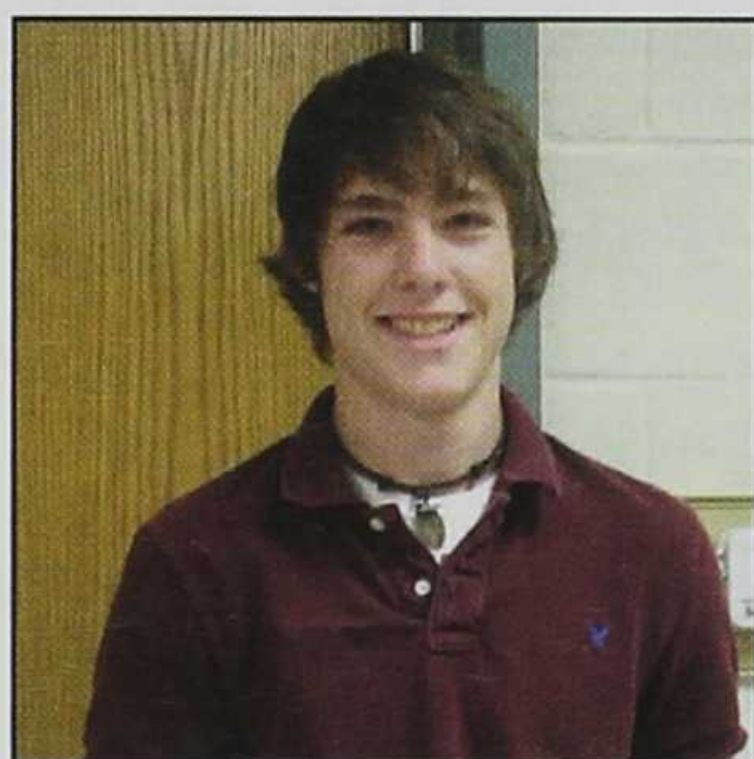

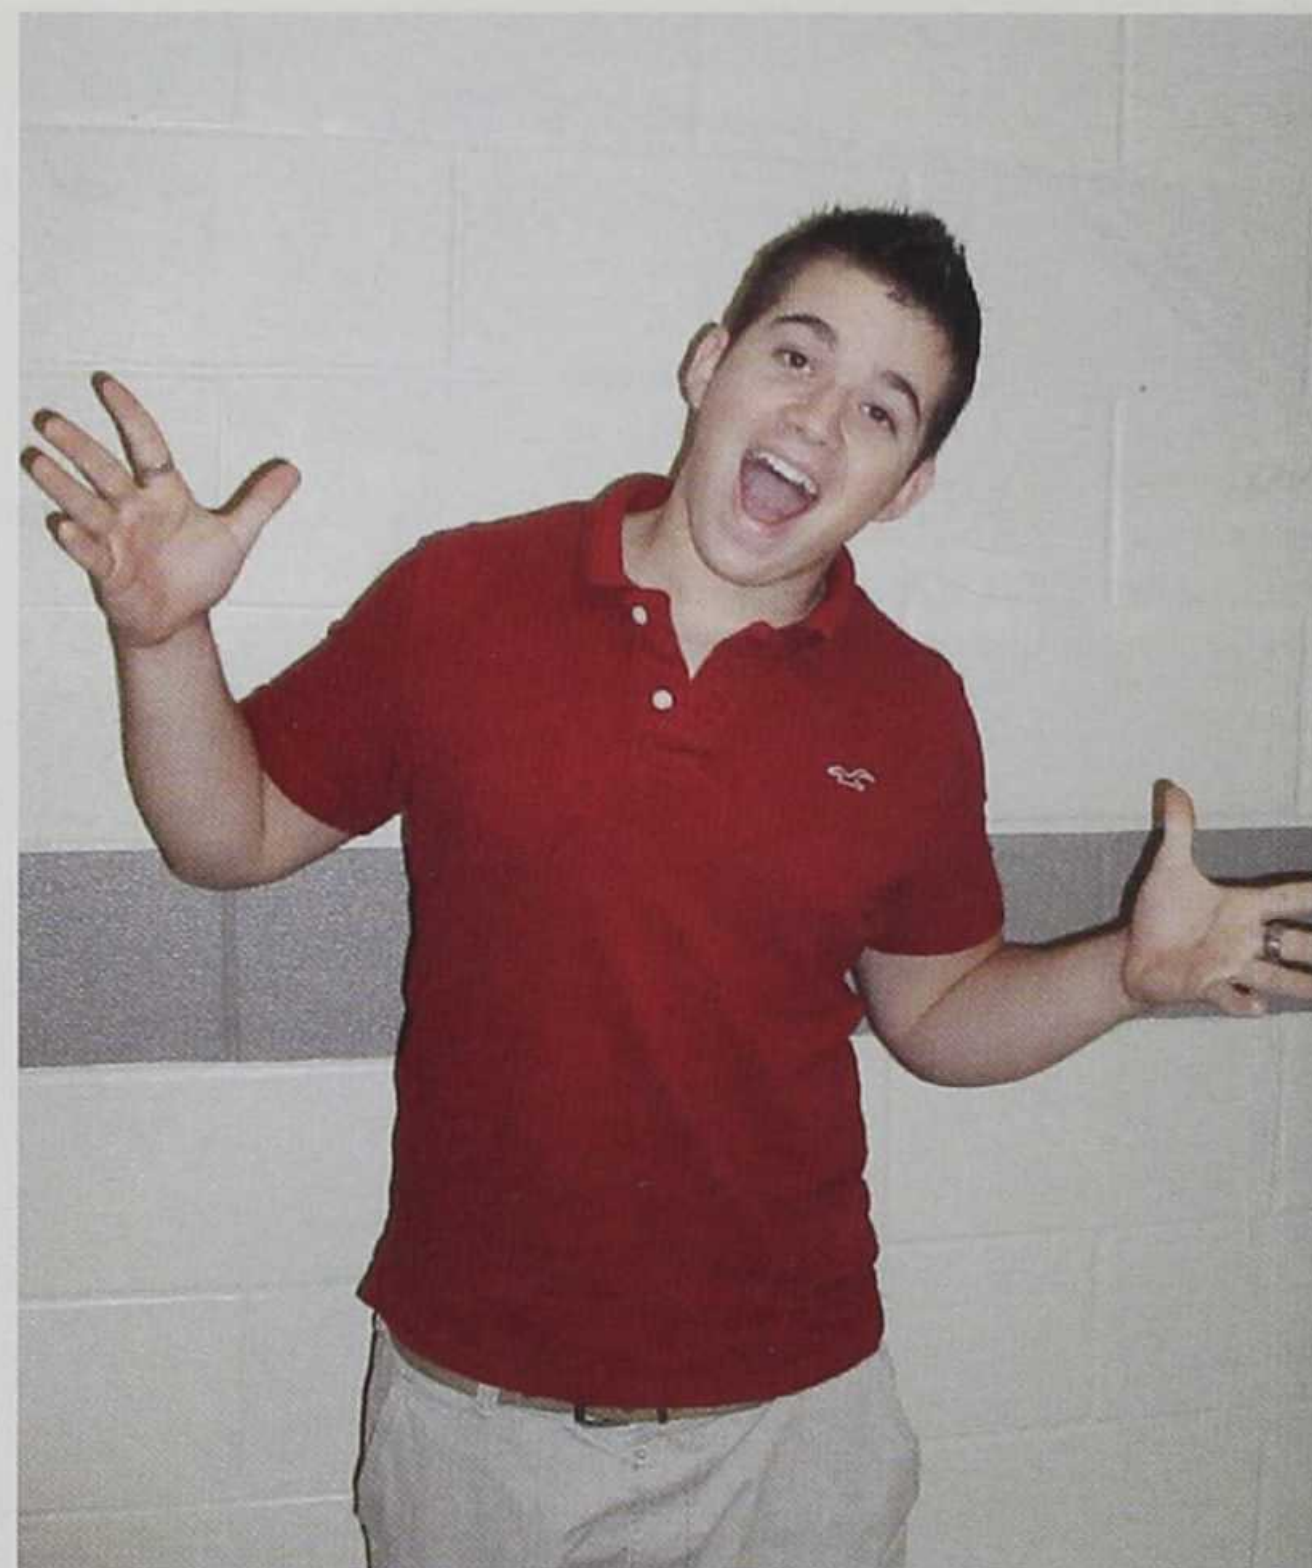

- You know what you are going to wear in the morning
- It makes us look more professional as a student body
- You cannot be labeled by what you like to wear

Cons

- It drastically stunts your individuality
- You do not get to wear your old, comfortable clothes
- Diversity is hard to find because everyone basically wears the same outfit

When asked his opinion about the dress code, senior Chris Reynolds agrees that the dress code is tolerable. However he did have one concern, "I just wish we would be allowed to wear jeans. The polos are OK, and it's good that no one gets ridiculed because we all dress alike, but I really want to wear jeans."

Embellishing the bland dress code with pearls, junior Marissa Ericson attempts to stay creative when dressing despite school restrictions. Ericson maintains her individuality by adding jewelry and a sweater to her solid color turtleneck. Ericson completed the ensemble with white pants, a brown shirt, and a navy blue sweater.

Showing off her trendy originality, sophomore Charley Gonzalez models a sweater and white lace undershirt paired with her green polo and black pants. Her outfit was both school approved and trendy. Gonzalez shared her feelings on the dress code, "I don't think it's that bad, but I do miss wearing jeans and t-shirts. I try to individualize as best I can."

Sporting the popular collared shirts and sweaters, sophomores Julie Robinson, Hillary Schwind, and Olivia Pizana use color to express their individuality. The students were fortunate that they still had the ability to choose the colors of their shirts instead of mandated shades of polos like some other districts.

As we all know, the school board decided to enforce a much stricter, standardized dress code. While it did make it harder to show one's individuality, that didn't stop students from trying. On Fridays throughout the year, students were allowed to wear school spirit shirts and denim jeans. Most of the time, however, students were required to wear solid color polos to school. Students were not permitted to wear outerwear such as hooded sweatshirts or jackets in class, with the exception of Kennedale varsity letter jackets. In addition, belts and shoes could not be too decorative or elaborate. While it was a difficult adjustment to make, we accepted it and some students even made jokes about it. The sophomore spirit T-shirt read, "All my other shirts are polos" to make a witty statement about the way that we dressed alike every day. The new dress code helped keep the distractions to a minimum, prevented segregation due to labels, and decreased some of the cliques. According to the district, standardizing the dress code was a positive way to keep the focus on grades and schoolwork rather than fashion and trends. Several teens worked to find creative ways to make their outfits more original. They added beaded jewelry, sweaters, headbands and other accessories to flaunt their unique styles. On the other hand, many students still attempted to wear their old clothing and were asked to change or go home. We were constantly reminded that even when everything is in uniform and identical, there are still ways to be an individual.

After a long week of studying, dealing with teachers, doing homework, and just being at school in general, it was always nice to spend time at our favorite hang-outs on the weekends. Many students enjoyed going to places where they could simply "chill" with their friends or find some solitude time. The most popular places to spend our spare time included the mall, movie theaters, friends' houses, and restaurants. Hanging out with pals outside of school was important because these were the times when friends were made and relationships were strengthened. It also helped build good memories of our high school year. Buddies were what helped get us through the ups and the downs of high school. Without the extra bonding time, it would have been incredibly difficult to establish the friendships made here. Friendships that had the potential to last a lifetime were grown and developed by the countless hours students spent together outside the school walls. This year, it was a pleasant thing to get to spend extra time wearing the clothes of our choice instead of the standardized polo shirt and khakis. Weekends were our only chance to be lazy and dress as comfortably as we desired; getting to do this made the weekends even better. Stress was haunting us everywhere we turned with our jobs, exams, homework, and extracurricular activities. For many of us, the weekends were our saving grace — something to look forward to in order to get through the week.

Lacing up his skates, junior James Wood gets prepared to step out on the ice. On any given weekend, you could always find Kennedale students at the Parks Mall. They went there to shop, catch a movie, ice skate, or simply hang out with their friends. "Ice skating is a good and fun way to spend time with my girlfriend," commented Wood.

What is the best part about the weekends?

"I enjoy sleeping in and staying out late with my friends. My favorite weekend by far was when I got to go to The Fray concert."
- Breanna Fleeman

"My favorite part about the weekend is the fact that I get to go shopping and there's no school. I also get to hang out with my friends so that makes it even better."
- Megan Manning

"On the weekends, my favorite thing to do is sleep in. As well as hanging out with the guys outside of school and having a good time with them."
- Aaron Wingfield

"In my opinion, the best thing to do over the weekend is to go to out with my friends. I also get to sleep in the next day and don't have to worry about school."
- Trenay Dixon

"The thing I love to do most on the weekends is to work out in the gym, spend time at Joe Pool Lake with my family, and go to church with them as well."
- Michael Ivison

Laughing it off, a group of girls enjoy a game of pool at a local restaurant. Many students spent their weekends eating out with their friends and just having fun while forgetting the things that occurred during the past school week. "It was neat to hang out with a lot of people from other groups that I don't usually hang out with, and we all had fun," commented Ceara Swille.

Playing solids, junior James Farrell focuses hard on knocking the ball into the pocket. Pool was always a fun way to hang out with your friends and enjoy your spare time when you're not in school. "I enjoy playing pool at my church because it gives me time to talk to my friends and have fun," stated Farrell.

Trying to shake his defender, junior Danny Radtke makes a move to get a clear shot on goal. Many Kennedale students spent their free time at Deaver Park playing soccer and just having fun. "I like playing soccer on the weekends because it's a good way for me to practice and get ready for the upcoming season," explained Radtke.

Paper or plastic, sophomore Kyle Etfer loads groceries into a shopper's vehicle as an employee at Albertsons. Stocking merchandise on shelves, bagging groceries, and assisting customers were all part of Etfer's job description. "Working makes me feel more responsible," said Etfer.

Using her cowgirl charm, senior Kelly Moore sells Western attire at Cavender's Boot City. Moore said, "I've always been a cowgirl so this job fits my personality... it was always my ideal first job." Living in Texas, working at Cavender's kept Moore extremely busy, especially during the holiday shopping season.

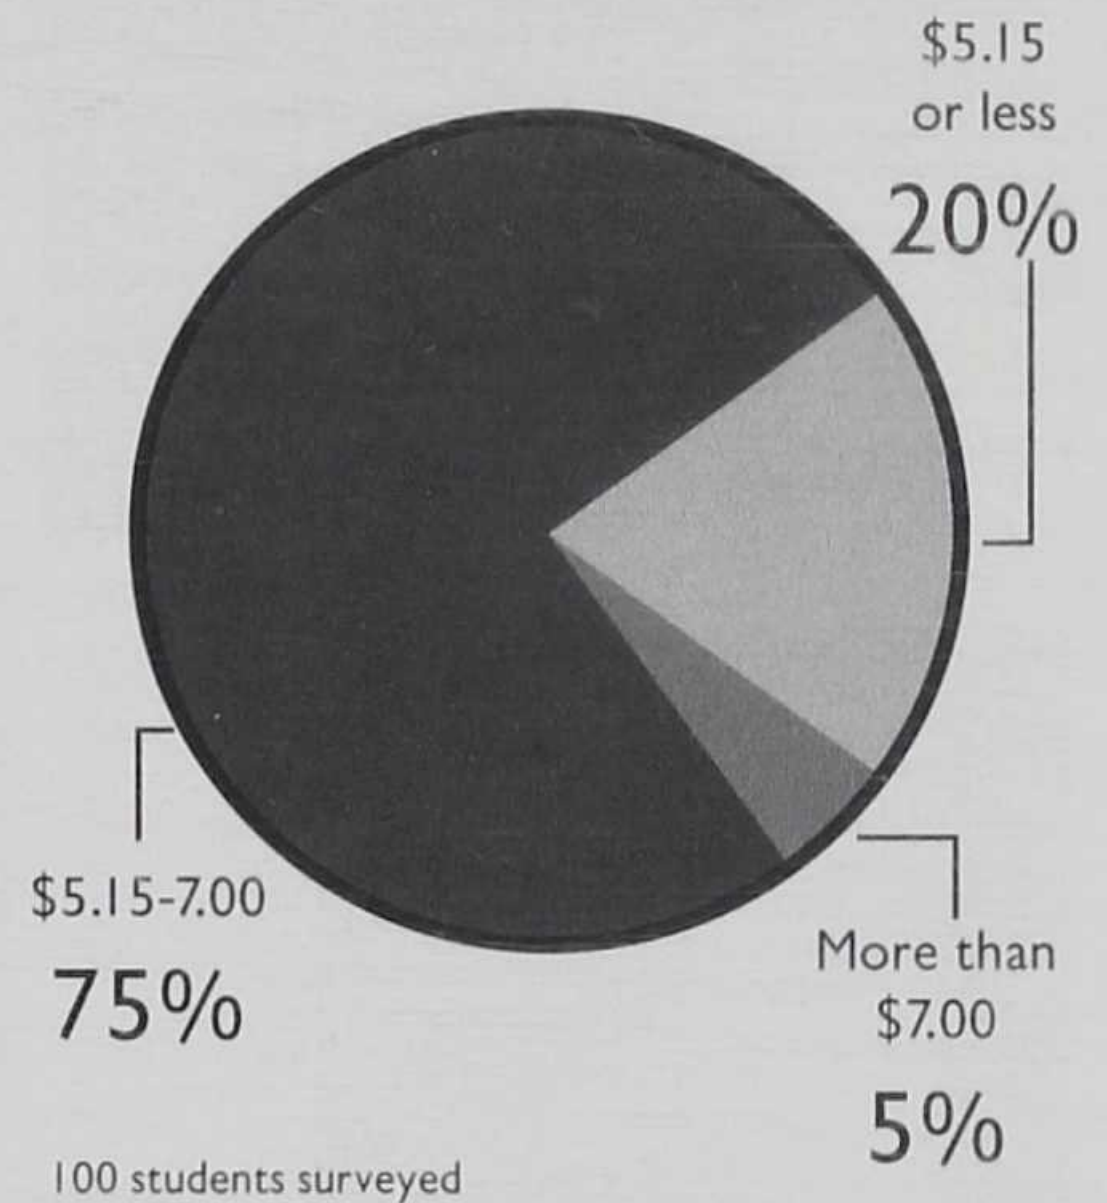

Squeezing through a tight spot, senior Carrie Dayton delivers an order to a customer at the brand new Sonic Drive-In on Sublett. As a car hop, Dayton depended on her smile and personality to earn tips to supplement her $3.50 hourly wage. "I like the tips because I always have cash on me," said Dayton.

Using pen and paper, junior Emily Fenn jots down an order the old-fashioned way at Burger Box. Working at a popular restaurant in the heart of town, she often ran into her fellow students. Fenn's favorite part of her job was talking to customers and her least favorite was cooking.

Maturity made us realize that the freedoms we were given by our parents, like a new car, going out with friends more frequently or returning home later, all took some effort on our part. With a new car came the need for gas and with the need for gas comes the need for money to buy it. With changing times came growing necessities. As we grew older, we not only had more responsibilities at school, but extracurricular activities as well. Everyone at our school was an expert juggler constantly tossing up homework, athletics, theater, and much more. Among these things were part-time jobs. For us, the road to graduation was a stressful one, but it helped by doing something for yourself. A job was a way of feeling accomplished and achieving the ability to get your own gas or buy those pair of $100 shoes your parents claim weren't a necessity. We worked long weeks and gave up valuable free time, but on payday there was something to show for cleaning the salad bar ten times a night or wiping off tanning beds after every customer instead of being out with your friends. With that paycheck we either rewarded ourselves with that hard earned cash or decided to save for college or other necessities. Everywhere we went, students were working in fast food service, waiting tables, washing cars and doing other odd jobs. It was impossible to get away from other students because the craze to work is so prominent in high school. The learning experience of a job comes with growth and maturity. Growth and maturity comes with age and age comes with a job.

Covered in blood, senior Katie Pumphrey lays motionless on the concrete after sustaining an injury in the accident. She was transported by ambulance to a hospital where she later died. Pumphrey commented, "It was a very good experience, but it was very emotional. It definitely affected me for the long term."

Filled with grief, senior Tony Alvarez buries his face in his hands while he sits in the back of an ambulance. Alvarez was a passenger in the car hit by the drunk driver and escaped with only minor injuries. "It was very nerve-racking being in that position—it really influenced me in a positive way," Alvarez said about participating in the program.

Wasted program makes a huge impact on KHS students]

Tears, death, and sorrow seemed to be all around us during the Wasted program. While in the auditorium listening to guest speakers and watching the movie starring our own peers, we were filled with sadness and impacted by the realization that we aren't as invincible as we seemed to have thought. The impact of the program was more powerful than anyone foresaw. "I knew it would help to influence other people's choices, but I never dreamed it would be that hard. The biggest reality check for me was the ride in the CareFlite helicopter," junior Kelli Grimes shared. The mock collision of two vehicles involving the "deaths" and "injuries" of several students was an eye-opening experience. A lot of students and teachers alike believed that the Wasted Program was appropriate because it so bluntly threw the truth out to students who believe that their life is just fun and games. Teacher and mother, Mrs. Janna Long said that the program was "necessary and graphic." She commented, "It shows students that their actions have real consequences. The hardest part was writing my daughter's obituary and the last words I could ever say to her." Mrs. Long's daughter, senior Meaghan Echeverria, admitted that the entire thing was "incredibly tough, especially seeing my mom in that position because I hate to see her cry." Every 15 minutes during the school day, two students would "die" in an alcohol related accident. Students took this event very seriously, and everyone was somber during those tough two days. This eye-opening event left the student body shockingly aware of the realities of drinking and driving.

Rushing to save her life, firefighters and paramedics lift junior Kelli Grimes, who was seriously injured in the accident, onto the CareFlite helicopter which took her to a local hospital. "It was a really serious experience. It was a big deal seeing my family like that. It showed me the consequences for my actions," Grimes recalled.

Under arrest, a Kennedale police officer apprehends senior Zach Waters for driving under the influence and intoxicated manslaughter. Like many others, Waters was deeply impacted by this program. "It was just one choice that affected hundreds of lives and destroyed many more... thankfully it was just for show," commented Waters.

Holding each other close, senior Sam Gilkey and junior Elise Martinez share a dance together at prom. "I had a lot of fun dancing with Elise. This year's prom was a lot better than last year. There were also a lot more things to do at after prom. My favorite memory was getting to share it with my girlfriend Elise," commented Gilkey.

Just crowned, seniors Justin Grant and Caitlin Burch smile for the camera as the 2007 Prom King and Queen. "This is the only thing in high school I've ever accomplished. I was really surprised to have won Prom King because I think Bruffy had a much better chance of winning. He's involved in sports and I wasn't the typical person to win," stated Grant.

With the ballpark as their backdrop, juniors Samantha Schermerhorn and Cody Ramirez stop to commemorate the evening. "I got to spend time with my girlfriend and we had so much fun and after prom was fun also, playing games and bowling was the best," replied Ramirez.

Lowering her head to be crowned, senior Caitlin Burch prepares to receive the crown. "I was really surprised because I thought Amanda was going to win. When I was being crowned, I was in shock, and I was also upset because Justin and I didn't get to dance together after winning. We had to go take pictures," said Burch.

Prom is a very exciting, and much awaited time of the year. Many students look forward to this event because it is a time to dress up in fancy dresses, tuxedos, eat fancy food, dance, and just have fun with your friends. Many students began preparing for prom months before the actual date occurred. This year's prom was held at the Diamond Club, which is located at the Rangers Ballpark. While eating and dancing, students got to enjoy a gorgeous view of the stadium and field where the Texas Rangers play their home games and hold practices. When the students arrived at The Ballpark, they were ushered into a large room decorated as a casino. Due to this year's graduating senior class being the Class of '07, the prom committee decided to decorate with a creative 007 James Bond theme. Whether you were a junior or senior or just a lucky underclassman asked by an upperclassman, prom was a very exhilarating time for everyone. Many said that this year's prom improved more than they had previously expected. "This year was my first year to attend the prom. I was dancing like the waving Notre Dame. It was a great memory of my senior year, and it was a day that my girlfriend was actually proud of me," commented senior Ronnie Griffin. After-Prom was also an extravagant event of the night. It was held at the brand new attraction in Arlington called Alley Cats. After-prom was a safe alternative where the students could still have a good time. Despite the financial worries the senior class had at the beginning of the year, they ultimately raised enough money to make prom a night to remember.

Melissa Fuller (12th)

"Although I didn't go to prom this year, after-prom was way better than last year. I kicked butt at Texas hold 'em. I also won an iPod Nano and a digital camera!"

Amanda McKissick (12th)

"Prom was fun this year! I really enjoyed it my senior year. I was happy I got to go to prom and after-prom with Andrew. We had a great time."

showing off their moves, junior Macey Cantrell and her date share some laughs on the dance floor. "I thought prom was really fun...the night turned out a lot more fun than I thought it was going to be. Dancing with Jake and hanging out with Elise and Sam was the best part about prom. That and the cheesecake of course," commented Cantrell.

Class of 2007 celebrate their last moments together]

As Sunday, May 27th loomed closer and closer, the Senior Class of 2007 excitedly anticipated their graduation. For many high school seniors, graduation is something they've looked forward to since the beginning of elementary school. It is a day that acknowledges and celebrates the achievement of completing all thirteen years of school, and for many students, it marks the beginning of the rest of their lives. When students finish high school, it is expected that parents, family, and teachers have taught the students all that they can in preparation for the embarkation into the real world. Whether the seniors are going off to college to further their education and learn how to do their own laundry, enlisting in national defense, or entering the work world, after graduation seniors are all faced with new experiences that will influence their lives forever. This year's ceremony took place at the Will Rogers Coliseum in Ft. Worth. The stage was lined with flowers. The tables were adorned with the school colors and the tabletops were lined with the green diplomas of the anxious graduates. At 3 o'clock, the graduation began with the entrance of the senior class led by the junior marshals. After being seated, they began their celebration by blowing up balloons and attempting to keep them in the air. Following the celebrations came the speeches by valedictorian Dakota Greenfield and salutatorian Katie Jackson. After the speeches, the celebrating, and the thirteen years of hard work and dedication, the Class of 2007 received their high school diplomas.

Focused on the audience, valedictorian Dakota Greenfield delivers a heartfelt speech. Truly moved by her words of wisdom, her classmates gave her a standing ovation. Greenfield plans on majoring in Civil Engineering at Texas A&M University.

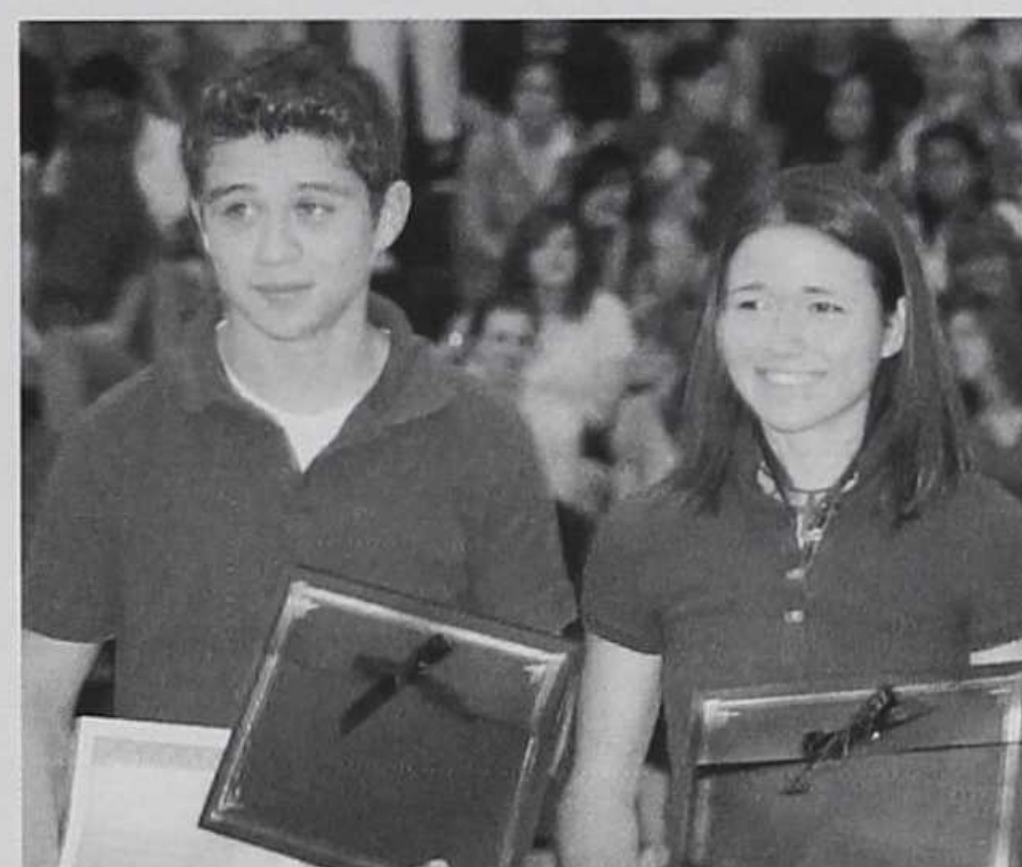

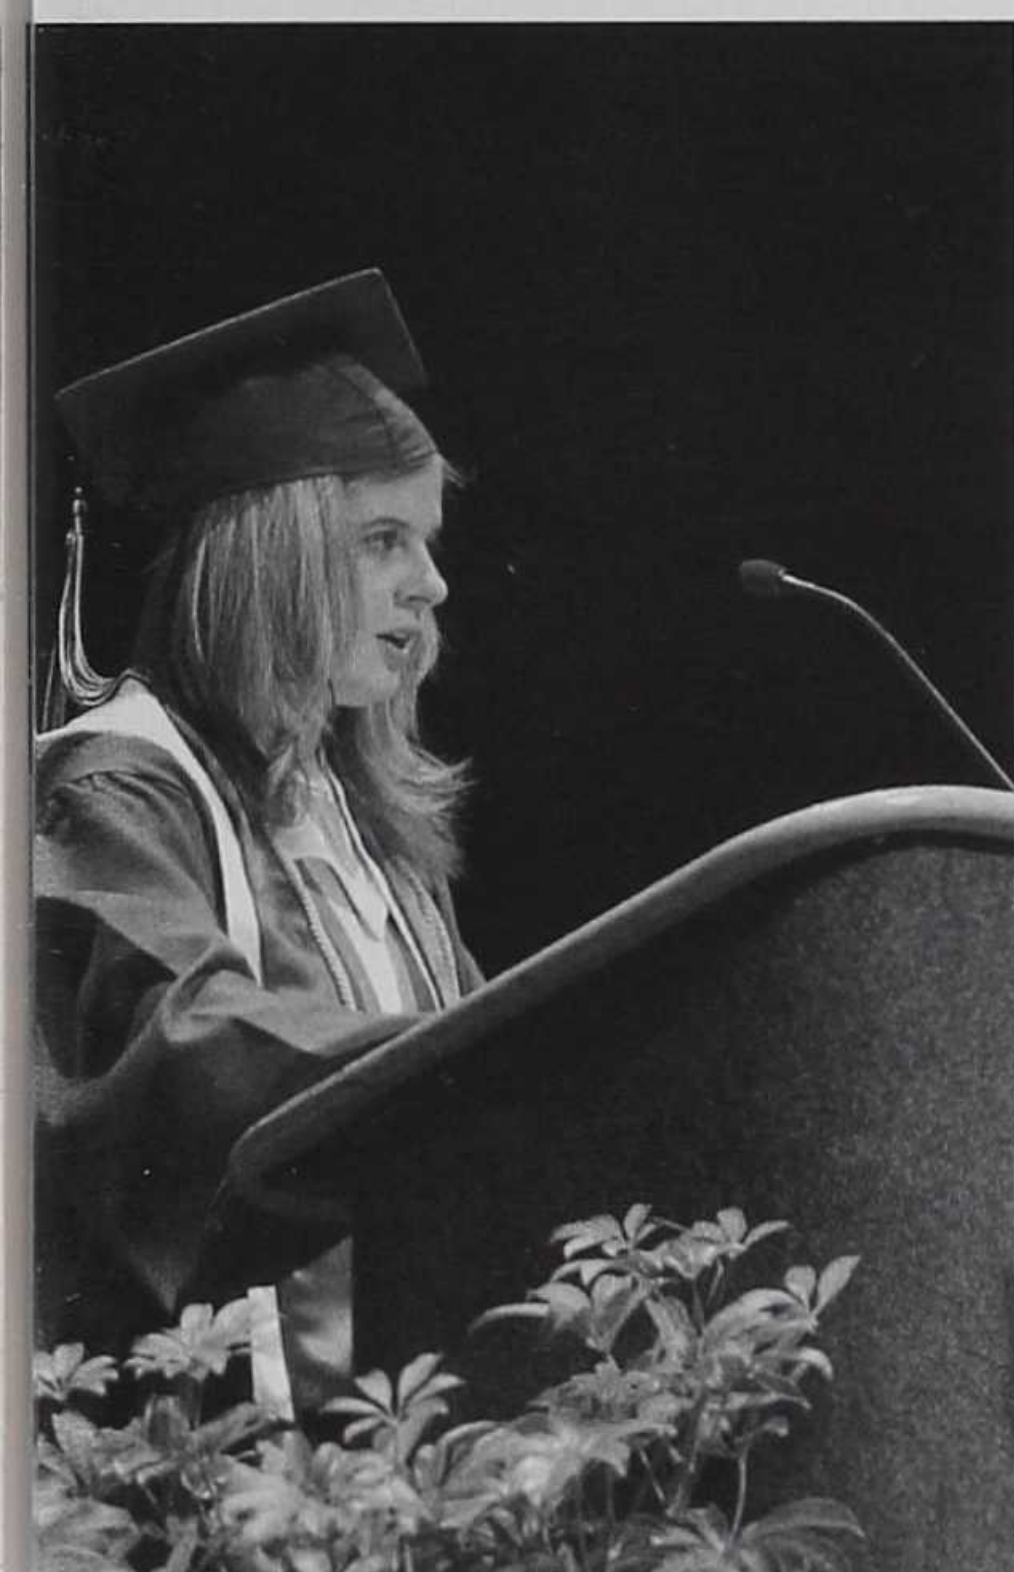

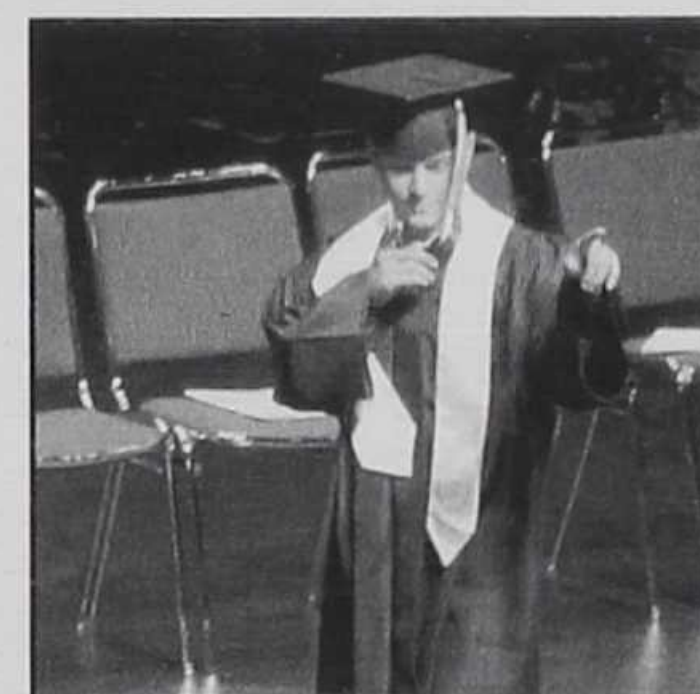

All smiles, principal Rita Whatley hands graduate Travis Ford his diploma. While most graduates quietly walked across the stage to claim their diploma, there were some who did a celebratory dance or gave a shout-out to their fans. Ford showed his comedic side by tripping on stage.

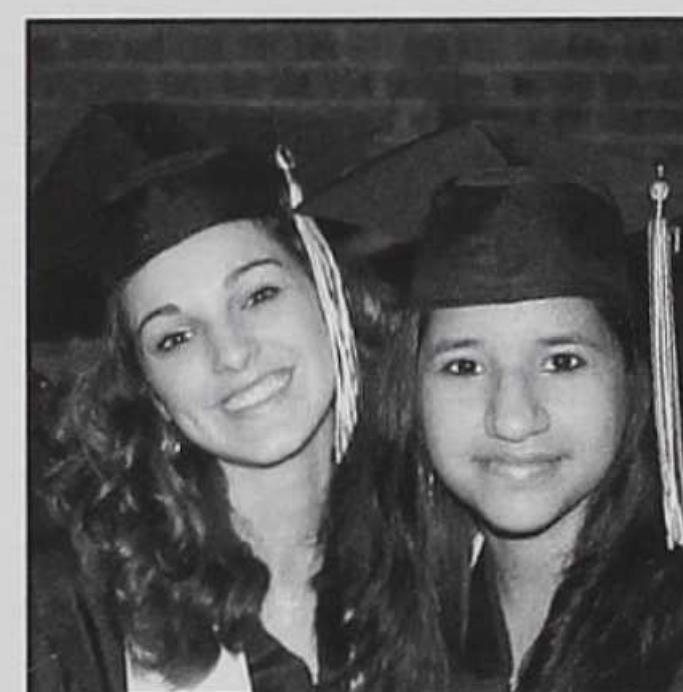

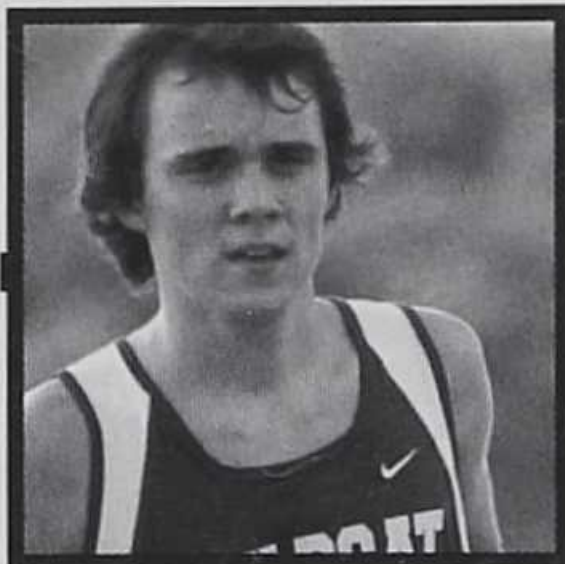

An emotional time, graduates Chelsea Johnson and William Heeps point their fingers towards the sky as they lead their classmates in singing the Alma Mater one last time. "It was nice to participate in one last Alma Mater," shared Kellye Moore.

Seniors Tony Alvarez and Sam Craig were recognized for an amazing feat — 13 years of perfect attendance.

Looking out at her classmates, salutatorian Katie Jackson recites her speech. "I will miss seeing my friends everyday, but I will definitely not miss going through the same old school routine everyday. I'm ready to move on," said Jackson. Jackson plans to major in elementary education and minor in business at Oklahoma Christian University.

[developing CHAMPIONS

“ Athletics has raised the bar for my academic achievements which have helped me receive my scholarship for softball. ”

- Aubrey Davis, senior

Developing a champion includes more than just workouts, practices, and scrimmages. An athlete must have a desire to grow and work harder, in order to grab the title of a champion. This year the athletic program held in its grasp a group of students eager to fill their roles as a champion. These athletes faced more challenges than in the past, but kept their eyes on the prize, becoming successful in every aspect. These students had to adjust to realignment in district, forcing them to compete against new foes and lose familiar ones. Athletes faced the loss of several coaches, but adapted to new styles and innovative ideas of a newly appointed staff. Not only did the athletic personalities change, but the look of our training facilities as well. Expecting new additions and new buildings led players and coaches alike to grow excited as buildings began to take shape. The new indoor practice field would enable players to practice during all available opportunities despite hot, cold, or even rainy weather. The new field house was another welcomed addition to our campus. Teams looked forward to more space and bigger lockers. The stadium was also revamped, with more seats and with backs added to the middle seats for extra comfort. For convenience, concession stands and restrooms were being built directly under the stadium. These changes have created the opportunity for our champions to gain experience and grow as athletes, as well as learning to be flexible and open minded not only in their games, but in life as well.

Dedication, hard work drive Wildcats to playoffs]

This season was an exciting one for Wildcat football. Several new players added to the team's spirit, including many underclassmen. Sophomore Cody Ostrout exclaimed, "It feels great to be on varsity because I make new friends and learn to be a better team player." Games such as the one against Glen Rose kept us on the edge of our seats the entire way through. The teams kept a relatively even score throughout, and the Wildcats conquered during the second round of overtime. Our boys worked incredibly hard to make it to playoffs. It took numerous practices and exceptional amounts of dedication to get the team to where they are now. Senior J.J. Petty shared, "Oh, yeah, I was excited for playoffs! We made it 'cause we're real and we work hard." The Wildcats were 8-4 this season including the playoff games. The team made it to the second round of playoffs for the second year in a row. They dominated Dallas Roosevelt, but were defeated in a close game against Royse City. Experiences like this were what made playing the game worth all the time and dedication. The enthusiasm and devotion from our committed players was what caused students and members of the community to gather every Friday night to watch the Wildcats play their hardest. Each Friday during the season, we saw the screaming fans standing in the crisp autumn air to cheer on their team regardless of the weather. The game was something that brought us all together sharing the desire for the same thing, a win for our team...the team that represents our school and our Wildcat pride.

With the ball tucked safely in his arm, junior Kasib Williams makes a dash towards the end zone as his opponent goes for the tackle. Williams stated, "Regardless of what anyone says, we had a really great year." Williams managed to maintain a positive outlook throughout the entire season.

Pouncing on the opponent, a defensive pack of Wildcats bring down the running back and stop Hillsboro's offensive drive. Credited with the 42-0 shutout, the defense was impeccable during the homecoming game. The team ended the season with three shutouts, an impressive achievement for the defense.

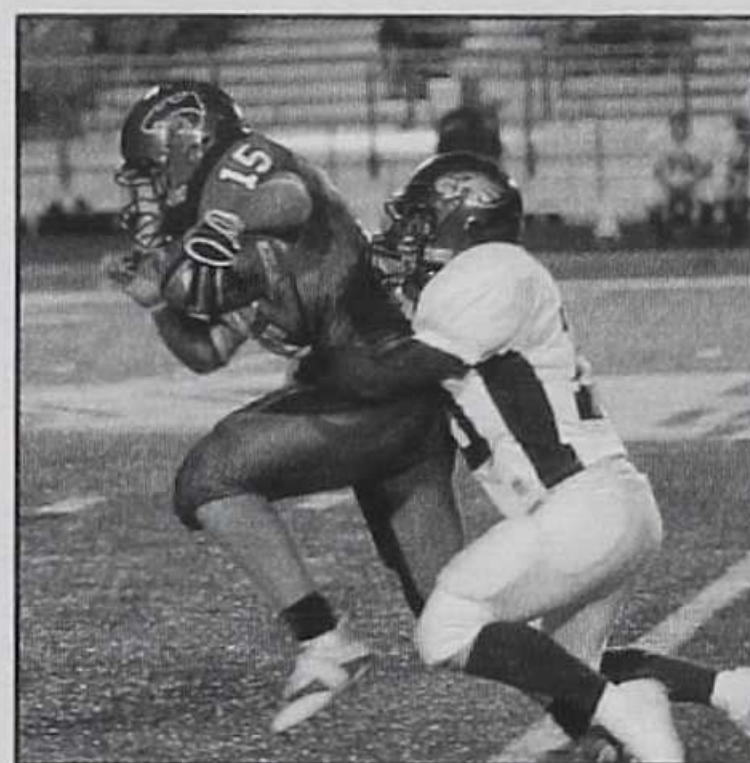

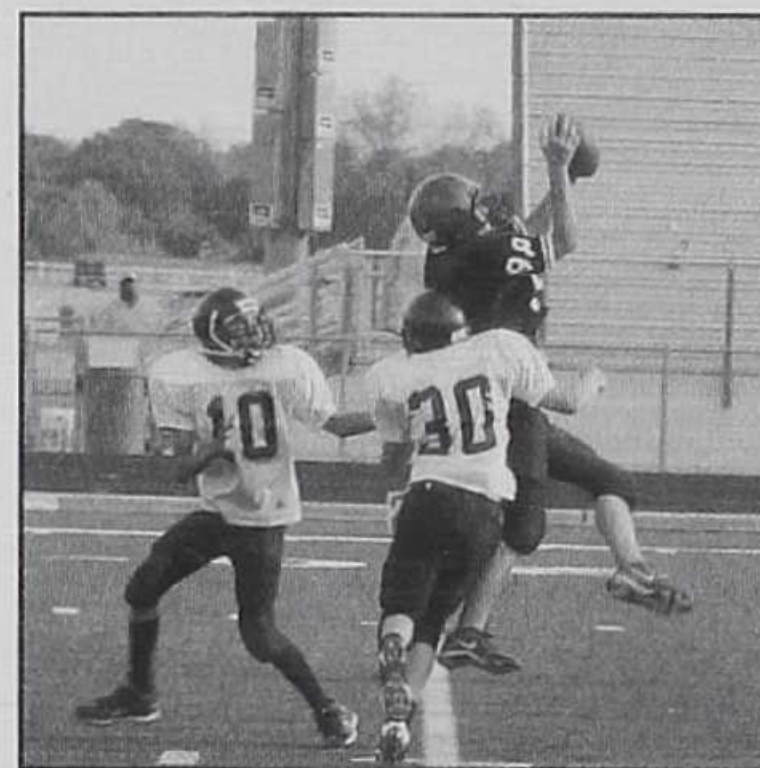

"I've been playing since the seventh grade.

I've grown up around football because my dad's a coach."

Logan Barrett (11th)

As the defense closes in, junior running back Raphael Brooks focuses on escaping the tackle and taking it all the way. "An imperative part of being a running back is to be able to sprint past the defense without being tackled," said Brooks.

With the end zone in sight, sophomore Rob Rogers breaks the tackle and runs the ball for a touchdown. He enjoyed playing on the junior varsity football team this year. "It's a good football program and I like to play because it's my favorite sport," commented Rogers.

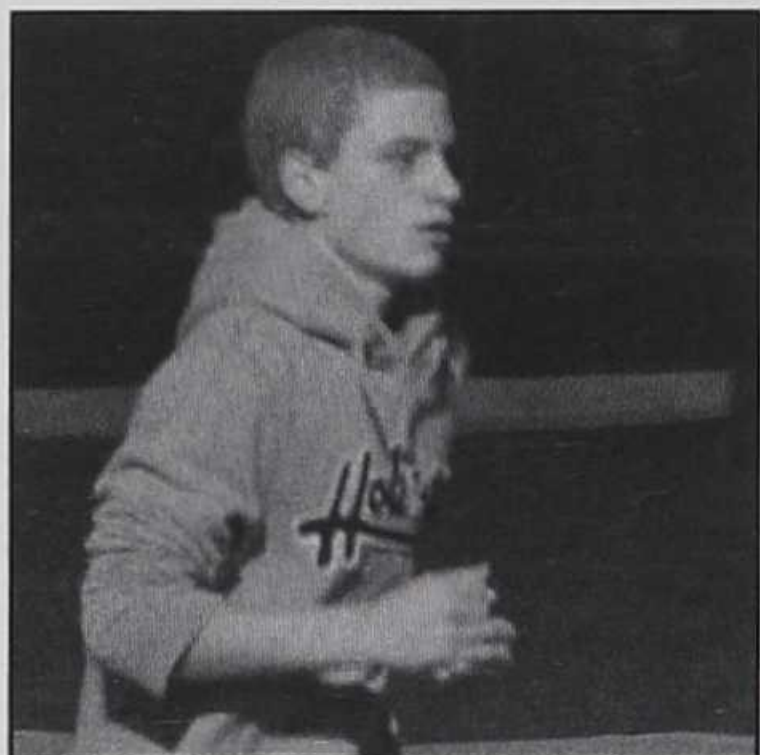

Deep in concentration, senior David Ramirez looks over plays with Coach Lowery so he knows exactly what to do on the field. "We always have to make sure we have the plays down in order to do our best," Ramirez elaborated. Not only did the football team have to memorize their own plays, but watched films of their opponent in order to learn their tendencies.

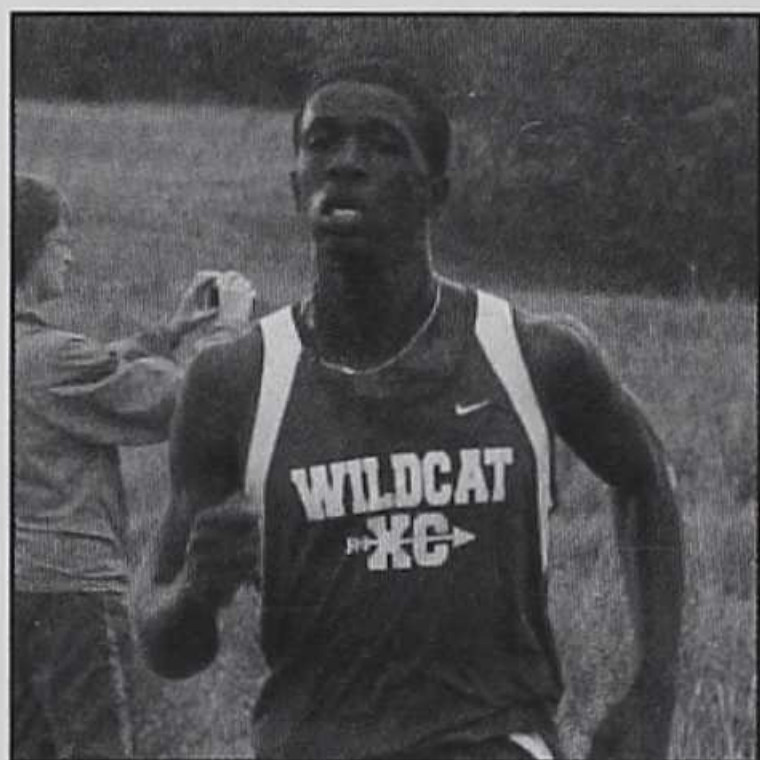

Michael Charron (10th)

"I like the intensity of the game and the pressure of being on varsity. I'm excited for playoffs."

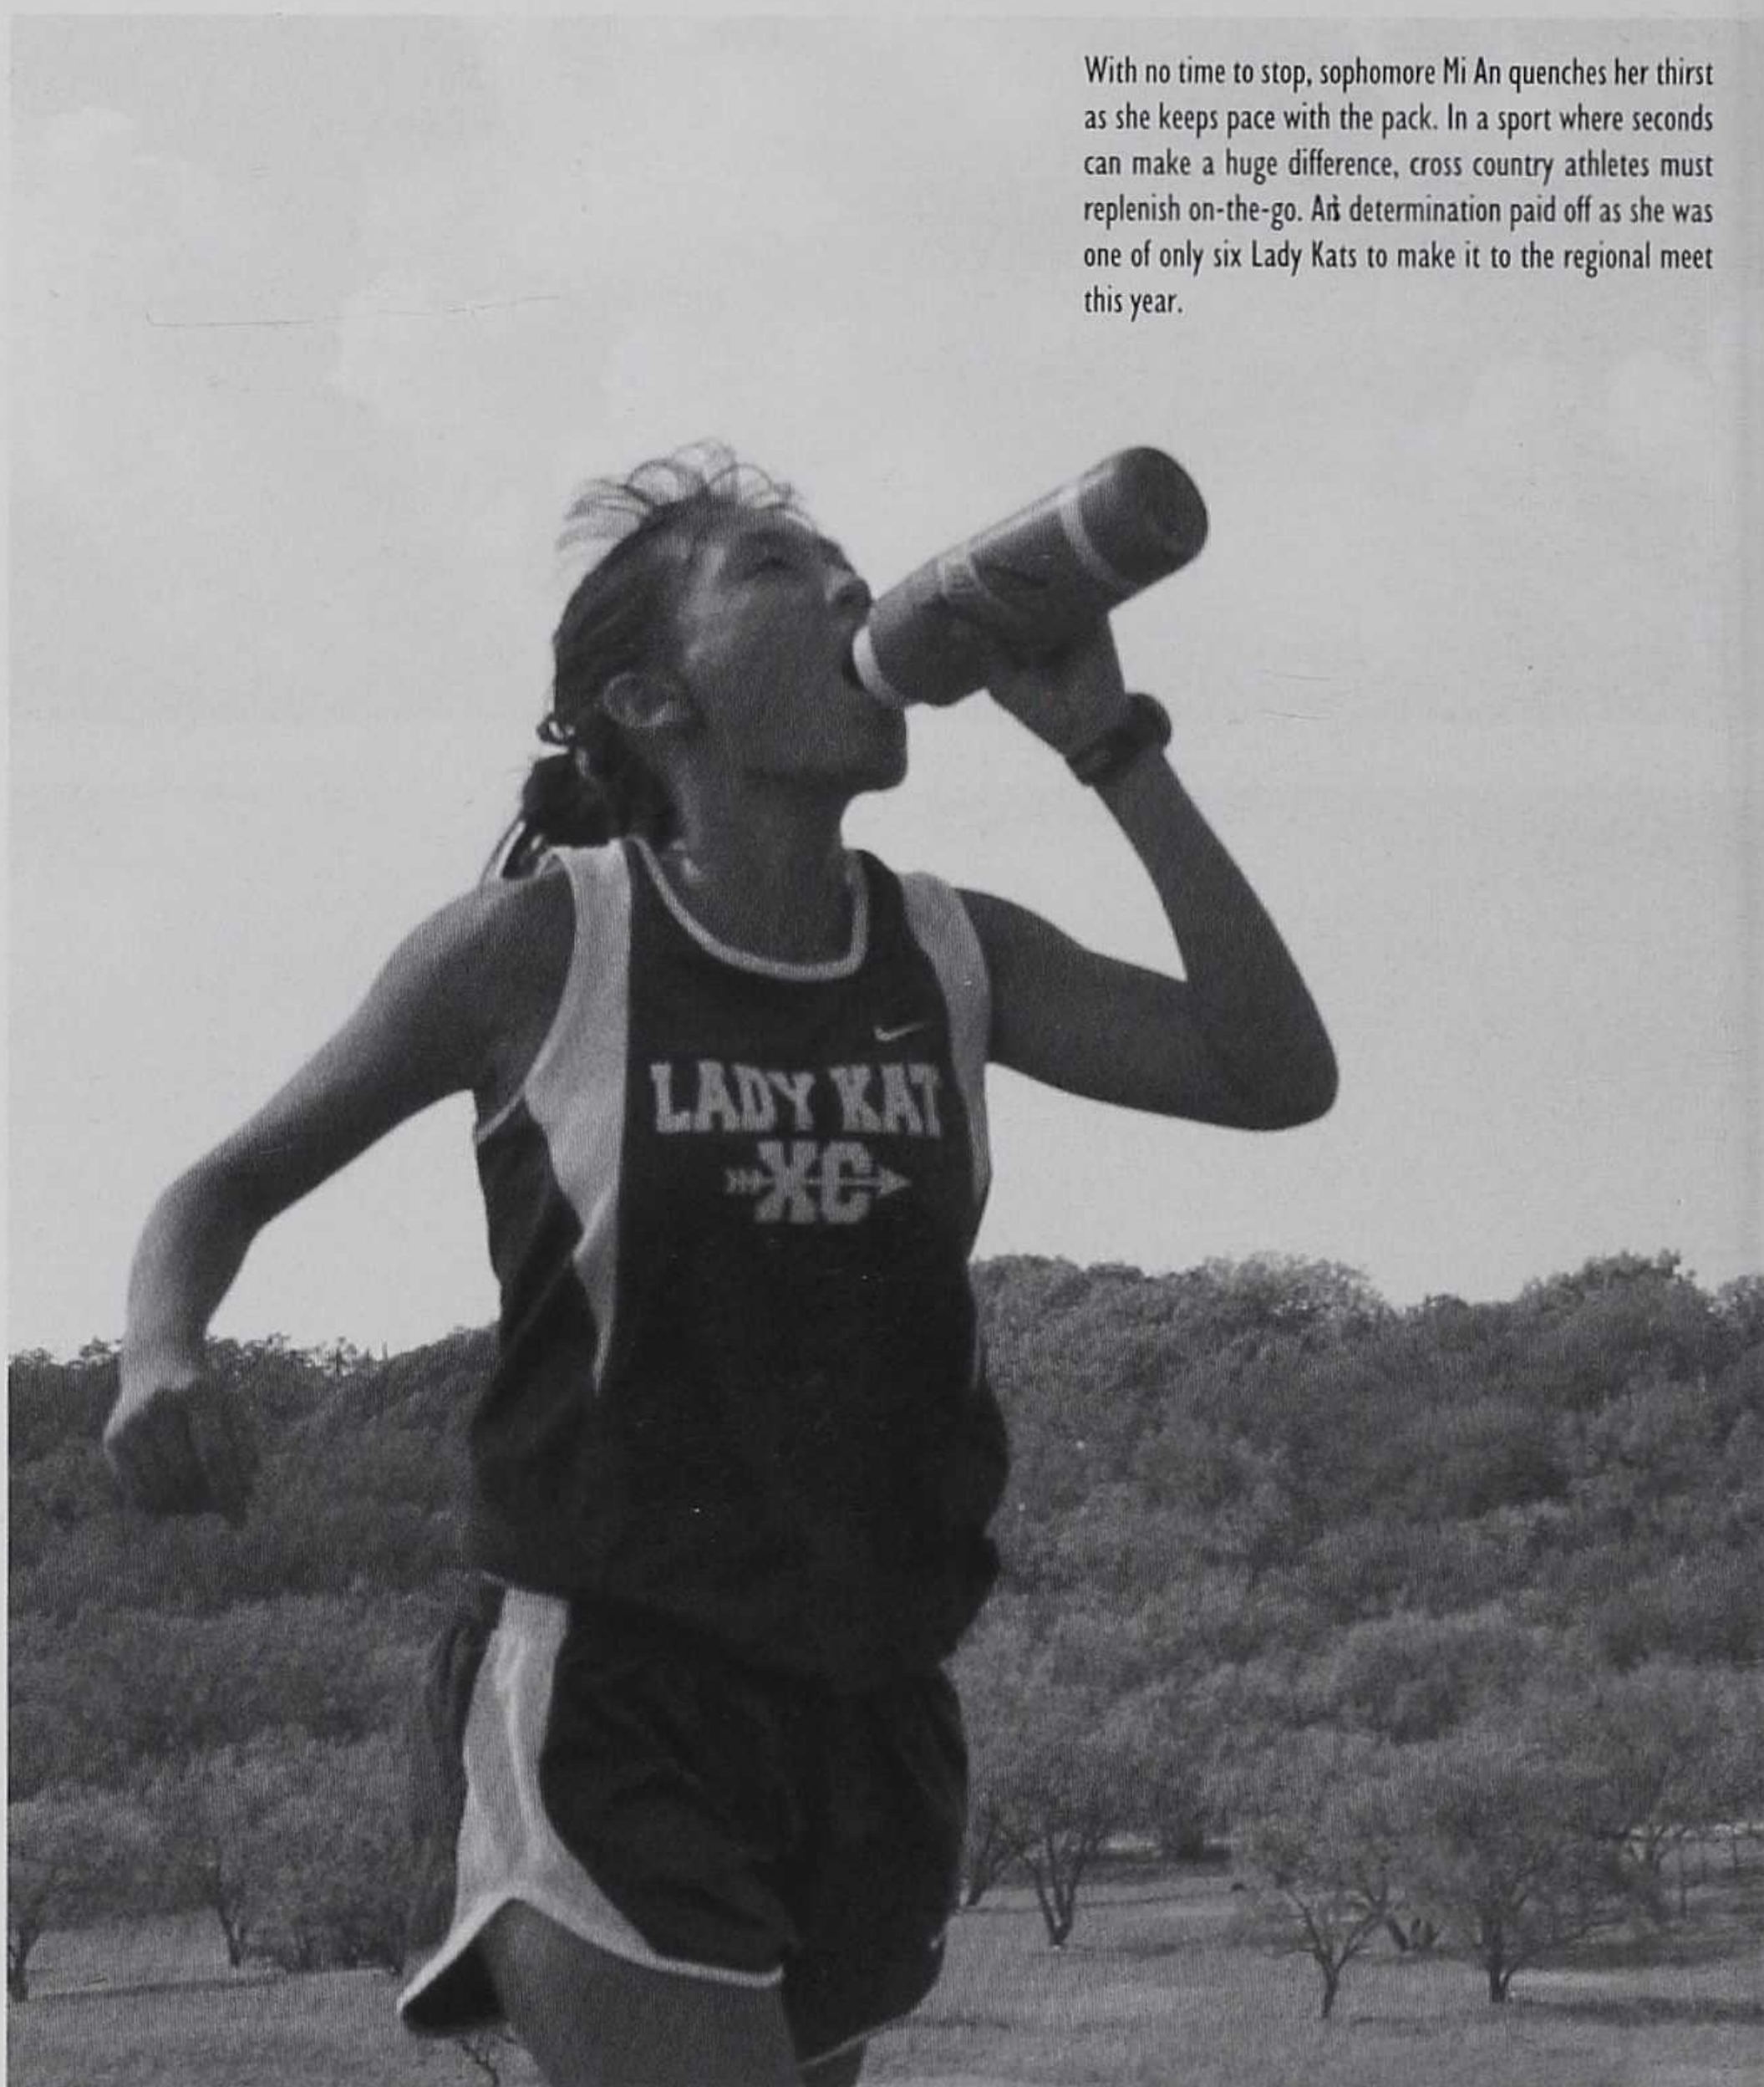

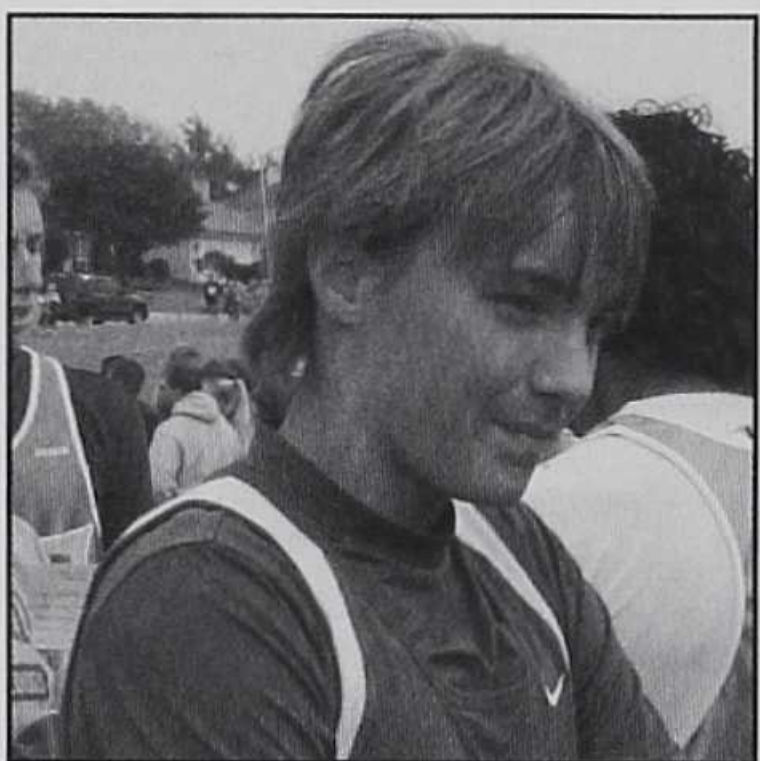

Deeply focused, junior Ryan Petry turns up the speed and pushes hard towards the finish line. Also a soccer player, Petry ran cross country in part to help get in shape for the upcoming season. Many other athletes also chose to join the team to condition for their other sport.

With no time to stop, sophomore Mi An quenches her thirst as she keeps pace with the pack. In a sport where seconds can make a huge difference, cross country athletes must replenish on-the-go. As determination paid off as she was one of only six Lady Kats to make it to the regional meet this year.

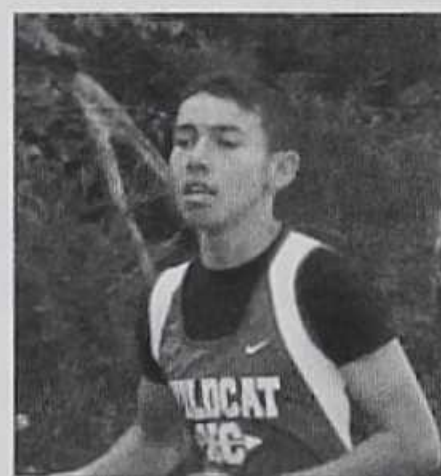

Paving her way along the 2-mile course, sophomore Amanda Casey enjoys the few seconds of shade as she continues her run to the finish line. Athletes joined cross country for various reasons; for Casey, it was her competitive spirit. "I really enjoy the competition against other girls my age," said Casey, a runner on the junior varsity team.

As the gun fires, varsity runners sprint off the starting line and battle against one another for a position in the front of the pack. Junior Michael Iverson finished this race in a top spot and his success didn't stop there. He continued on to State where he placed 33rd out of 108 runners.

While on his way to the finish line, junior Landon Lee runs past a nearby neighborhood. Cross country didn't come easy for Lee. "The hardest part of cross country is the mental part. It's keeping focused and not worrying about other opponents," Lee said.

Blazing the trail ahead, the cross country team left other schools in the dust. From the meet at Clark Stadium to regionals and all the way to an individual competition at state, our team trampled over the rest. We had many moments to be proud of this year. Michael Iverson raced forward to make it all the way to the state competition, placing 32nd out of more than 100. He scored first place in nearly all of the meets. Varsity teams, girls and boys, made it to the regional meet this year. Overwhelmed at first by the miles of running and opponents to beat, many of the runners would have given up had it not been for good training. All teams have Coach Groff and Coach Morris to thank for their victories this year. Both coaches sacrificed hours of time to morph their athletes into running machines. Being her first year at Kennedale, Coach Morris was proud of the year that our cross country team had. "Our teams had amazing accomplishments. We have some really great athletes on our team. I'm sure that next year will be even better than this one. Without their dedication to work, it wouldn't have been possible," Coach Morris commented. Many individuals improved as well this year. Freshmen, Daniel Rico and Joey Shark went from being completely unaware of what was expected of them to making it onto the varsity team. Landon Lee and Ryan Petry made it onto the varsity team for the first time this year as well. The teams spent all their energy on the track, and in the end, their efforts were not wasted.

Spiking with a vengeance, freshman Kate Cassell goes for the ace as she helps defeat the Venus Bulldogs. Huddled up, the varsity team takes a quick break to talk strategy and then prepares to go back out on the court to execute their new techniques. Sophomore Meagan Burgess said, "We always huddled during games to motivate us through it. If we were down, it would pump us back up. Things were never exactly the same each time we huddled."

The Lady Kats put forth a lot of effort this volleyball season. Most of the time, they were found practicing to help better themselves as players and as a team. Over the summer, a select group of girls attended a team camp of the coaches' choice. While there, the girls learned numerous drills that helped make them the strong players we've come to know as the KHS volleyball team. However, most of the girls who wished to try out for the team, attended the Inner Fire Volleyball Camp in July. The Lady Kats dedicated the last two weeks of their summer to two-a-day practices. Although most girls dread this event, it was a great way to help get them back into shape after the long summer break, and ready for the upcoming games. Despite the many long and hard practices the team endured, time flew by.

Soon enough, the season was on its way. The Lady Kats played games every Tuesday and Friday evenings, and spent a lot of their weekends playing in tournaments at other schools around the area. We were extremely proud of our girls because they won games against rivals that they hadn't been able to beat in previous years, which proved their hard work had not gone to waste and was every bit worth it. A sophomore on the varsity squad, Sarah Schramme loved playing for Kennedale. Schramme said, "It's a fun, fast game and I love to play it, and I look forward to playing everyday." Although they did not make it to playoffs this year, we were very ecstatic about the amazing job that these girls did representing our school, and the great attitudes that they had throughout this volleyball season.

After winning the rally, the varsity volleyball players celebrate the point and congratulate one another with a round of high fives. The players were incredibly supportive of each other throughout the season and helped each other find success on the court.

With eyes focused on the ball, varsity player Miranda Guzman prepares to pass the ball to the setter as Marissa Ericson gears up for the spike. Teamwork and communication were crucial factors to success on the court. Guzman commented, "Volleyball is an exciting way to get involved with school and I love playing it."

"I love being an officer with my best friend. We have to work hard together to teach the dances and get the team where we need to be."

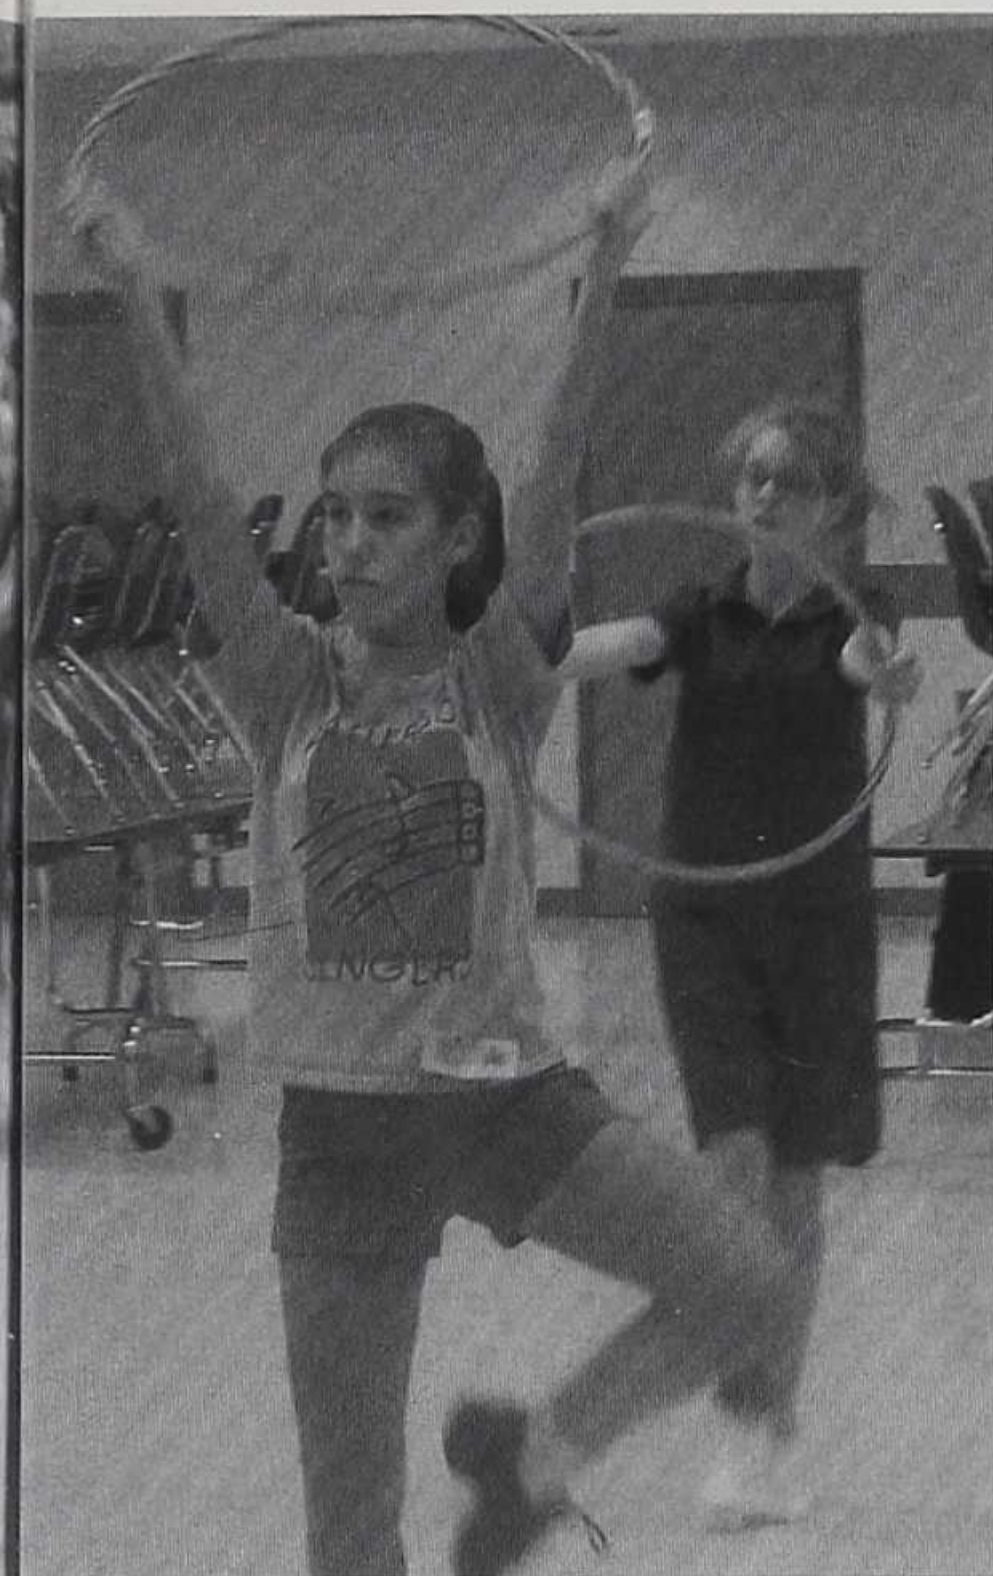

Landing a perfect leap, sophomore Jordan Drake shows her strength and flexibility to the crowd as she performs a leap at a pep rally. She commented that she loves leaping because it makes her feel like she is flying. "My favorite part about drill team is the energy I get from the crowd," exclaimed Drake.

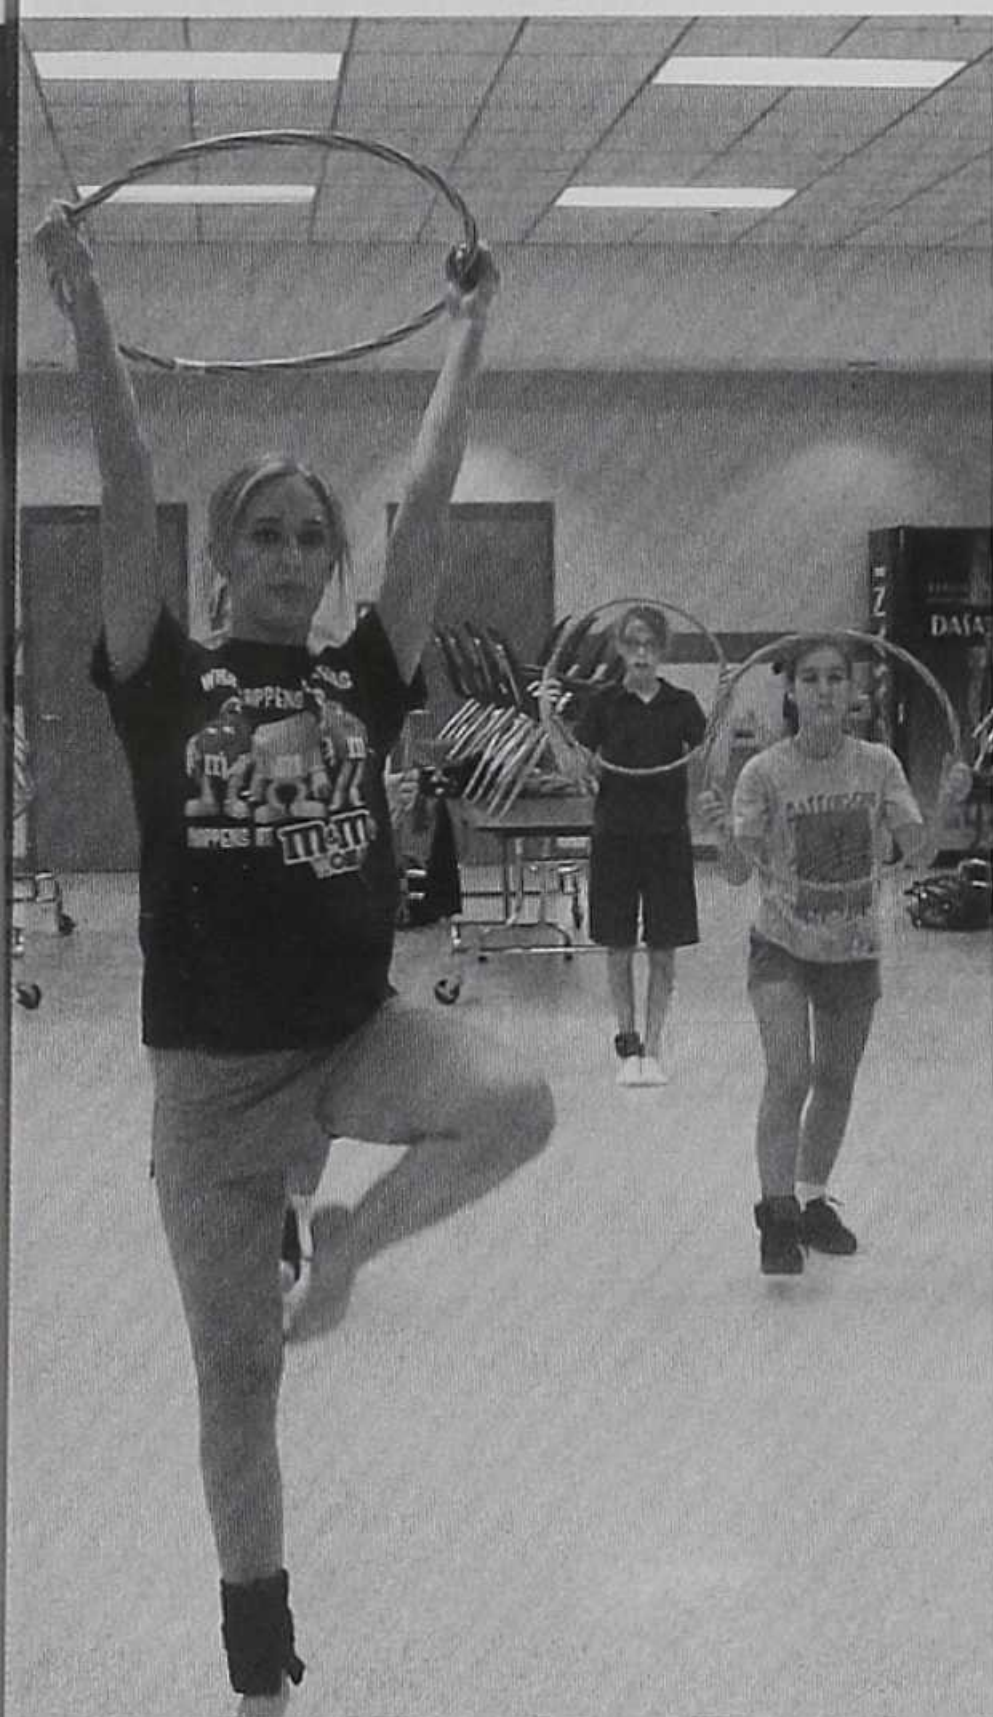

Dancing the much practiced hoop routine, the girls continued smiling despite the chilly weather. The Aristokats spent numerous hours perfecting this particular dance to perform at the beginning of the Homecoming game against Hillsboro. The crisp autumn weather added to the excitement of the evening.

With her game face on, Freshman Amber Pence concentrates on nailing the right moves for a hoop routine. She spent plenty of time this year practicing at school and at home with her twin to dance her personal best. "I love that with drill team I've gotten the chance to overcome my fear of dancing in front of other people," Pence shared.

With arms outstretched, the Aristokats prepare to turn a pirouette during a jazz routine to the song "Hot Girls" at a pep rally. It took hours of practice to perfect this difficult technique but it was time well spent. "Adding more difficult dance moves to our routines make them more fun to do and watch," said sophomore Ceara Swille.

Leading by example, sophomore major Courtni Franks breaks down the counts as she teaches the complicated hoop routine to her young team. With hours of practice, this performance turned out to be a huge success at the Homecoming game. Franks really enjoyed this dance and teaching it to the rest of the team.

This school year presented many challenges for the Aristokat drill team. The girls started out with a setback due to the team consisting of only underclassmen dancers, but the girls learned quickly and worked hard to get their dances to where they needed to be. Sophomores Lieutenant Ceara Swille and Major Courtni Franks lead the team this year as they overcame the obstacles of leading such a young team while managing to perfect their routines. "It's hard work, but I enjoy having authority and responsibility to the team," shares Swille about her position on the team. The Aristokats have put in a lot of time and effort into learning and perfecting their routines. This year, doing so was more of a challenge because the team as a whole were younger and some less experienced than last year. They overcame that obstacle, however, and came together as one united group. They brought home a grand champion trophy from their dance camp over the summer and a few of them received medals and blue ribbons.

At each football game, the Aristokats were there, cheering on our football team and prepared to dance at halftime for the entertainment of the crowd. Pep rallies were also a big deal for these girls. In addition to dancing the routines, they also had to join in the fun by dancing with the band at both pep rallies and games. All this catching up had to be done during the one period of class they had to practice and stretch to maintain their flexibility. Despite these many setbacks, the girls worked hard and got the job done.

Wildcat cheerleaders pump up the crowd at games]

The new year brought many surprises for the Wildcats. Overcoming many obstacles, the cheerleaders still managed to maintain their spirit and pump up their fans. Over the summer, these girls represented the school at the National Cheerleaders Association (NCA) summer camp held at Tarleton State University. This year they received many awards such as: all superior ribbons in their evaluations and both our junior varsity and varsity squads were nominated to try out for top team. During football season, the cheerleaders could be found practicing hard to perfect their routines for the upcoming pep rallies and games. When football playoffs rolled around, both the varsity and junior varsity squads had to be prepared to travel at any time. "We were very excited because we were afraid that we wouldn't make it to playoffs this year and it's our senior year," replied senior captain Brittany McPartlin. During basketball season, the cheerleaders worked hard at making up and practicing many basketball cheers. At every home basketball game, they showed off their Wildcat and Lady Kat spirit by cheering for both the girls' and boys' teams every Tuesday and Friday nights. When basketball playoffs started, the cheerleaders followed the teams to support and cheer them on as they worked hard to beat the opposing teams they were playing against. Keeping moral high helped drive the teams to play harder and achieve a win. The KHS cheerleaders were a very devoted group of young ladies that dedicate their time throughout the year to support our teams.

Caught in mid-stride, junior Ashley Alviar enthusiastically supports the Wildcats by cheering at a varsity football game. Cheers like this are meant to get the crowd riled up in supporting their teams. When asked what she enjoys most about cheerleading, Alviar replied "I love stunting and getting the crowd involved."

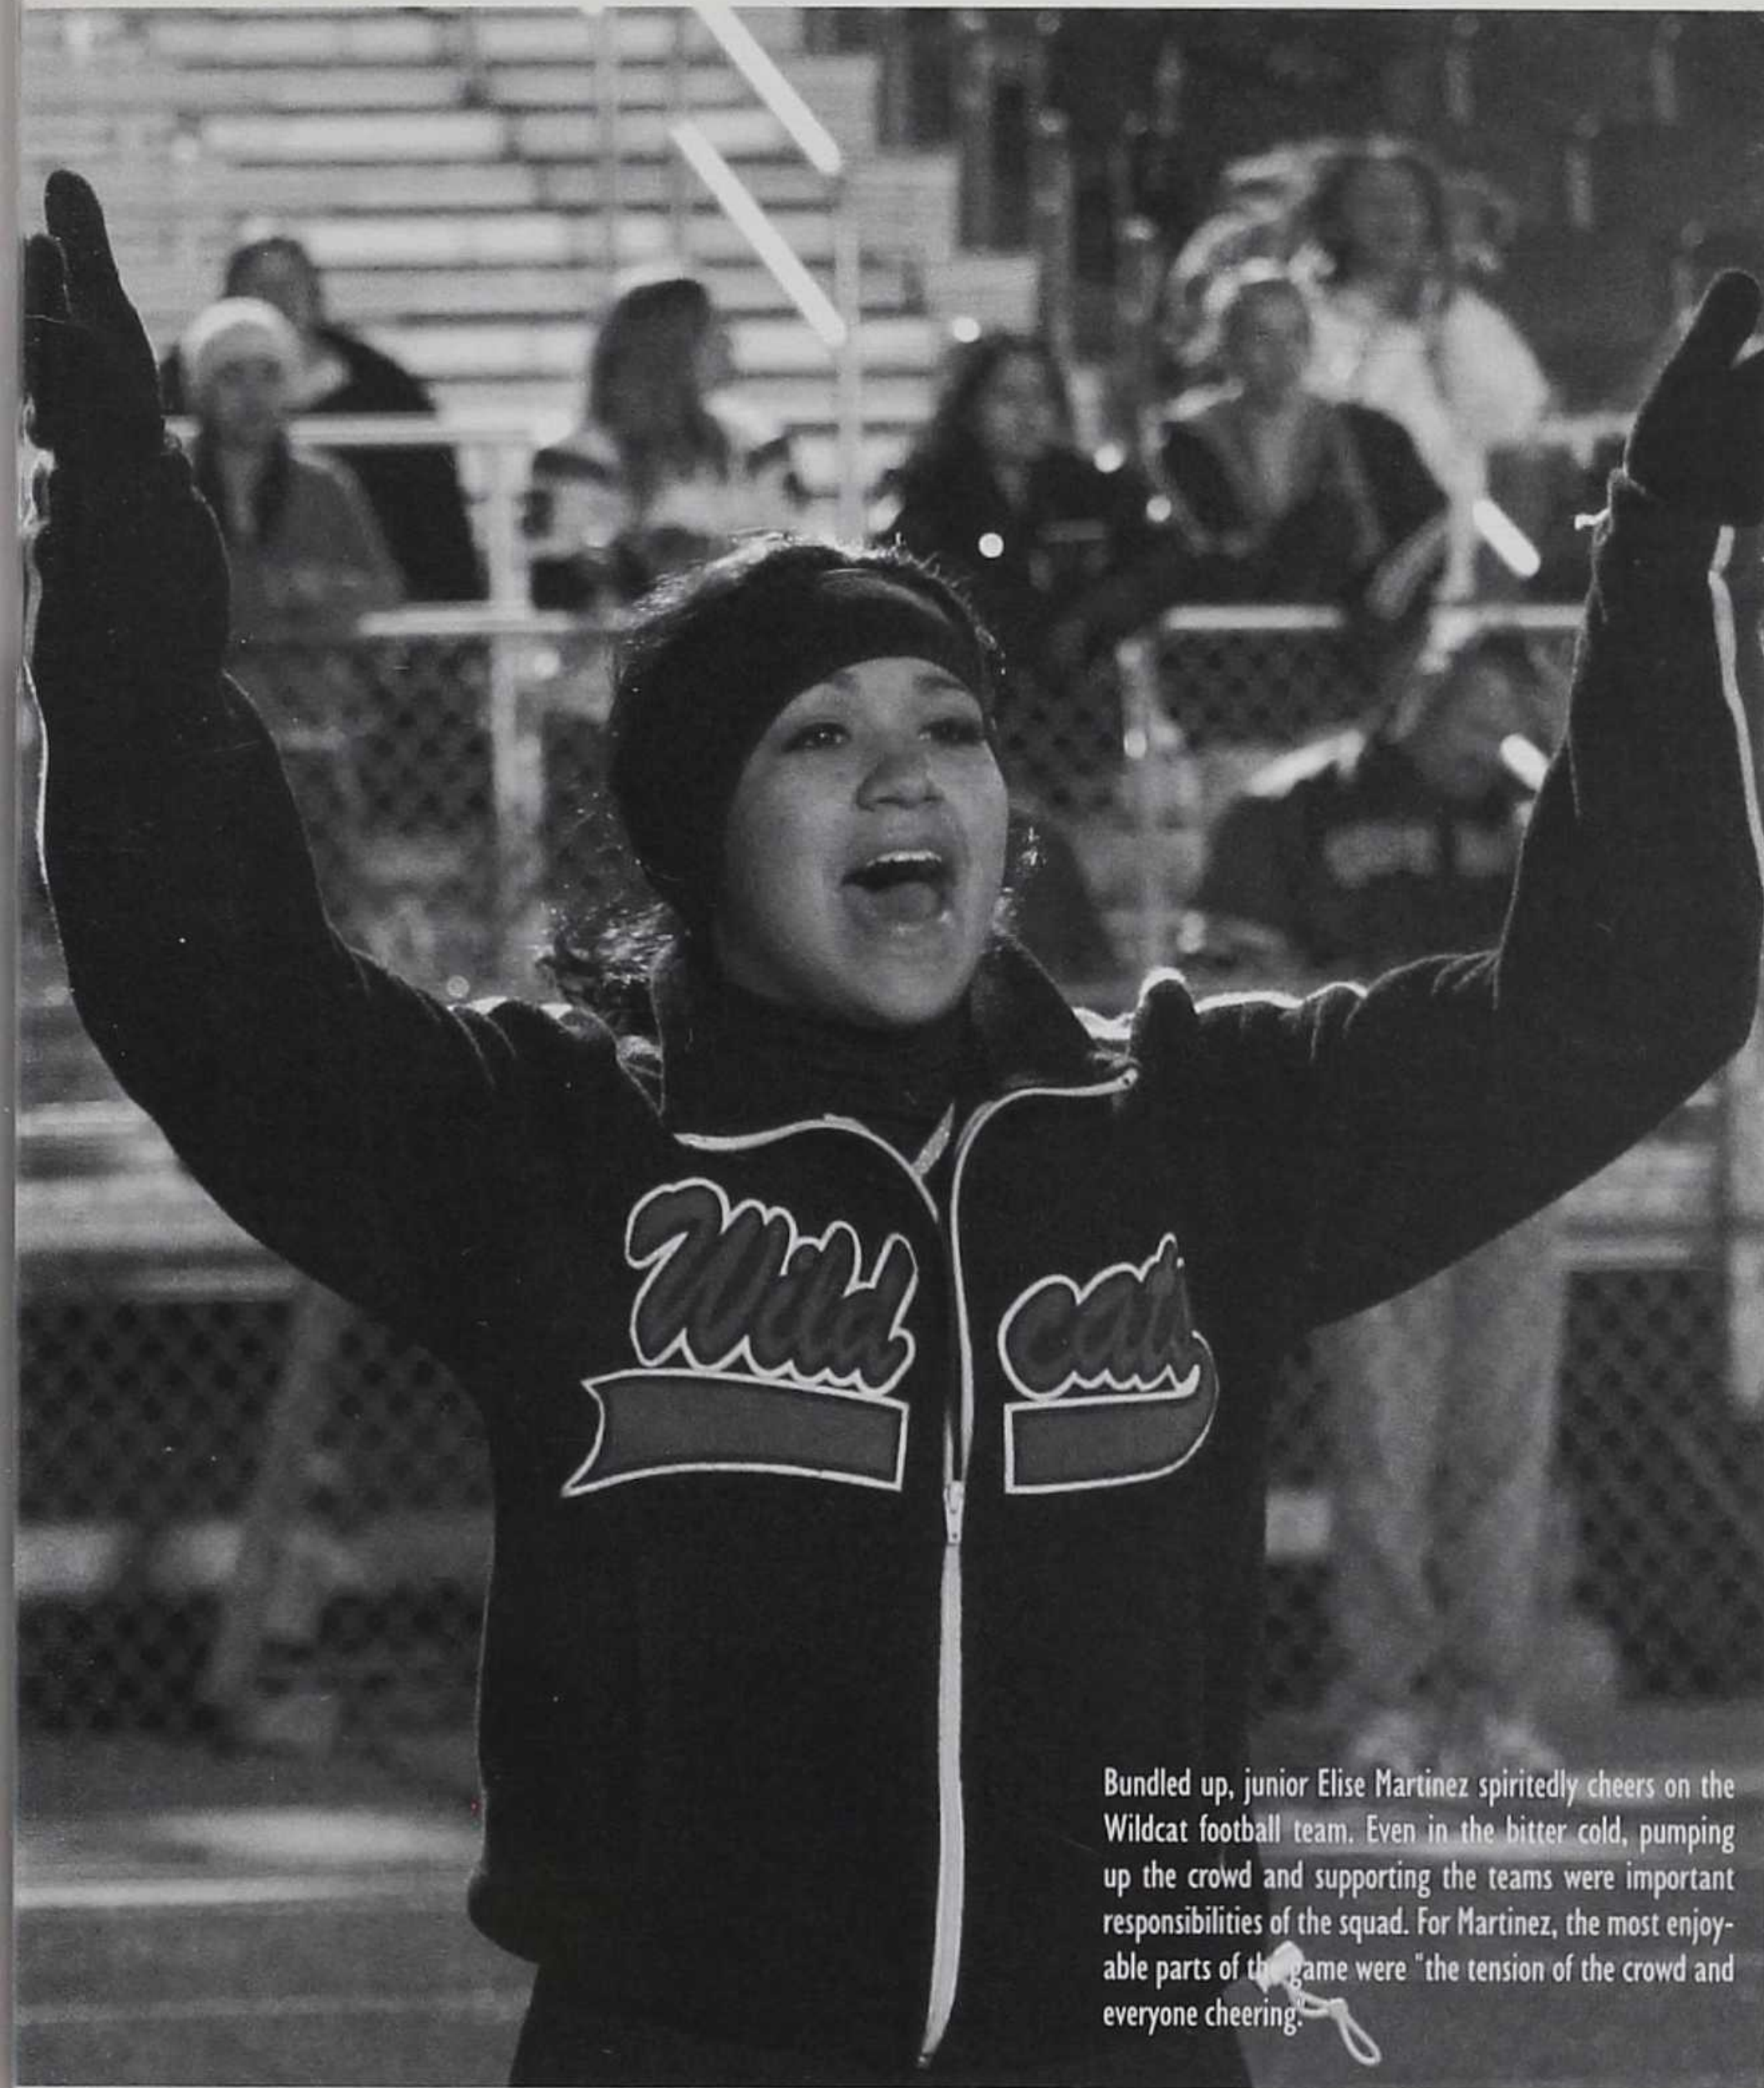

Showing their strength, the varsity cheerleading squad does push-ups after the football team scores a touchdown. It has always been a tradition to do push-ups matching the points on the scoreboard. "I love cheering at football games and supporting our boys," commented senior Amanda McKissick.

Bundled up, junior Elise Martinez spiritedly cheers on the Wildcat football team. Even in the bitter cold, pumping up the crowd and supporting the teams were important responsibilities of the squad. For Martinez, the most enjoyable parts of the game were "the tension of the crowd and everyone cheering."

With pom-poms waving in the air, senior Carrie Dayton shows off her school spirit while pumping up the crowd at a pep rally. Dayton's favorite part about cheerleading included "learning new dances and performing them at pep rallies and football games." Every home football game, the cheerleaders coordinated an exciting pep rally filled with cheers, dancing, games, and an anticipated performance by Willie.

Flying high, sophomore Abbey Wemhoner flawlessly executes a scorpion in a stunt at the junior varsity football game against West. Stunting has always been an entertaining part of the football games for both the cheerleaders and the fans. "I like the adrenaline rush and the attention that I get when I'm up in the air," commented Wemhoner.

Since I was 10 years old I have been playing basketball; the name of the team I was on was called the Running Mavs. I definitely want to play college basketball after I graduate. If I don't get hurt, I would like to play professional basketball.

Demonstrating his flexibility and strength, junior Raphael Brooks extends over the opponent for the rebound during a district game. When asked about his team, Brooks responded, "It's not just a group of guys it's more like a family when we are on the court."

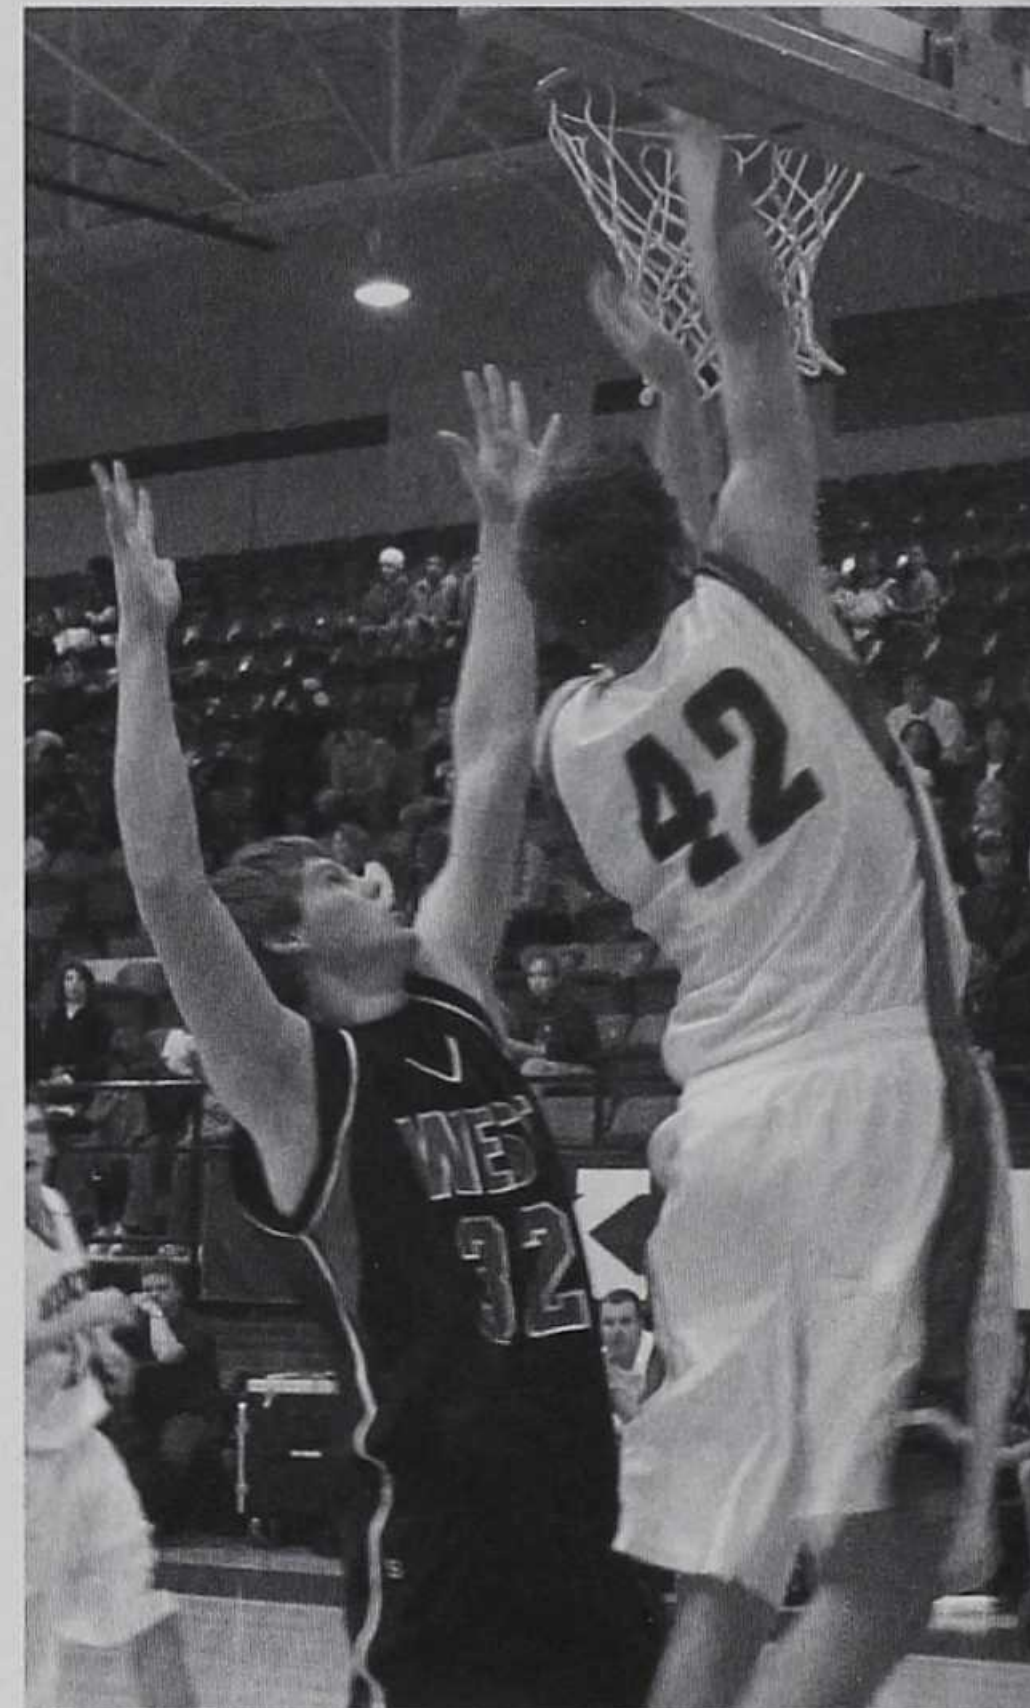

With perfect form, junior Kevin Tran shoots a free throw against West High School in one of the last Junior Varsity games. "My favorite part of the season is playoffs because it's the most exciting part of the season," Tran said. Since he was ten years old, Tran played basketball and he wanted to continue to pursue his basketball dream.

Basketball is a very intense and exhilarating game to be apart of. You have to be able to run fast, think fast, and be ready for anything. The game of basketball is full of mental obstacles that the players must be ready to face, and they must have plenty of endurance. The talented players that made up the Wildcat basketball team possessed all of the qualities that must be present to be a winning team. Being in a tougher district this year, with more teams to play against, brought forth many challenges. All of the boys on the team had a passion for the game and that was one of the many things that kept them motivated. "I like basketball because it keeps your adrenaline flowing the whole time that you are out on the court because the game never stops," commented senior Chase Johnson.

Besides loving the game, they had a will to win. That was another thing that kept the team motivated throughout the season. These guys spent everyday during and after school practicing for their big game that they had that week. During district play, the basketball team went undefeated with a 10-0 record. In the UIL Class 3-A Region 2 quarterfinals, the Wildcats came out on top winning 81-79 in overtime defeating the defending state champions from Dallas Roosevelt. After a long hard struggle, Tyler Chapel Hill came out on top and beat the Wildcats at the Class 3-A Region 2 Semi-finals game. Although this was a hard time for our team, everyone still had something to be proud about. The 2006-07 Wildcats made Kennedale history with their trip to the regional tournament.

Flying up and over the competition, junior Brad Hubenak goes for the lay-up to help them gain another district win in the game against West. "At the beginning of the game, I'm very nervous. After a few minutes of playing, all the nerves go away and I start focusing on what's happening on the court," commented Hubenak.

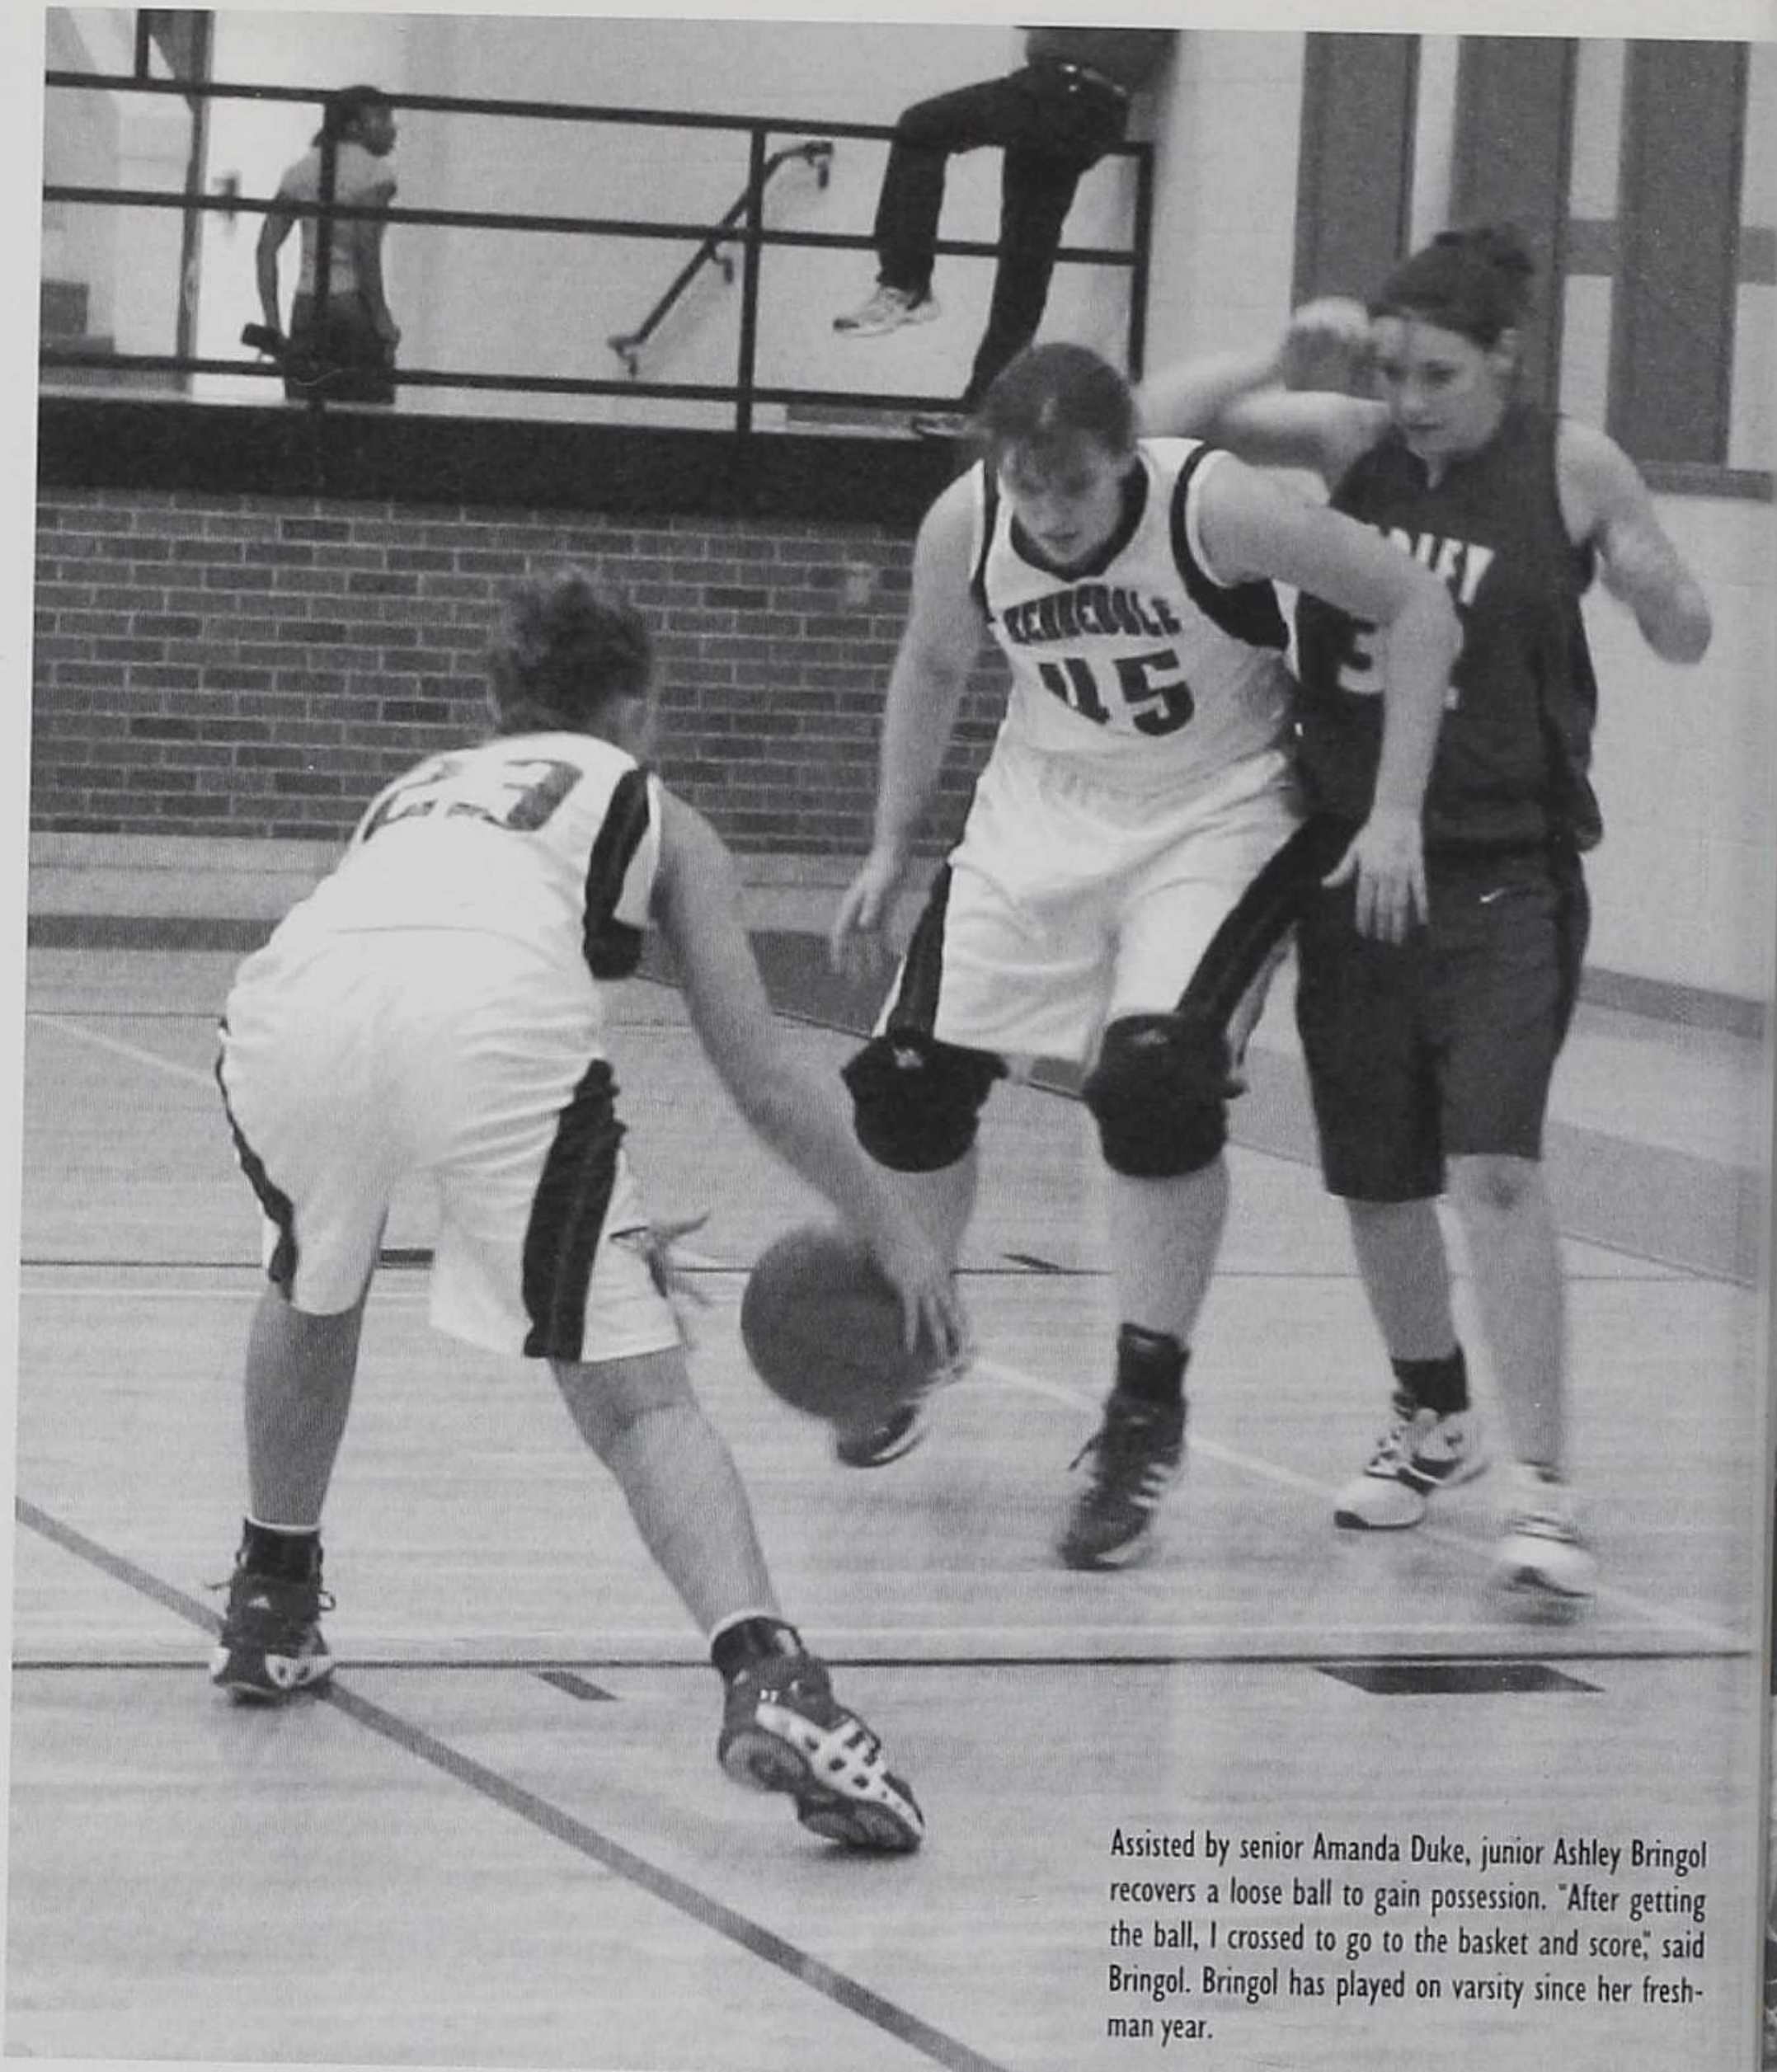

Deeply focused on the net, junior Brian Davis prepares himself to ace the free throw. "During the game I don't really think. I just play and I don't get mad when I get fouled. We were very happy to have a 10-0 record in district. I plan on doing the same thing next year but going all the way," commented Davis.

Lifting high off the ground, sophomore Keenan Bennett scores another two points against the West Trojans with his jump shot. "While in the game, I'm not really thinking a whole lot. A lot of things just happen on instinct, and I don't actually know that it's going to happen," explained Bennett.

Assisted by senior Amanda Duke, junior Ashley Bringol recovers a loose ball to gain possession. "After getting the ball, I crossed to go to the basket and score," said Bringol. Bringol has played on varsity since her freshman year.

Pausing in the triple-threat position, junior Samantha Mahnesmith prepares to either pass, dribble, or shoot. "I paused to see how to get past the girl, but then I remembered she can't stop me," said Mahnesmith. It was this optimistic attitude that took the girls all the way to playoffs.

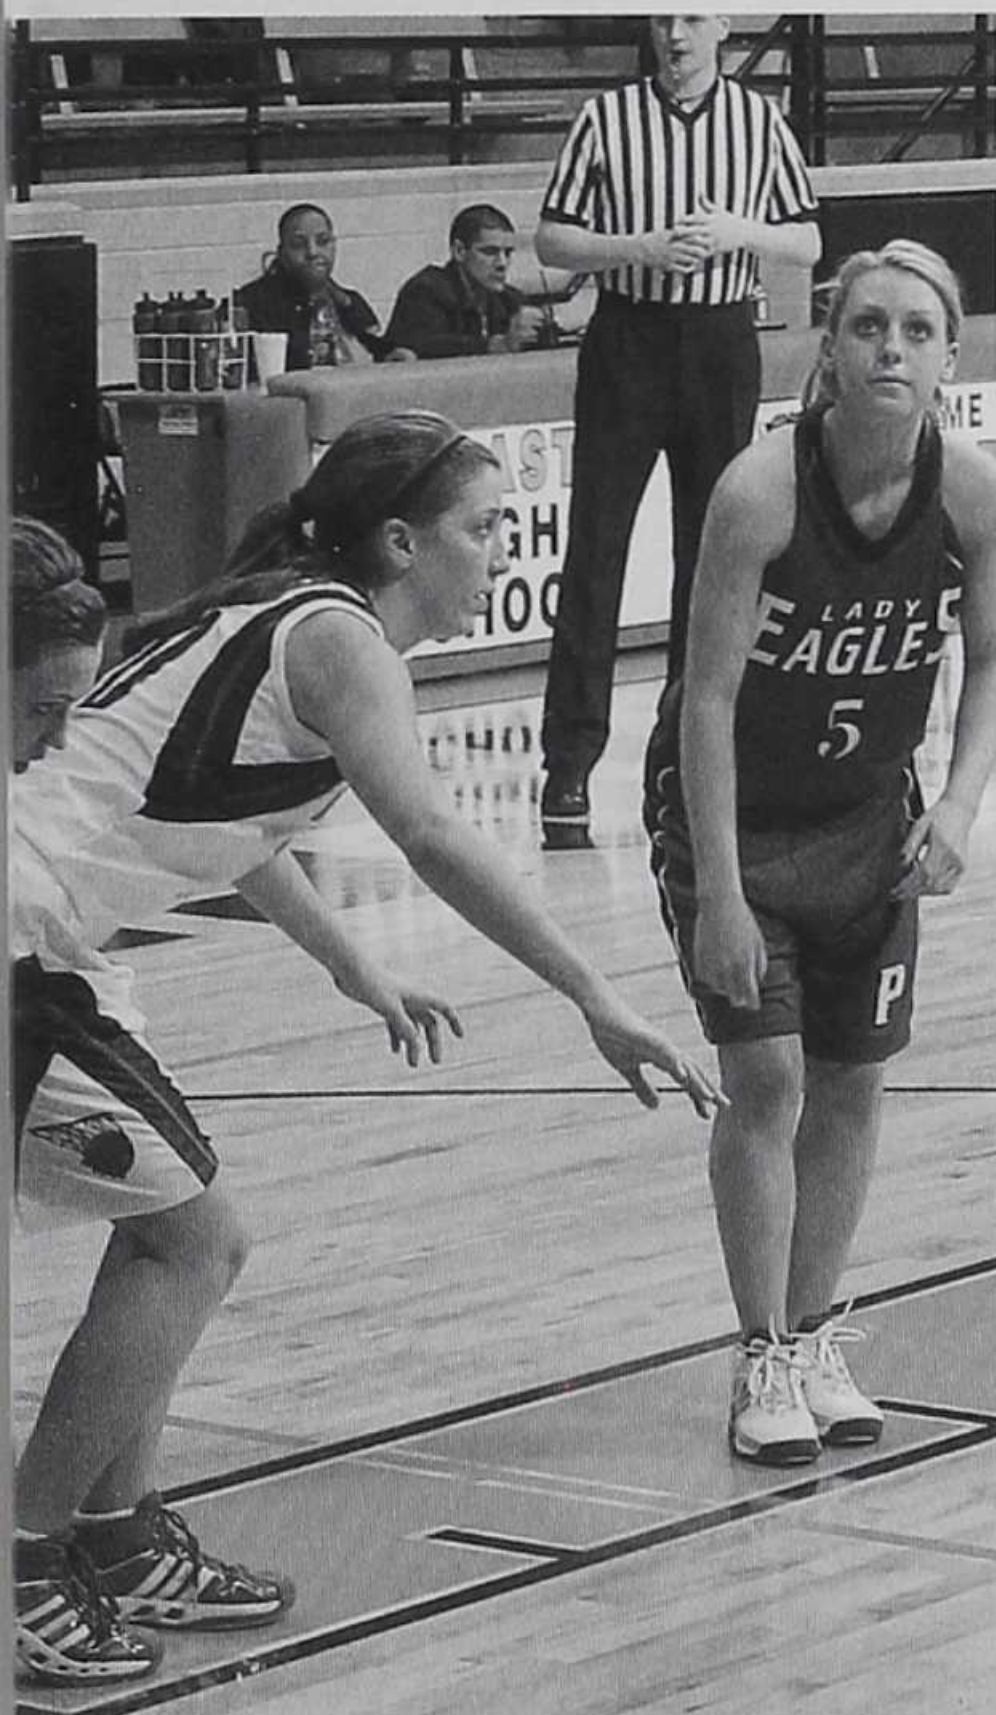

[new HEIGHTS

Lady Kats dominate in district with an incredible record]

Coming out, senior Kristi Marshall keeps an eye on the ball as she prepares to go for the rebound during a free throw. Marshall has played basketball at Kennedale since her freshman year and was a crucial part in the team's victory over the Lady Eagles during this game.

This season the Lady Kats experienced many new changes including new opponents due to the realignment in district, a new head coach, and player. "Coming in as a new coach is always a tough job especially if he's bringing a daughter, but my dad came right in and coached how he knew how," said his daughter, varsity point guard, junior Destini Hughes. "Coach Hughes made sure we were in top condition this year," said junior Samantha Mahnesmith. "We definitely learned a lot from Coach Hughes," said junior Georgia O'Brien. The three teams, Freshmen, JV, and varsity, were all able to adjust to these new aspects and grow both as players and come together as a team. "We became closer and believed in and supported each other," said junior Victoria Autrey. It was this dedication and togetherness that helped them dominate in district play and be a heavy contender during playoffs. "We started off knowing this season would be tough, but the most enjoyable part was playoffs. Playoffs involved more challenging games that allowed us to play harder and work better as a team. Coach Hughes' different coaching style was also an enjoyable addition to this year's season," said junior DaShane Lars. "My favorite part of this year's season was winning. Winning proved to everyone that we were not overrated," said junior Ashley Bringol. The varsity team was definitely not overrated with a record of 15-3 during mid season and advancing all the way to the Regional tournament. Overall the Lady Kats dedication paid off, and the team did an amazing job.

During a quick timeout, Coach Vance Hughes utilizes his time by drawing out plays to help the team visualize it in their heads. Hughes brought many new and innovative ideas to Kennedale that were executed throughout the season. His coaching techniques led the Lady Kats to many victories this season.

Jumping in the opponent's face, junior Destini Hughes attempts to block a throw-in from the opposing team. Hughes has played basketball since the age of four and was being heavily recruited by numerous universities including Texas A&M, University of Texas, and Baylor University during her junior year.

This was Kennedale's first time to defeat the Joshua Owls with a goal by Charley Gonzalez and a shutout from goalie Lauren Woods.

Using her body to shield the ball, junior Ashley Alviar dribbles past an opponent. "In order to win the ball you have to be aggressive," said outside halfback Alviar. Outside midfielders have to be able to run up and down the side of the field throughout the game. Being well conditioned is a must to play this position.

[Lady Kats prove to be heavy contenders in District 9-4A

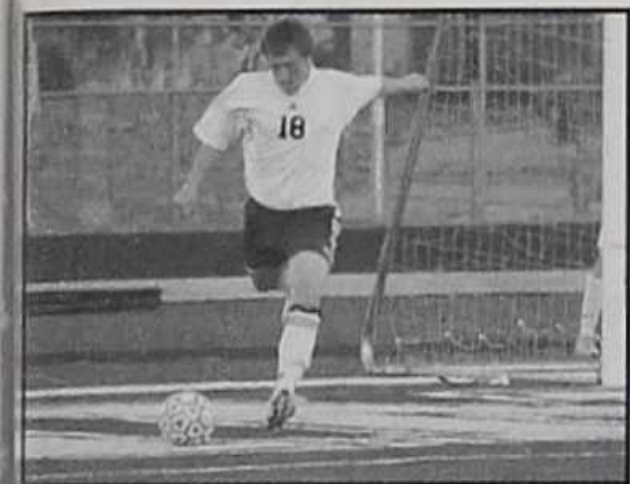

No longer a team to be taken lightly, the Lady Kats proved this season to be a tough team to beat. With a record of 9-6-3 and 4th place overall in 4-A District play, an incredible accomplishment for Kennedale, a 3-A school, they proved to be an intimidating opponent. Leading the way were senior captains Ashley Schramme and Stephanie Baird. Schramme and Baird were a part of the inaugural team back in 2004, and are the first to graduate from Kennedale after playing all four years of their high school careers. Also a veteran from the beginning, Coach Ashley Coffman has played a huge role in the lives of the team members, and many players were heartbroken to hear that she will no longer be coaching next year. "I'm really sad to see her leave," commented junior Jena Burge. "she has brought this team so far in only a few years and we are all very grateful. None of us would have received the chance to play or acquired the many joyful memories formed during the past seasons." "We all enjoyed playing this past season," commented junior veteran of three years, Ashley Alviar, "We've never had a team that could have so much fun together, both on and off the field. I know we were all very proud of our accomplishments this season, and we will all miss Coach Coffman very much."

Using her lightning speed and awesome skills, freshman Brooke Farmer fakes out two opponents and dribbles down the field towards goal. "I normally play defense, but having an opportunity to score was a lot of fun," said Farmer. Farmer was a great contribution to the team this year scoring a total of 12 goals.

Preparing to shoot the ball, senior Tony Alvarez takes a few steps back before kicking the ball in order to get more power behind it. "You miss 100% of the shots you don't take," theorized Alvarez. Alvarez, a first team All-District selection, contributed to the team both offensively and defensively.

Fighting for the ball, senior David Ramirez breaks free from his defender and dribbles away from pressure in a home game against Crowley. "It was good while it lasted—I will miss it a lot. I'll miss playing with my teammates the most," said Ramirez about playing at KHS the past four years.

Beating his opponent with a swift move, sophomore Ryan Pugh takes the ball down the field in a game against Mexia. The Wildcats came out on top in this tournament match beating them 1-0. "I'm glad I could contribute to the first win of the season," said Pugh, an All-District Honorable Mention.

Commencing a new season led by yet another new coach, the boys' soccer team adjusted to the third coach in the past four years. Despite the numerous changes, the team did not give up and put forth effort that developed lots of potential and demanded respect. Starting off the season by competing in numerous scrimmages and tournaments, the team gained useful experience before starting play in a very challenging 4-A District. This year also played host to the very first junior varsity soccer team in Kennedale history. The addition of the JV team allowed for the sport to grow in size and popularity. With the bad luck of numerous injuries to key varsity starters such as Ryan Johnson, Matthew Flaherty, and Ryan Pugh, JV players were called upon to step up and play on varsity. "I was very upset about being unable to play," commented Johnson. Despite the many setbacks, the team continued to grow in both skill and numbers and even beat their archrival, Everman, in an exciting game. The team will only continue to improve more and more throughout the coming years.

Team remains dedicated despite many setbacks]

Taking a deep breath, freshman silver medalist TaPorcha King focuses on lifting the bar in the dead lift competition. King won two medals this year in the 165 lb. weight class. "Coach Lowery really taught us that strength and hard work could help us accomplish anything," shared King.

Getting ready for a lift, junior Kyle Hinder makes preparations to insure the best lift and his safety. "Lifting a lot of weight usually doesn't hurt when wearing the proper attire, but I just try not to think about it," commented Hinder, a third-year lifter.

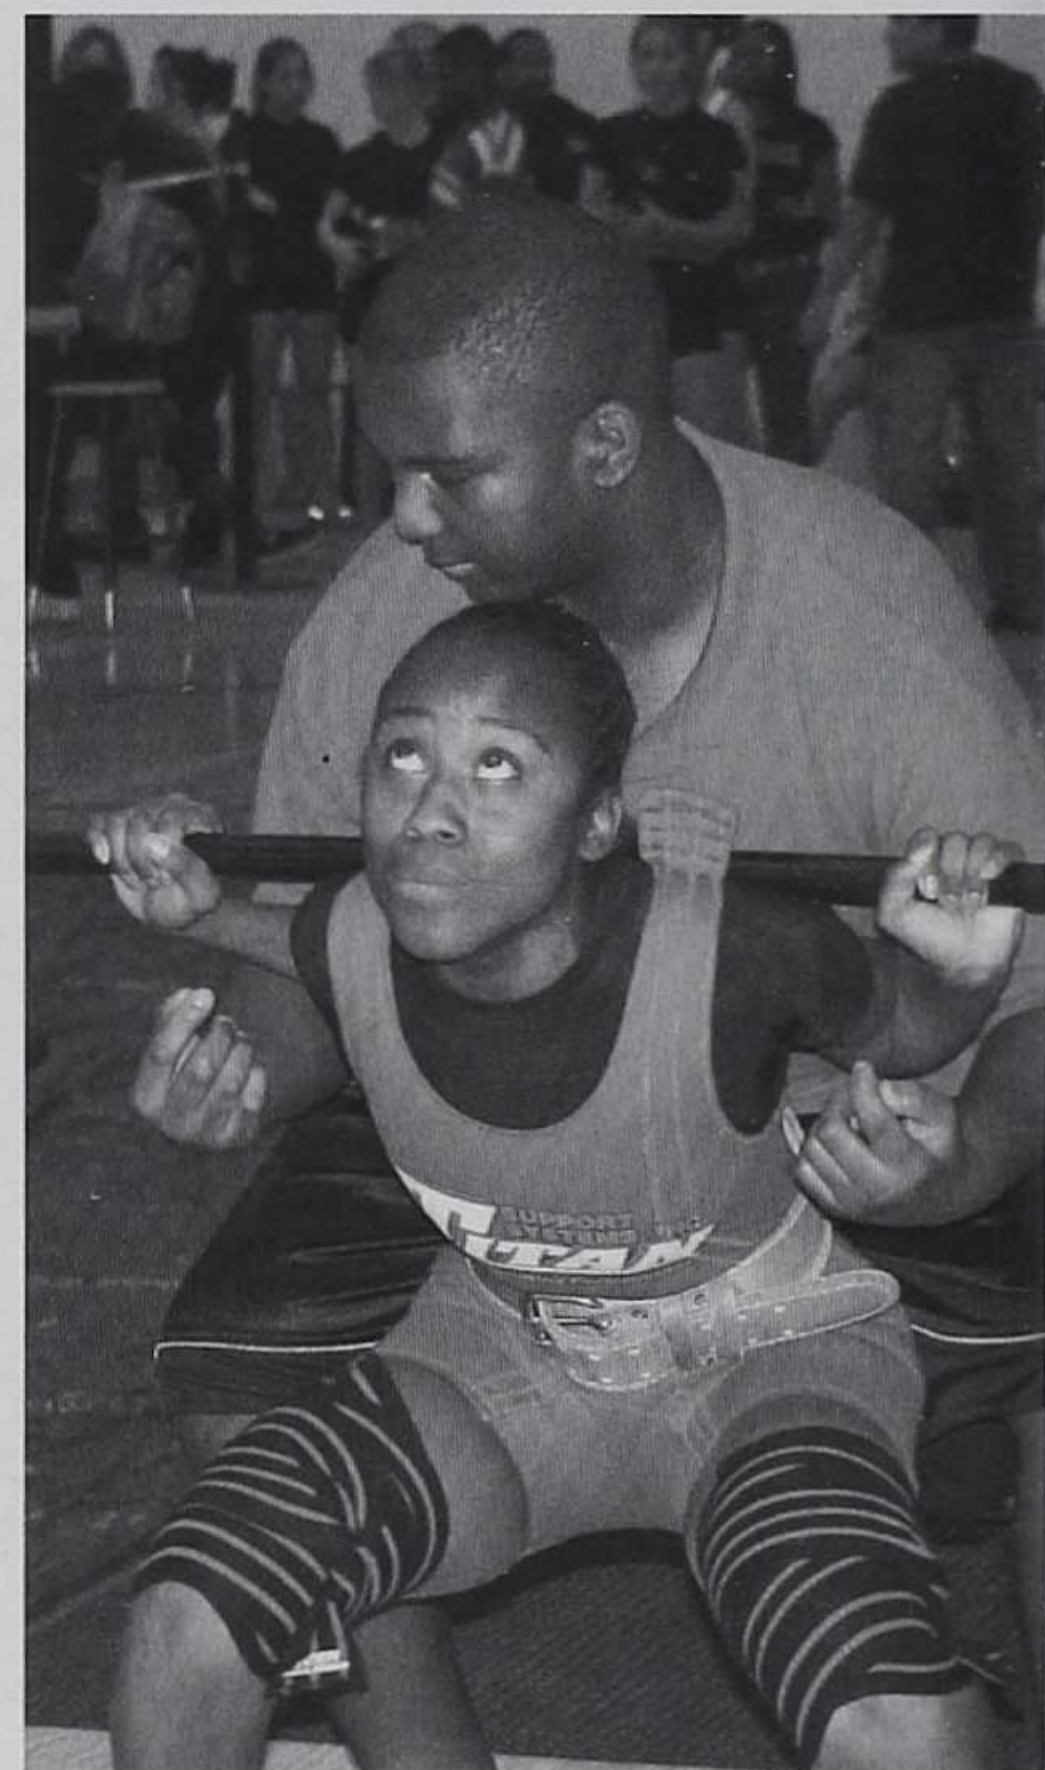

Training for the great competitions ahead, senior Janet Robles does an exercise to increase strength and balance. When asked about her years powerlifting at KHS, Robles replied, "My best memory of this year was when Coach Lowery split his pants when demonstrating an exercise."

Some teams set it in their minds to become successful. They are driven to high achievement. Their ambition is not to trample over those around them, but to step over their own pain and weakness in order to go higher and farther than ever before. These are the athletes that ruin the curve for the rest of the teams. This is the Kennedale Powerlifting team. This year's team managed to make it past its own pain and take home the State championship and all it means. Others, unaware of everything it takes to be a great powerlifter, should congratulate those who brought home the honor of winning state. Lifting the girls' team to new heights, Khadijah Campbell won the state gold medal in the 97 pound weight class. While only a handful of our students made it to the state competition in their own individual weight classes, they managed to receive enough points to win first place for the team as a whole. Those who represented our school at State for the boys were R.B. Neely, A.J. McFarland, Cedric Opondo, Joey Lucero and T.J. Sabando. Of these athletes, Sabando won first place in his 181 weight class and Lucero won second place in his own individual weight class. Sabando commented on his great success, "In the beginning of the year in powerlifting I set a goal for myself of 1400 pounds total and I beat my own goal by a total of 1425." Both Coach Lowery and Coach Bonner were tough on the powerlifting athletes, pushing them to attain their best. But with State gold medals at the end, it was obvious that their tough love was necessary.

[bending the BAR

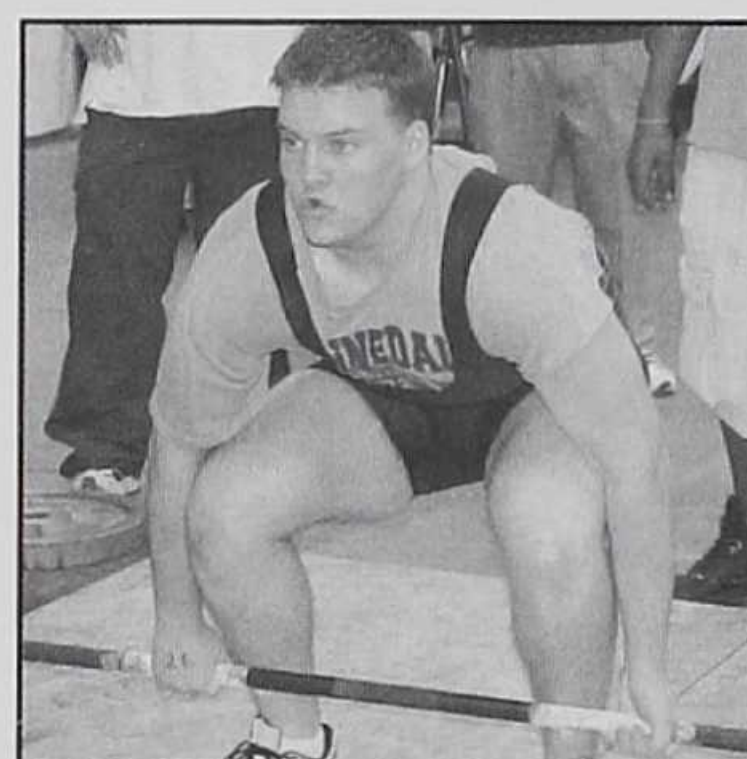

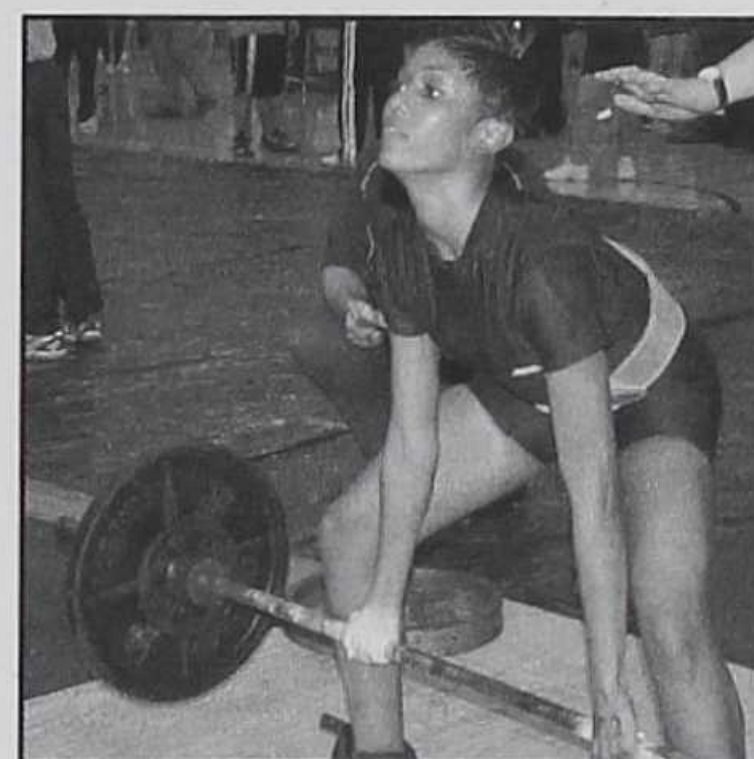

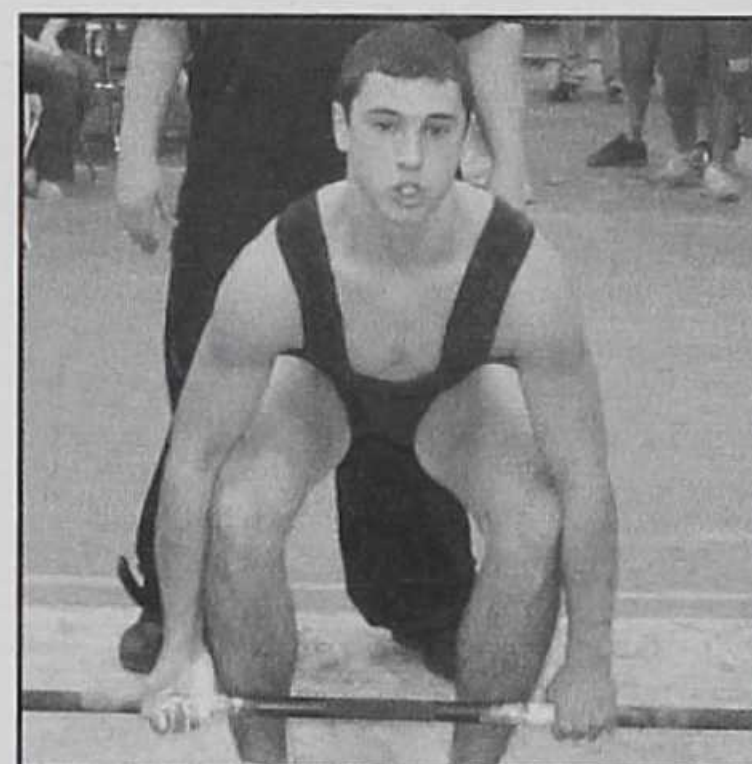

Keeping focused, senior Khadijah Campbell uses all her might to squat the weight as her spotter keeps an eye on the bar. Campbell was the only female powerlifter from Kennedale to make the journey to state, and she walked away with first place in her weight class.

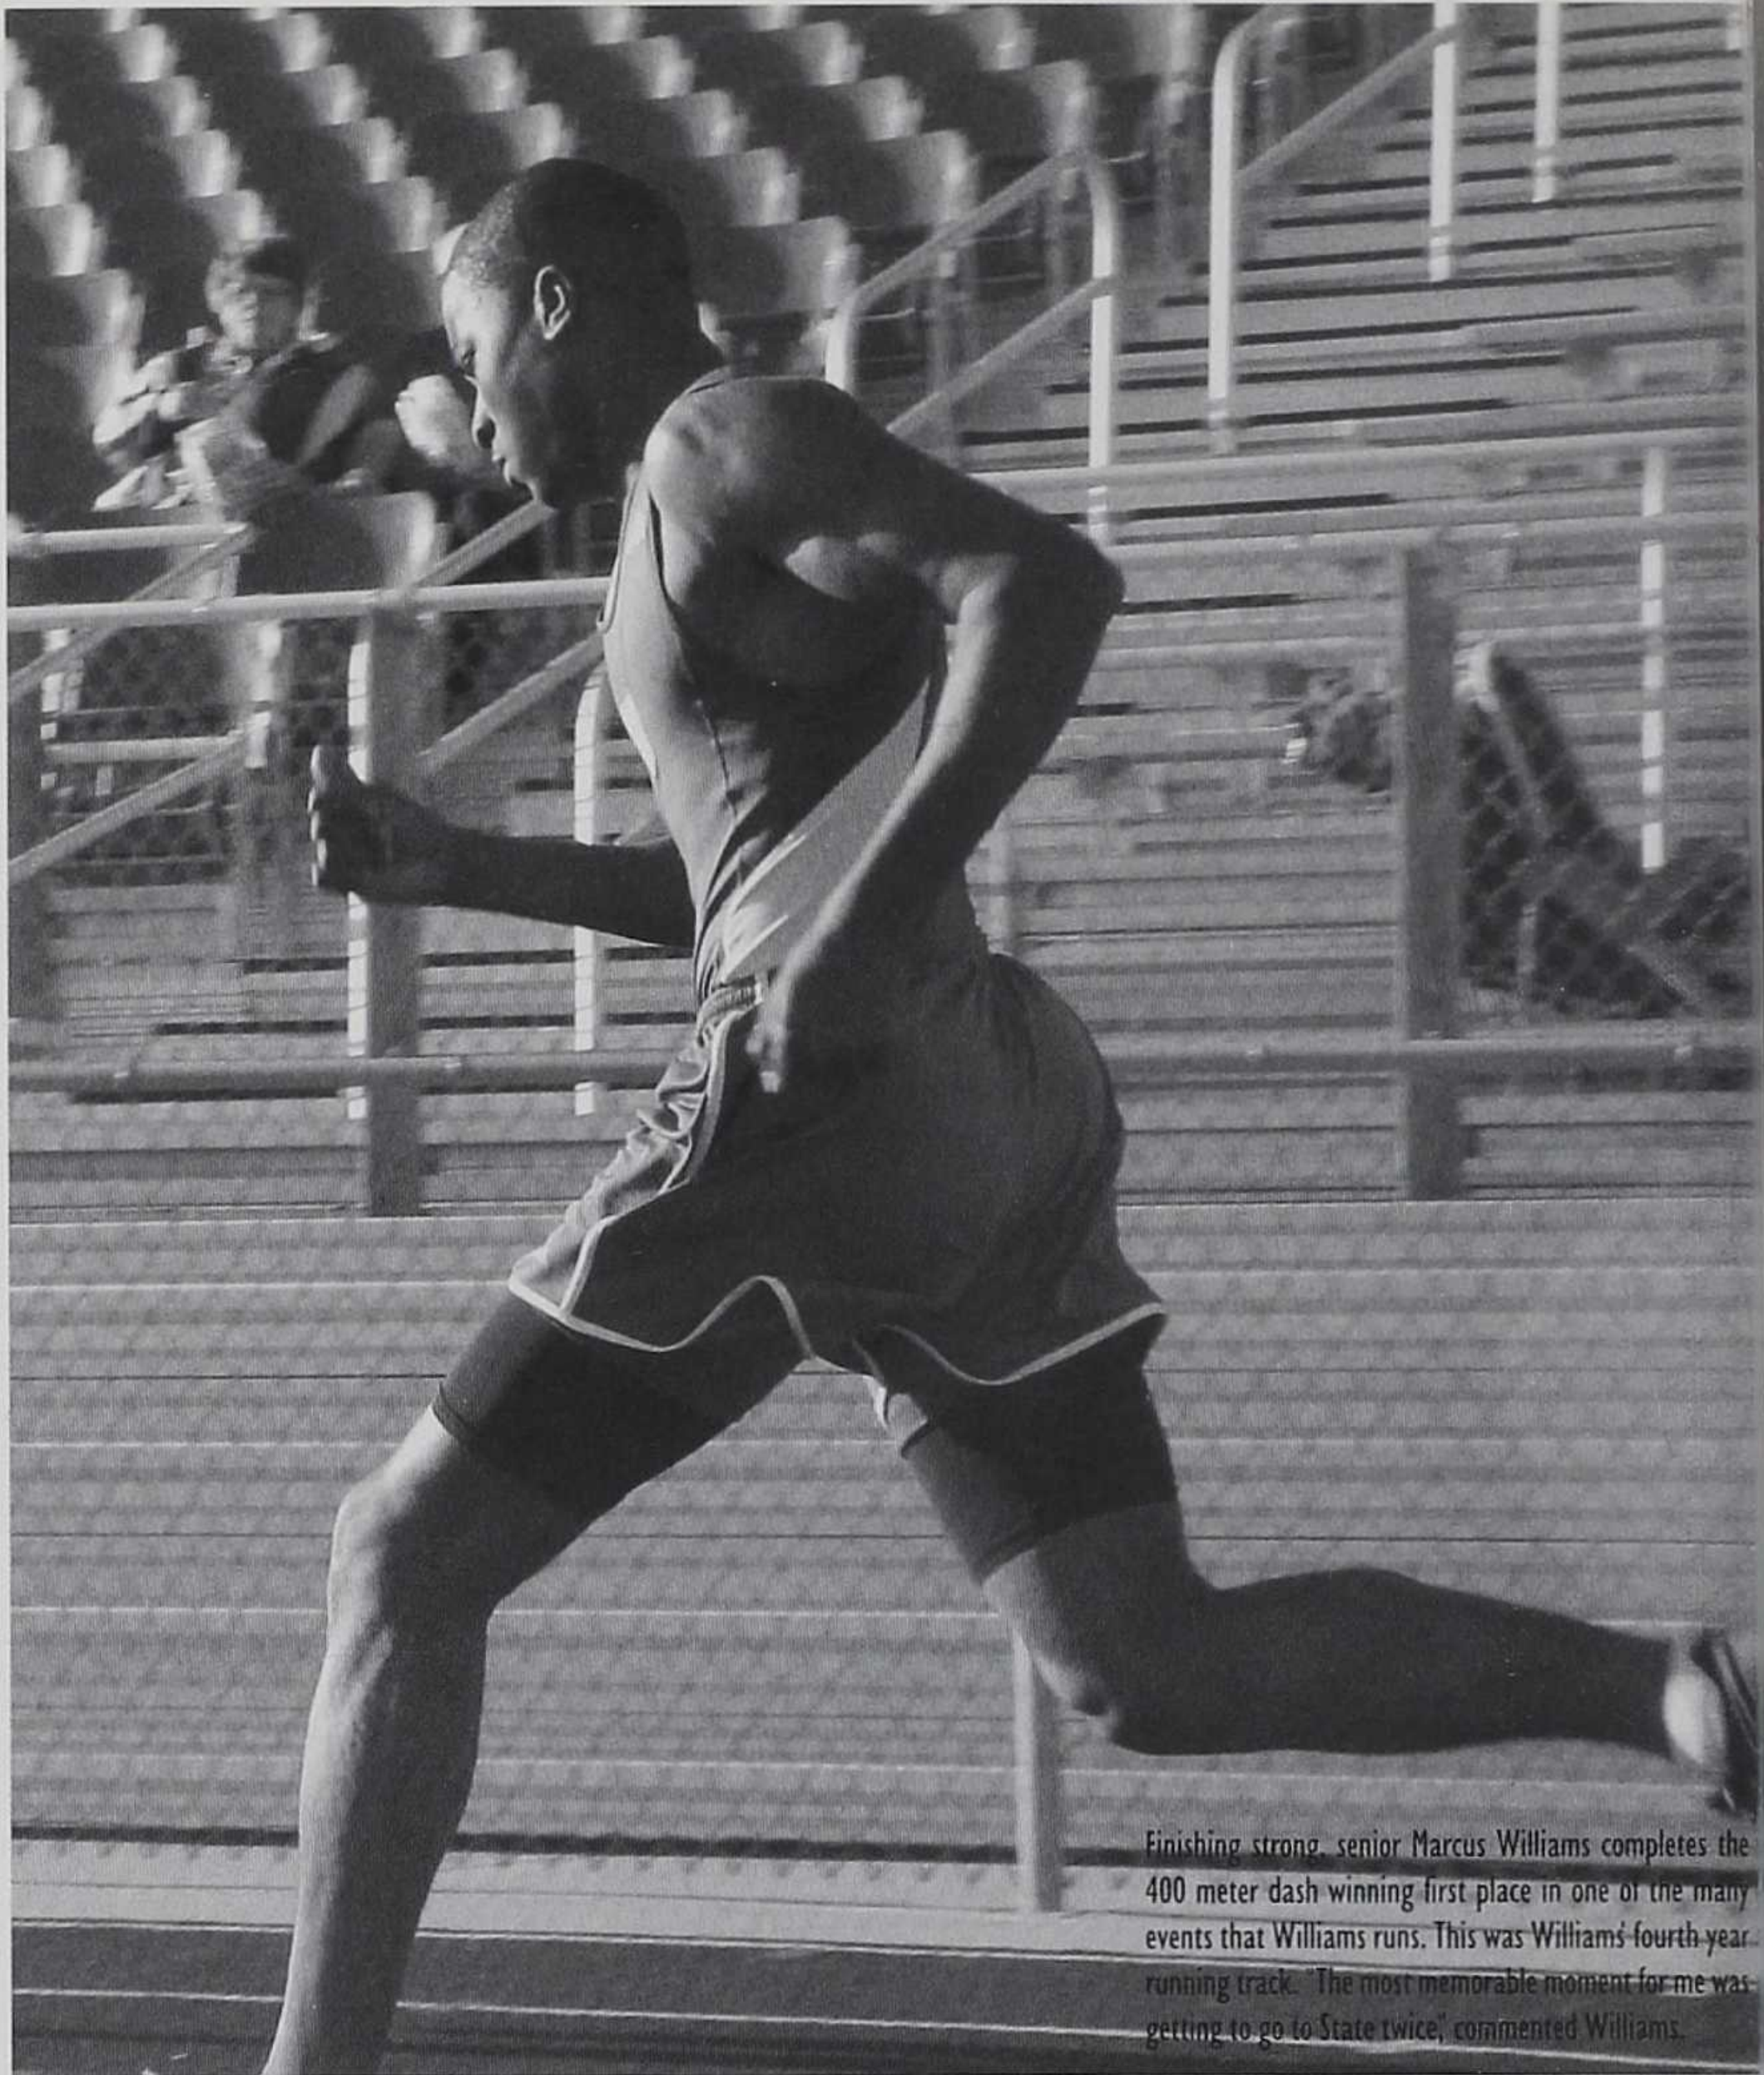

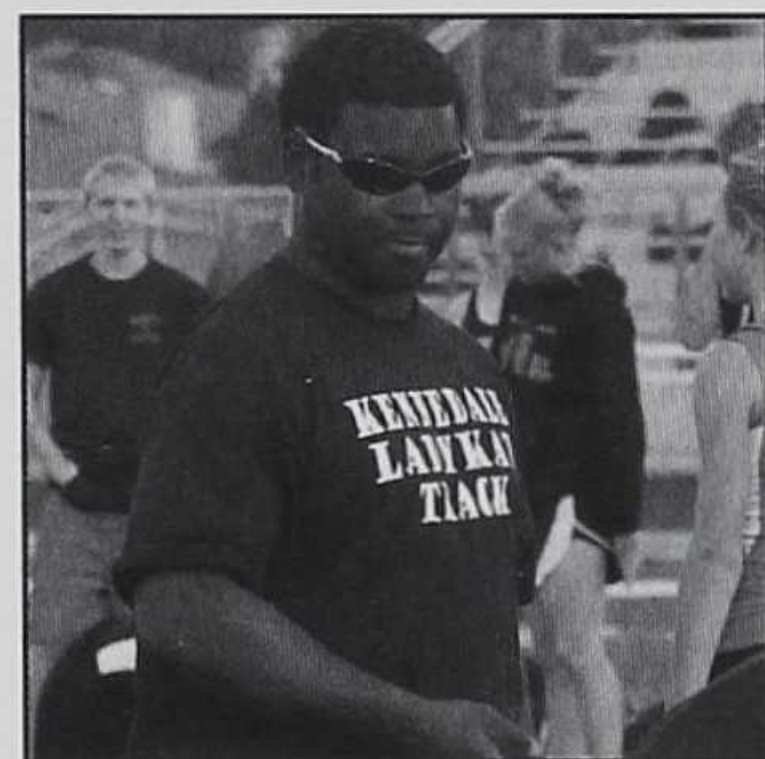

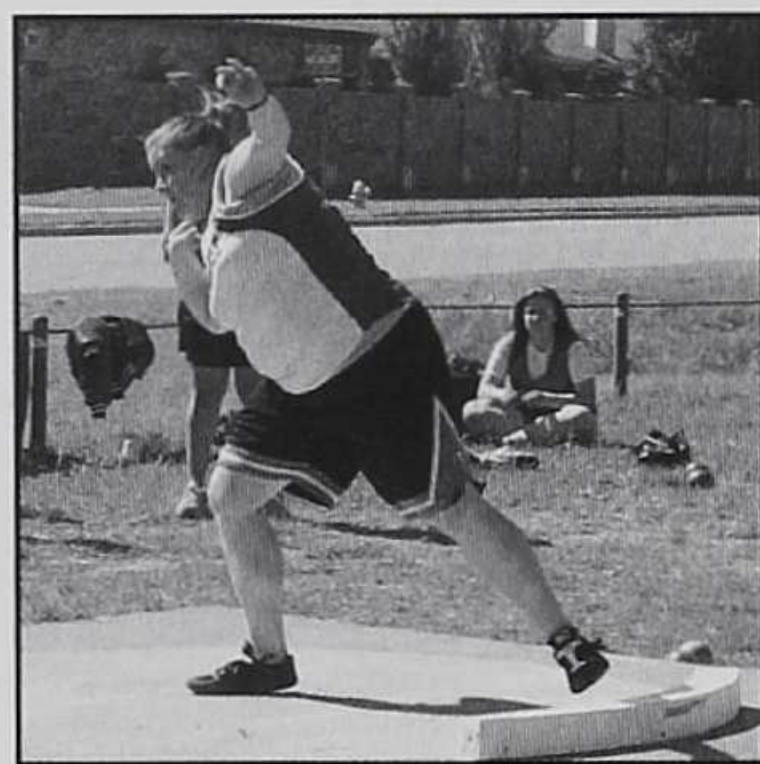

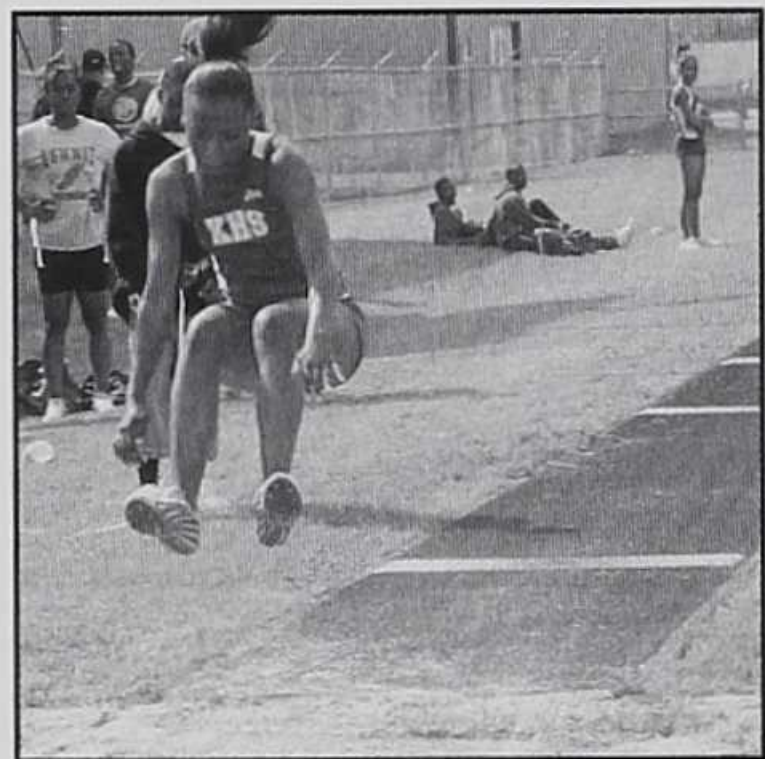

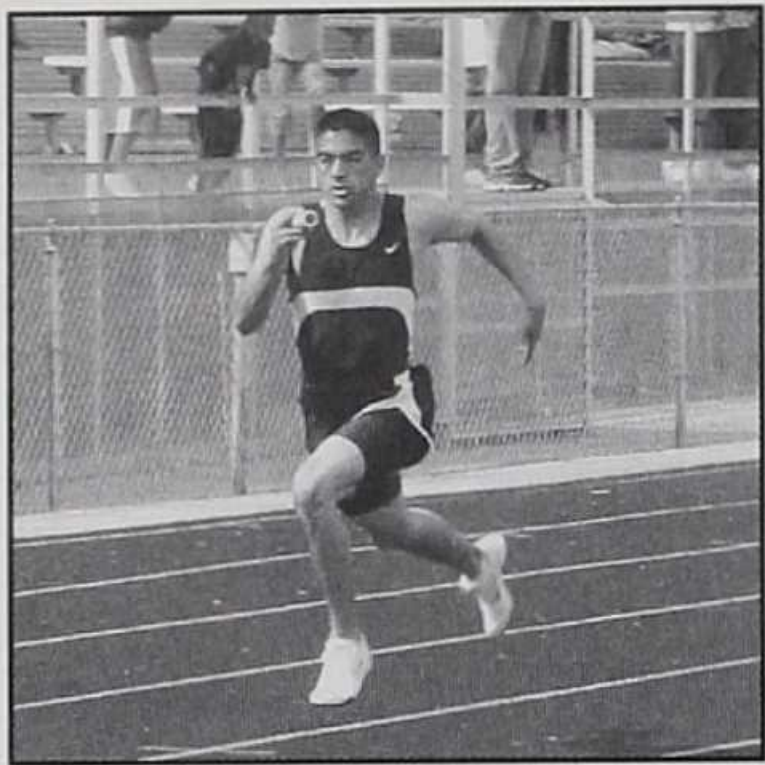

With skill and determination, T.J. Sabando deadlifts at a meet this year. Sabando commented on his motivation by saying, "Powerlifting is a great sport. It got me stronger and prepared for next year's football season. I also had fun with all of the friends."

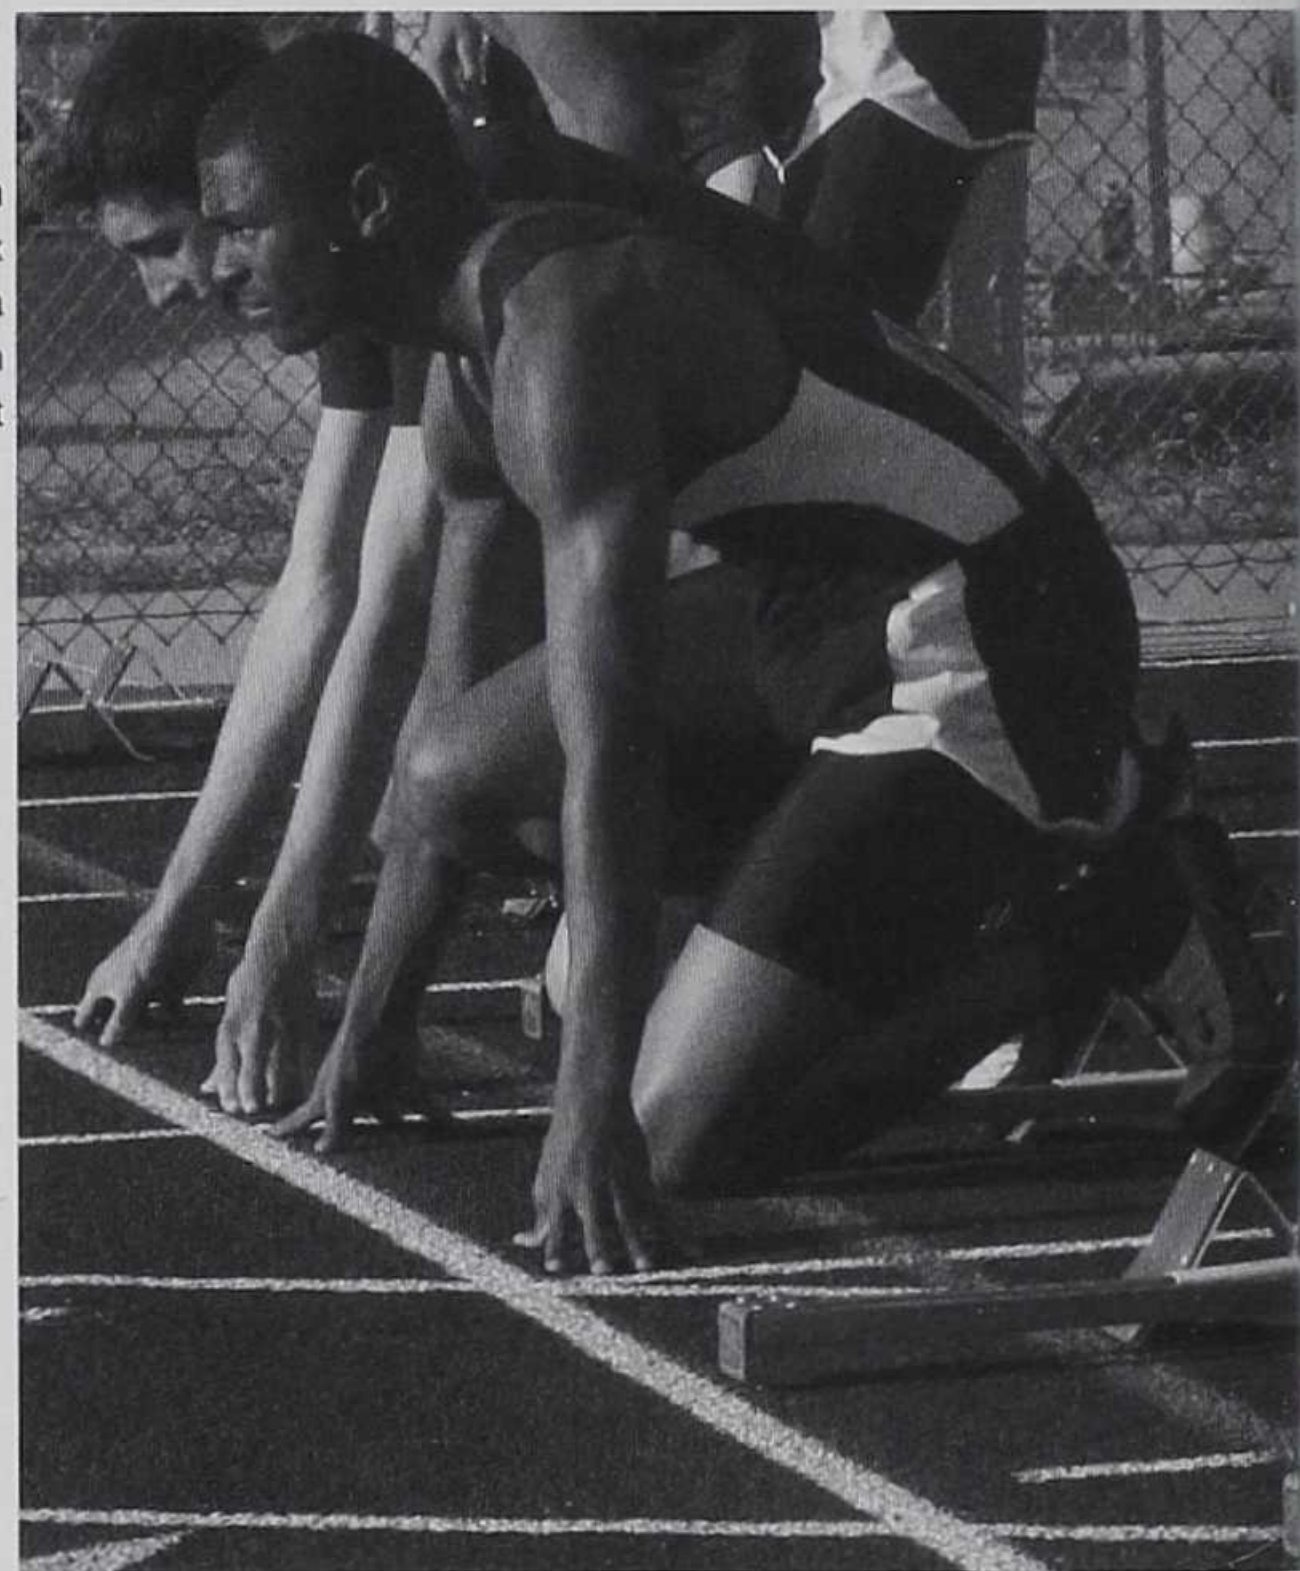

Focusing all of his energy, junior RB Neely gets ready to deadlift the weight. Neely set his mind out to become the state champ this year, and after lots of hard work and dedication, achieved this goal. "The hardest part was staying under weight," commented Neely.

Finishing strong, senior Marcus Williams completes the 400 meter dash winning first place in one of the many events that Williams runs. This was Williams' fourth year running track. "The most memorable moment for me was getting to go to State twice," commented Williams.

On his mark, junior Eric Brooks gets ready to run the 110m hurdles. When on the starting line, Brooks tried to relax and mentally prepare for the race. He explained, "I kinda zone out and think only about what I have to do...until I'm halfway through the race and I know I'm in first; then, I just listen to people cheer for me."

Track teams run for the gold at Regionals and State]

ocusing on the race, freshman Zach Neely sprints down the track in the 100 meter dash. Being a strong runner, Neely made it on varsity. "Being on varsity my freshman year is a really fun experience because it's more competition and running against people faster than you makes you run harder," said Neely.

Not every person is cut out for track. It takes both mental and physical dedication. Coach Polk pushes his athletes to reach their very best. They must practice their events by constant repetition of attempts to beat their best time. Athletes in track know how tedious this task can be. They spend every practice running endless time trials or practicing their field events. During the practice track meets prior to district, it became even more important to try their very best to see what needed to be worked on before the district meet. This dedication paid off when both the Wildcats and Lady Kats won the gold, claiming the District Championship. A number of these talented athletes moved on to Regionals and State. An impressive group of athletes represented Kennedale at the Regional Meet in Commerce including Stacia Newton, Anna Perez, Brooke Farmer, Destini Hughes, Angela King, DeShane Lars, Korlu Garteh, Khadijah Campbell, Jazzmyn Cooper, Brad Hubenak, Aaron LeBruce, Blaze Platt, Cordero Gray, Corey Mooney, Aaron Wingfield, Kasib Williams, Raphael Brooks, Eric Brooks, Marcus Ortiz, and Jeremy Black. This year the girls did not make it to Austin, but the boys' 4x100 relay, the boys' 4x200 relay, and Cordero Gray in the 100 meter dash made it all the way to State. "This is my first year to run track for a high school team. Even though basketball is my passion, I do track for fun. It also keeps me in good shape for basketball season," said junior Destini Hughes. It was a long year of hard work and in the end it all paid off.

With total ease, junior Raphael Brooks flies up and over the hurdle during his event. At the Everman meet, he achieved his best time in the 300 hurdles and won first place. "My older brother really got me into running around the seventh grade. I have been doing it ever since," commented Brooks.

Flying high, senior Cordero Gray makes his jump. The long jump was one of the many events Gray competed in during his four years running track. This year Cordero made it all the way to state in the 800 meter relay and 100 meter dash. "I can do all things through Christ who strengthens me. We are going to win state!" commented Gray.

"I just recently started throwing, and I've become really good at it, and I got the hang of it really quickly."

A swing and a hit, sophomore Chris Wegmann watches the ball sail towards the outfield. Wegmann has been playing baseball since a tee was required. Most of the time he plays left field. "I enjoy playing this position because I get to throw people out a lot," commented Wegmann.

Calling it close, sophomore David Hays makes it safely to first base after hitting the ball. "I've been playing baseball for ten years, and it is by far my favorite sport," commented Hays. "I love the exhilaration I get when I'm trying to make it to the base after hitting the ball."

Focusing on the ball, junior Benny Woodard shuffles over in order to catch the pop-up. "Playing second baseman allows me to make doubles with David Hays which is something I always enjoy." This was Woodard's eleventh year to play baseball but only his third season to play at second base.

Getting the pick-off, freshman Wesley Roberson tags the opposing player as he dives back to first base. "I've been playing baseball for twelve years. I play first base, and I like this position because it's really the only position I can really play well which has led to me playing on varsity as a freshman," commented Roberson.

"It's really nice playing center field because it's fun to catch the ball when they think they get a good hit."

Despite starting off with many setbacks such as losing a good portion of starters from last season to losing almost every pre-season scrimmage, the team rebounded from a disheartening beginning and made it to playoffs for the 12th consecutive year after winning an intense district tie-breaking game against West High School. "It was probably our best game," shared senior Brent Burns. "The coaches always worked us hard and it definitely paid off." With a realignment in district, the team had to work extra hard and give 110% during practices to be able to compete with some of the bigger schools in the district. The team ended their district season with a record of 6-4. This accomplishment had to be done with the help of few upperclassmen to lead the team; however, individuals stepped it up to take the position as leader and adding that to the untapped potential of the many new underclassmen, the team was able to come together and work their way through district and on to the playoffs. Unfortunately, the Wildcats were knocked out of playoffs in the bi-district round by Castleberry in a best two of three series. The team grew so close during the season that whether on or off the field, they made memories that each will be able to take with them past the dugouts and outfield of the field and on through the rest of their lives.

Preparing for the bunt, junior Jason Yeley attempts to advance his teammate to second. Yeley has been playing ball for 13 years and plans on playing in college. "The most enjoyable parts about the baseball season to me are the bus rides to the game and having fun while getting ready for a good game ahead," commented Yeley.

To play together, in total unison, is a feat few teams ever accomplish, but when they do, the result is a perfectly well put together team that is ready to win and win together as a team. "Something unique about this year was how everyone got along so well," commented varsity player junior Claire Pritchett, "We really bonded well together and worked hard as a team." This unison of the entire team was unbelievable, and greatly contributed to the run to the playoffs. Many players also agreed that the sisterly affection given off by two particular varsity players, Morgan and Brooke Spearman, influenced the team positively as well. Morgan, one of several freshmen on the team, started on the varsity team alongside her older sister Brooke, a senior. "They played well, both together and with the team," mentioned Pritchett, "it really inspired us all!" In addition to Morgan, three other very talented freshmen joined the roster making the group a chock-full team of talented young players. Senior varsity player Aubrey Davis's talent was recognized, and earlier this year she had the opportunity of signing to Minnesota University on a full athletic scholarship. "I'm going to miss all of y'all next year," commented Davis, "but if you ever hit a snag or get in a slump, think about all the people that want to see you fall, and how much you want to prove them wrong. Then, think about all the people that want to see you succeed, and how much you want to make them proud. Then ask yourself, how much do I want?"

Making contact with the ball, senior varsity player Aubrey Davis warms up for the game by taking some swing. "Warming up is an imperative part of games," commented Davis. "It helps me prepare for a victory." Davis will continue her pursuit of victory at the University of Minnesota.

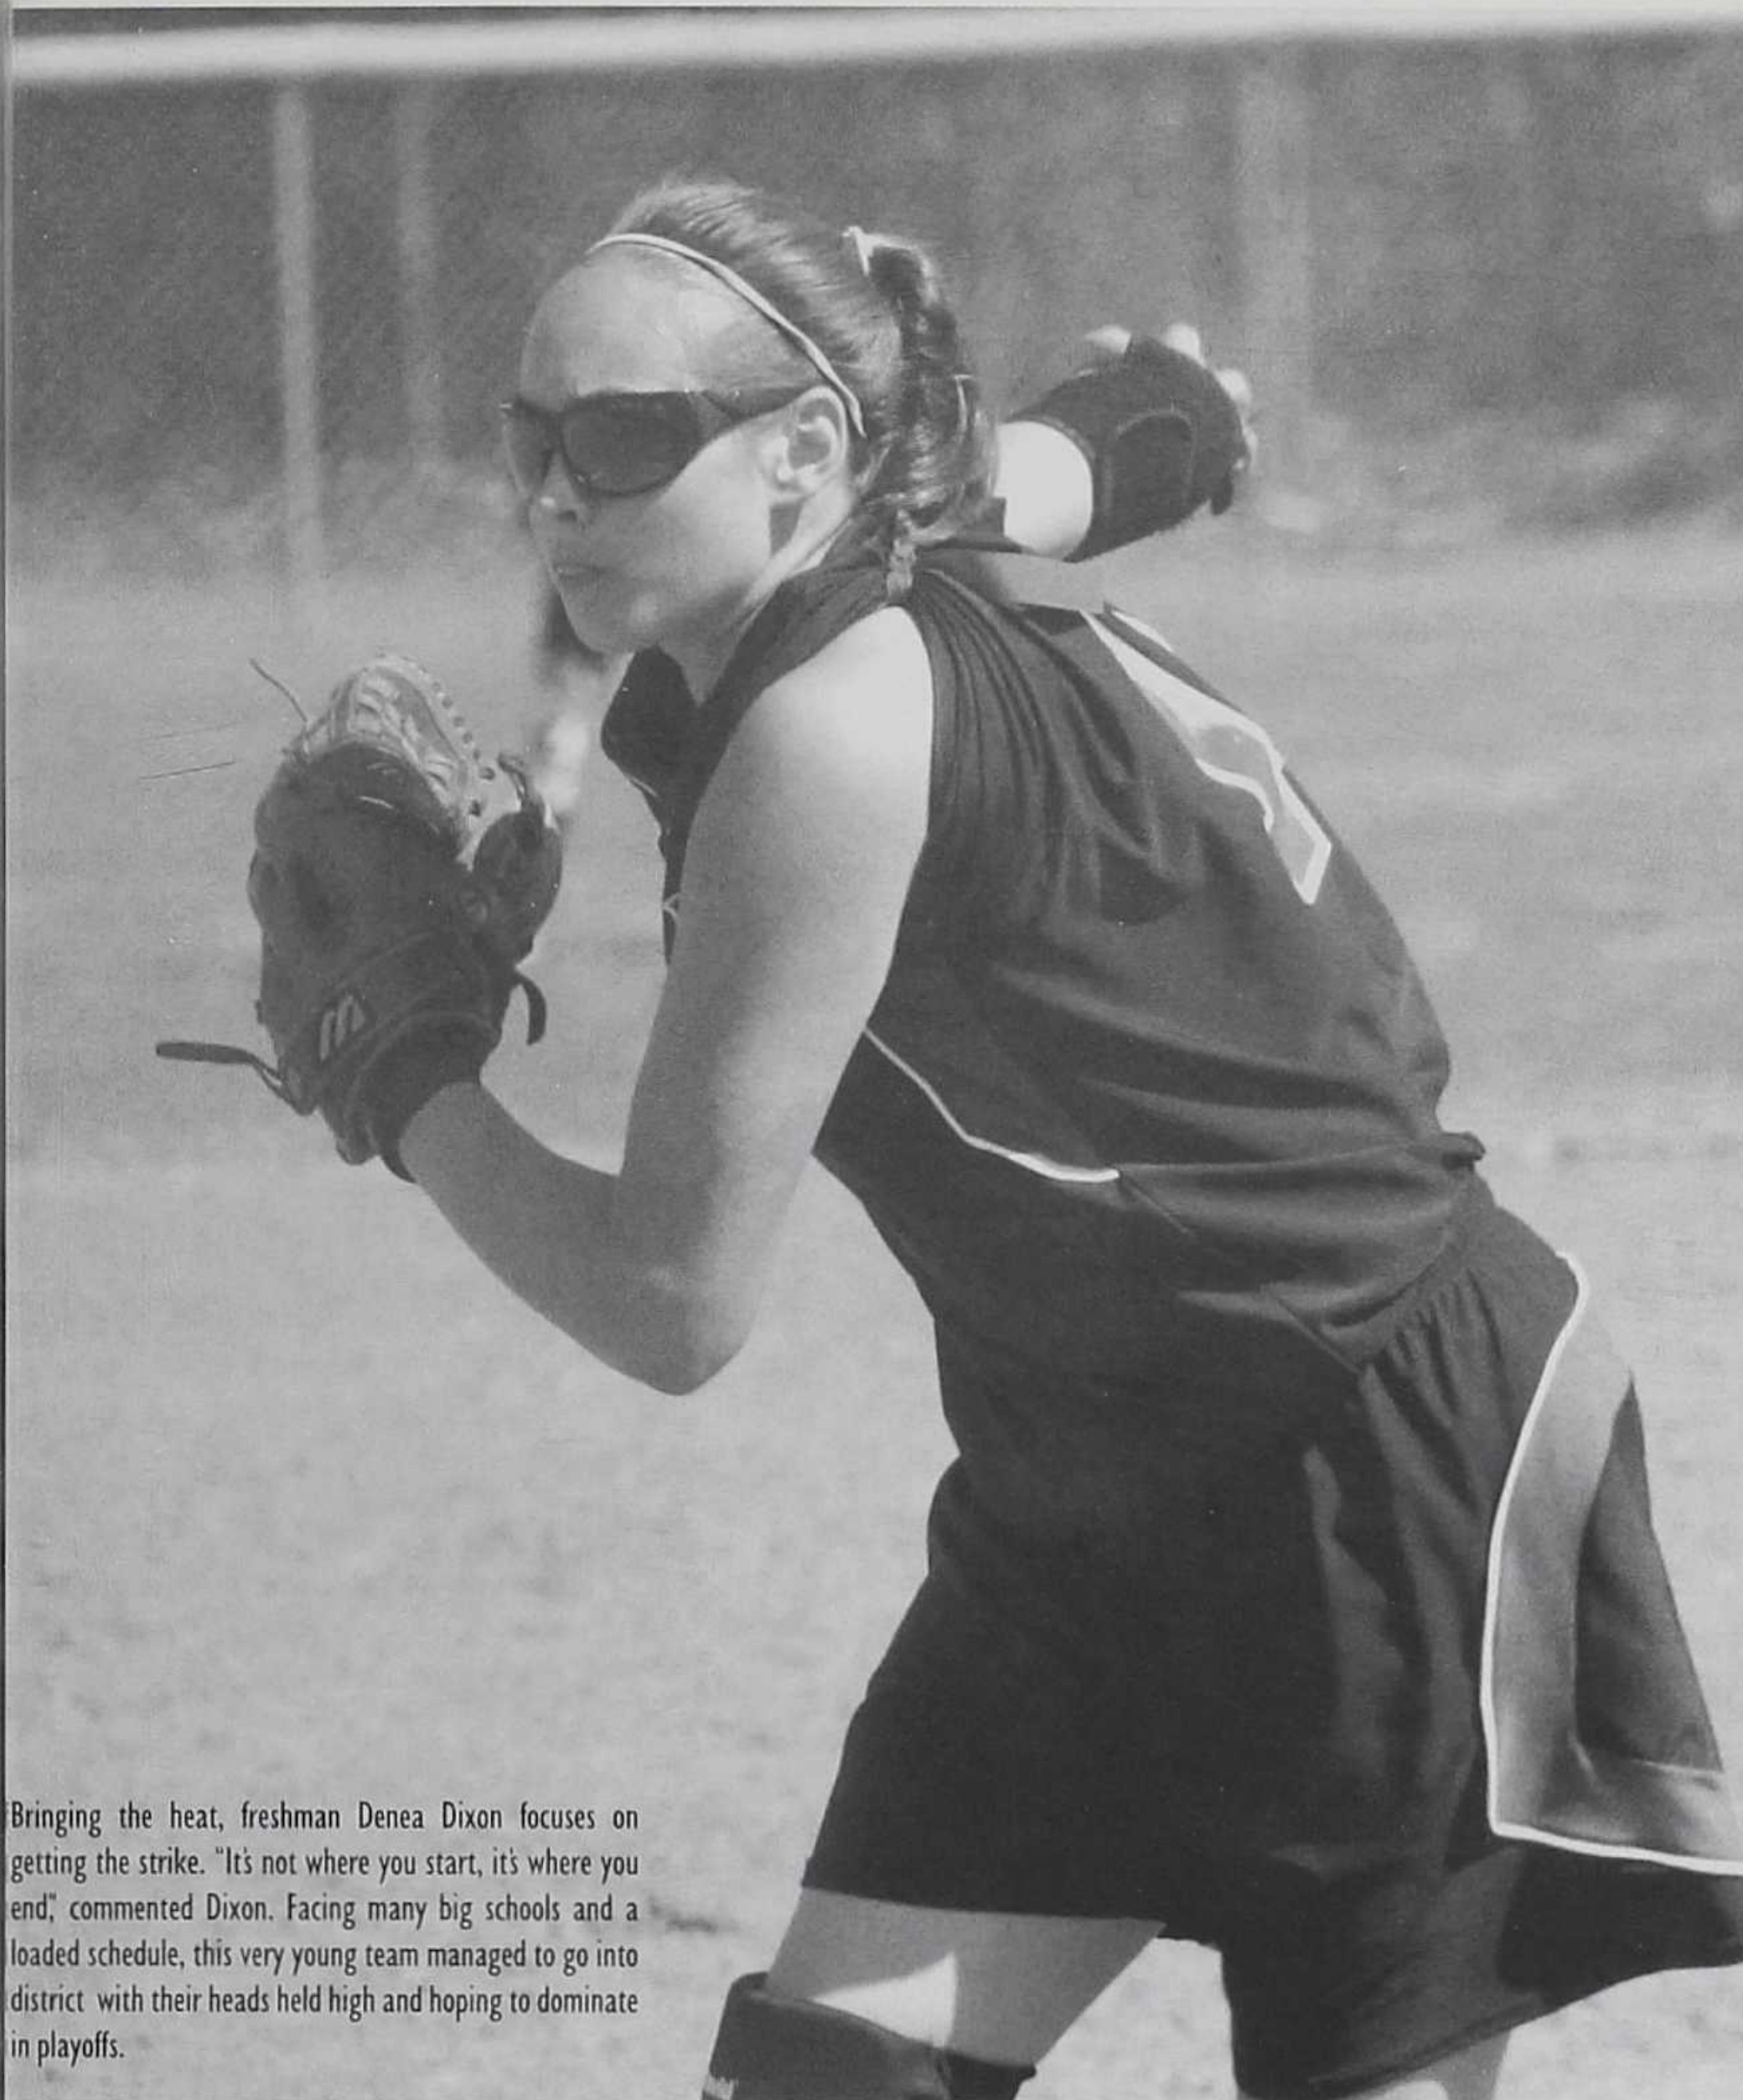

A close call, sophomore Megan Watson catches the ball and tries to get the out. "I believe hard work for this season will eventually work in our favor for playoffs," stated Watson. Being an underclassmen and starting on a varsity team was one of her many accomplishments amongst numerous others throughout the year.

"This was a season to remember and I am going to miss my teammates and coaches."

Bringing the heat, freshman Denea Dixon focuses on getting the strike. "It's not where you start, it's where you end," commented Dixon. Facing many big schools and a loaded schedule, this very young team managed to go into district with their heads held high and hoping to dominate in playoffs.

Heart to heart, Coach Kirkpatrick offers advice to senior Brooke Spearman as she holds on third base. "I've enjoyed my four years working with the teams as well as the coaching staff," stated Spearman. Spearman will leave behind a great deal of knowledge and many memories for the team.

Gearing up, third baseman Rachel Haferkamp fields the ball and attempts to make the out at first base. After Haferkamp's second year on varsity, she developed a way to mentally prepare for a game with a few pre-game rituals such as, "Listening to my music and going to 7/11 for a Slurpee."

"I love to play tennis because it gives me a chance to be competitive with friends."

Gearing back for power, senior Claudia Castro prepares to serve the ball. "I play because it's fun and I guess I'm pretty good at it, but what I enjoy most is goofing off with my friends," said Castro. For some tennis players, the pure enjoyment of the game took priority.

Escaping the sun, senior tennis players set up a tent to call home for the day. This was a tradition that the varsity girls started last season and it continued this year. "It gives us a place where we can relax out of the sun in between our matches," senior Katy Little shared.

This year's tennis season was an overall success. While there were many of the same faces we've seen from past years, there was a new interest as many freshmen gave the sport a try. Several of the newer players planned to follow their love for this sport and continue to make themselves better in the following year's season. "I am losing a lot of seniors this year. Next year will be a rebuilding year," Coach Young stated. There were a large number of players wanting to play this year. The tennis players voted Colin Duval and Shannon Cassady MVP's. The Kennedale Tennis team was represented brilliantly in the Varsity District tournament held here with Colin Duval winning 1st in Boys' Singles and Aubrey Davis capturing 2nd place in Girl's Singles. After the tournament, Davis, Duval, Tucker Brunson, and Tyler Moody all advanced to Regionals. Both the girls' and the boys' team had an exciting and accomplished season. Others, though not winning such a title, still experienced the fun and excitement of tennis this year. "I like tennis because it is fun and exciting," mentioned junior Kayla Carnagie. "There is nothing better than scoring an ace in a match." The feelings most players had towards this sport was shared among the other players as well. Sophomore Evelyn Marquez shared, "I just like moving from place to place, trying to score on the person I am playing. I always get a kick whenever I score a 30-love score." Overall, the tennis teams this year were very flourishing, leaving a few players as regional qualifiers and many others with radiant smiles on their satisfied faces.

Scoring against her opponent, senior Aubrey Davis built her skills in a match. "I don't go to practice much, but I usually manage to come out on top," commented Davis about her talent for the sport. She juggled tennis with softball, academics, and countless other activities.

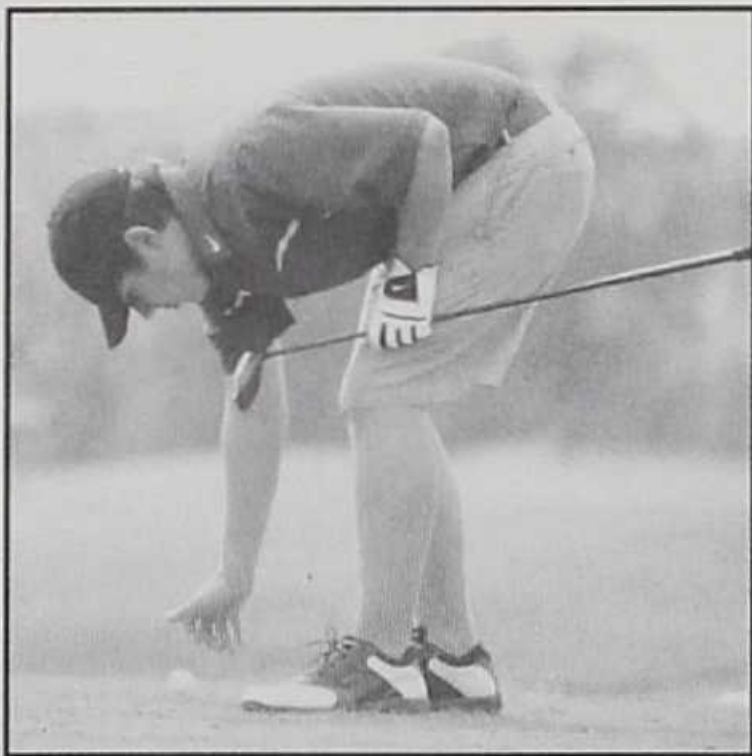

Taking a swing, freshman Kate Cassel sets up to return the serve. "Tennis was amazing! I made a lot of new friends and I had a lot of fun," explained Cassel. "I can't wait until next year!" Many other athletes shared Cassel's feelings towards the next year's season.

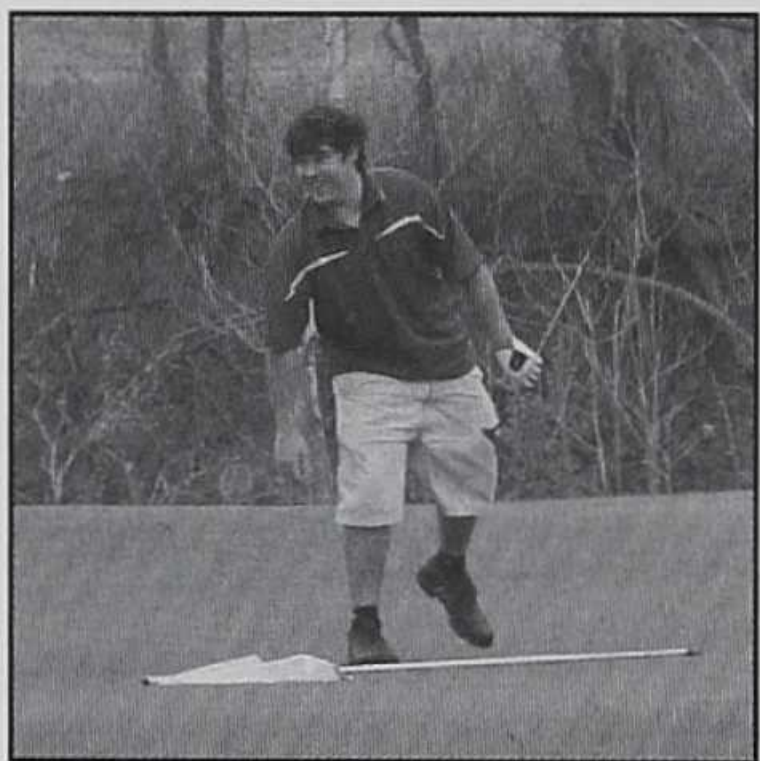

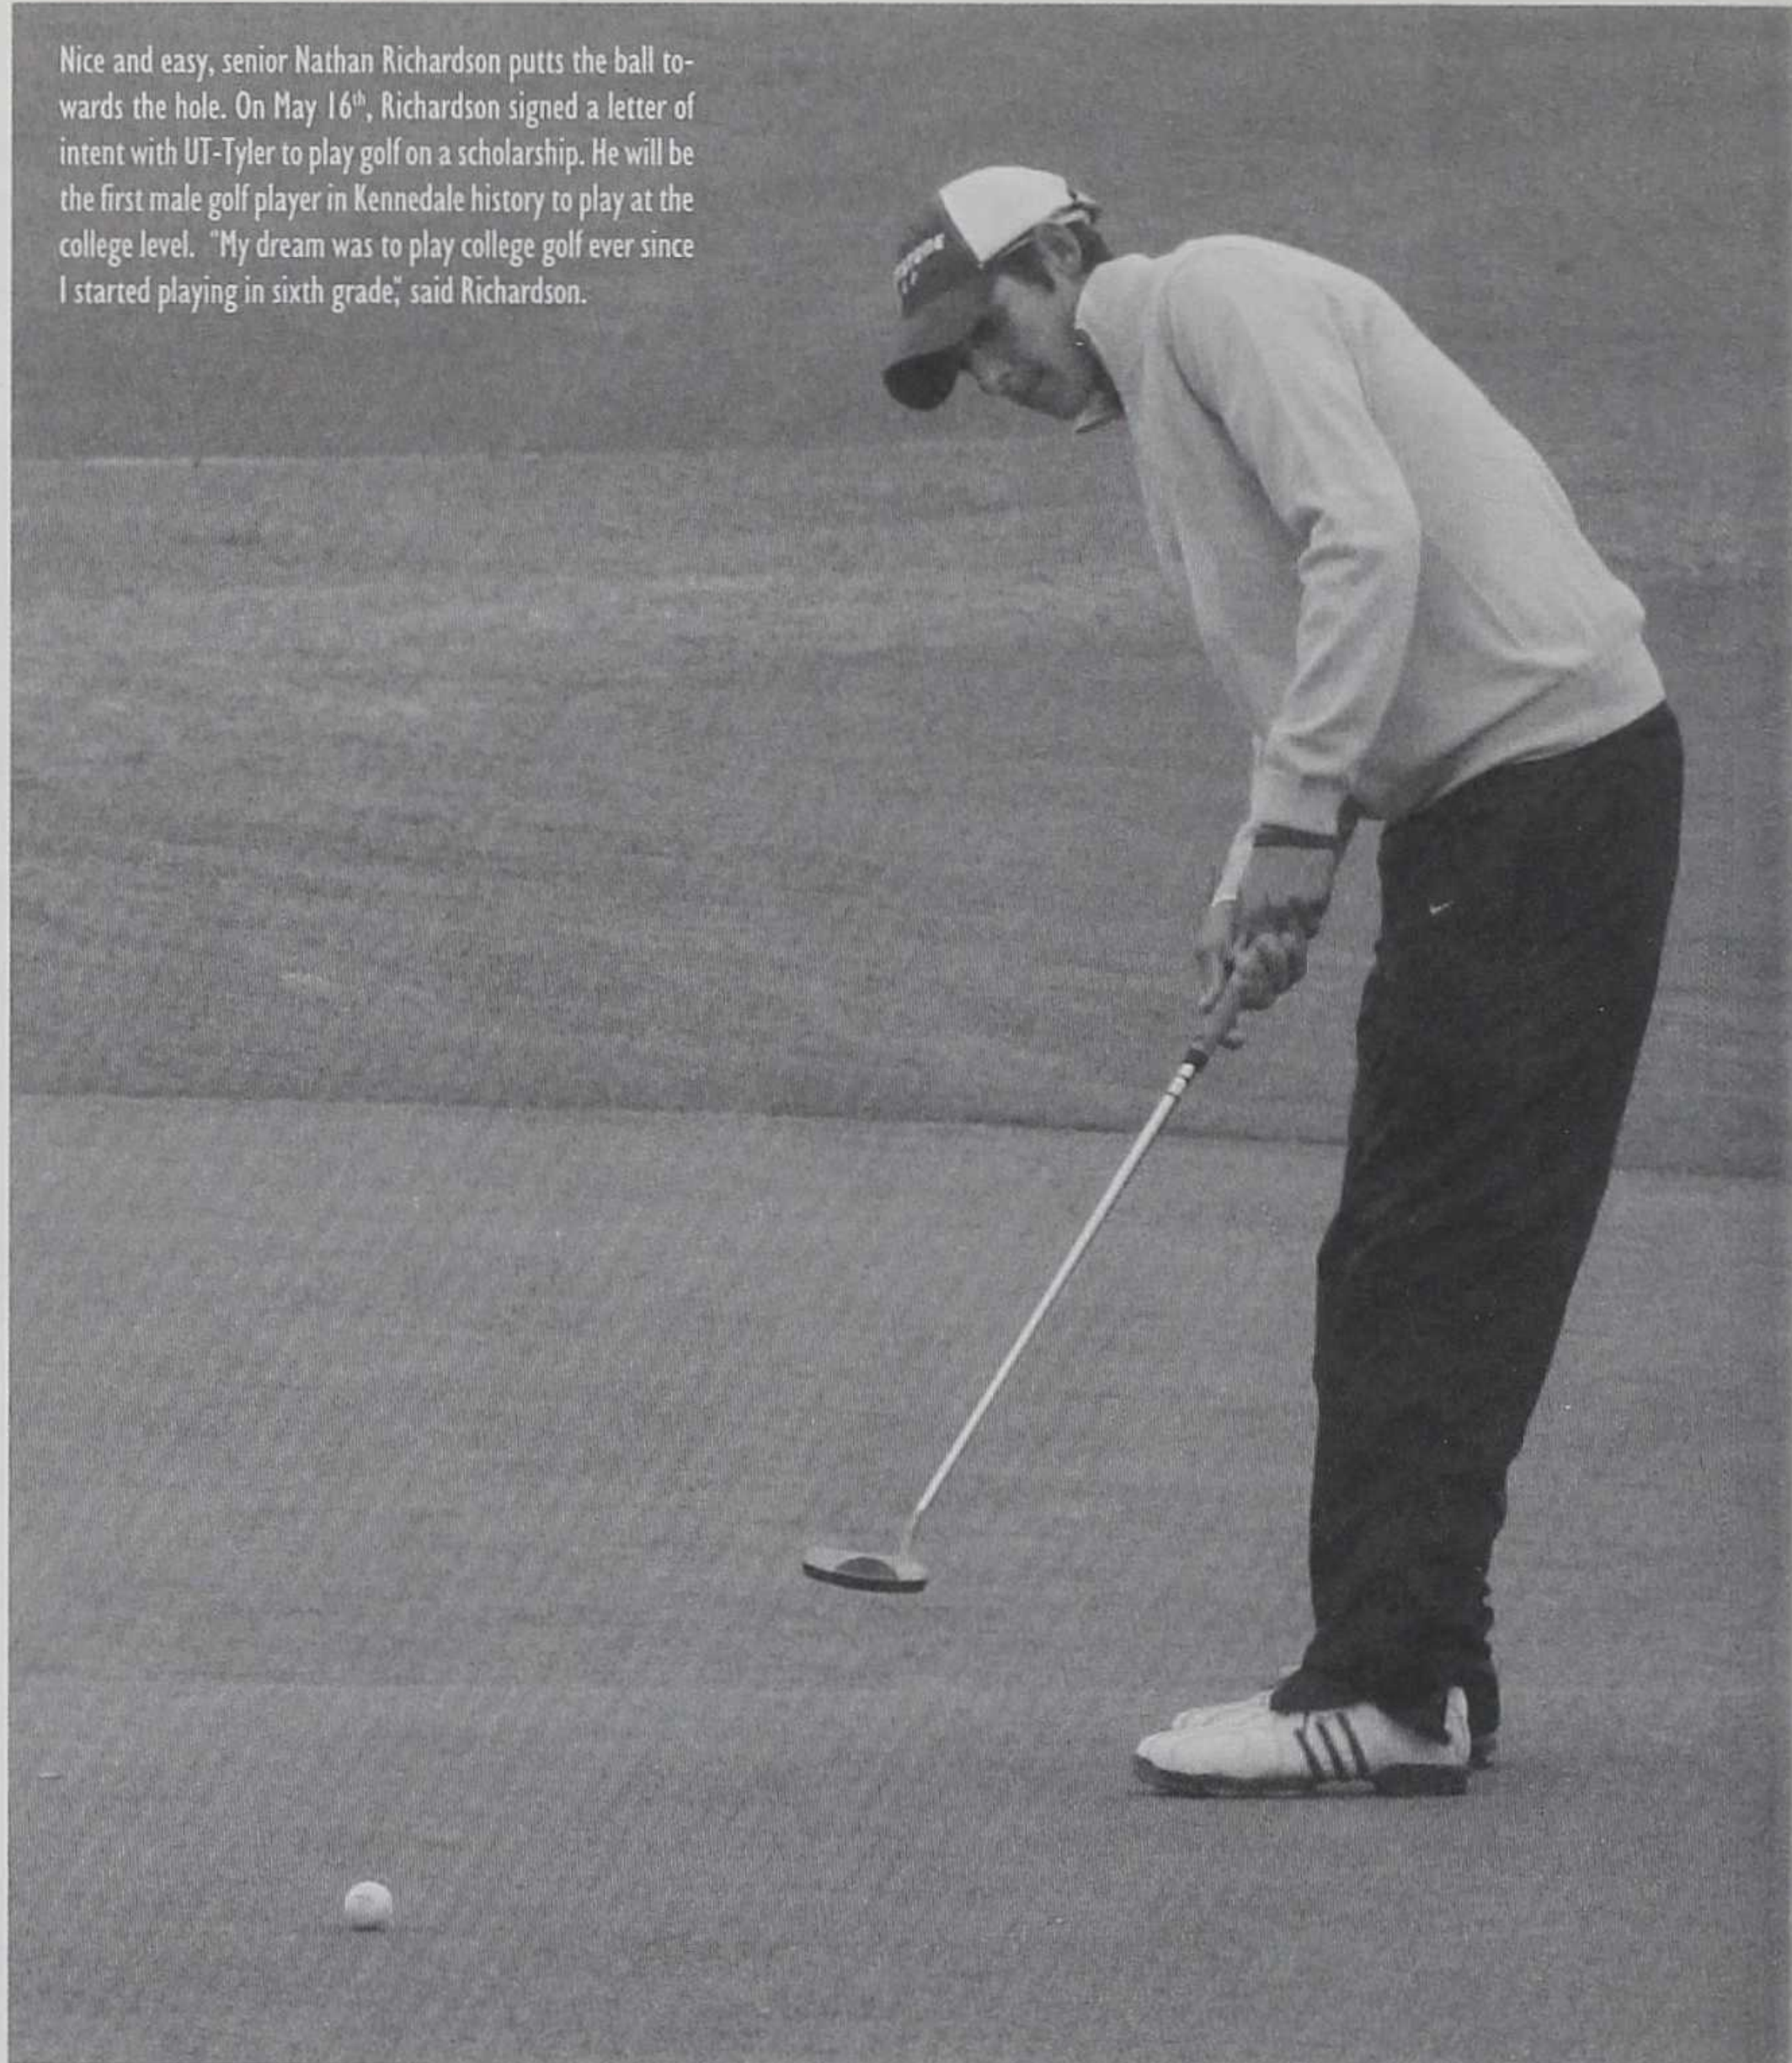

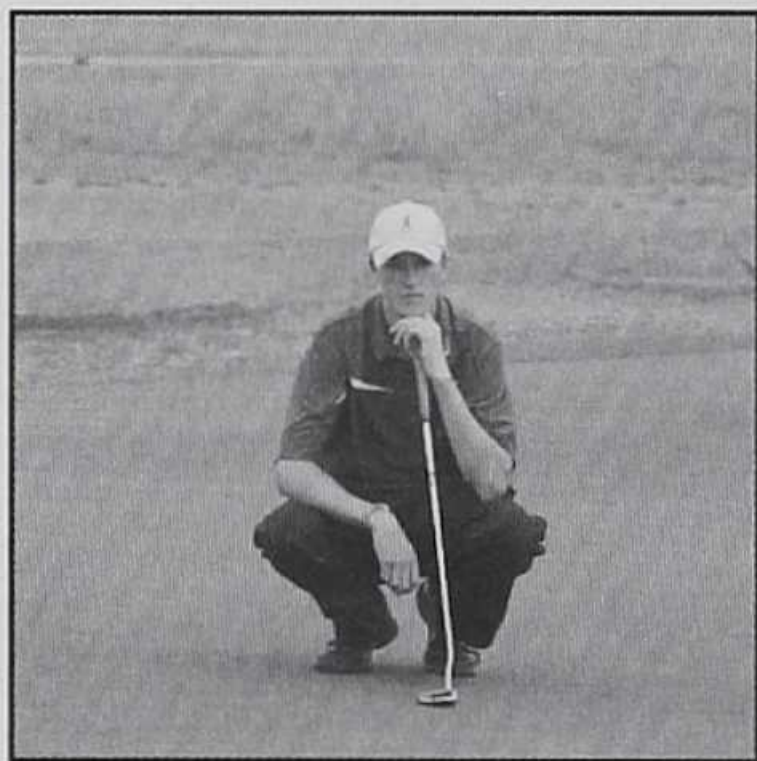

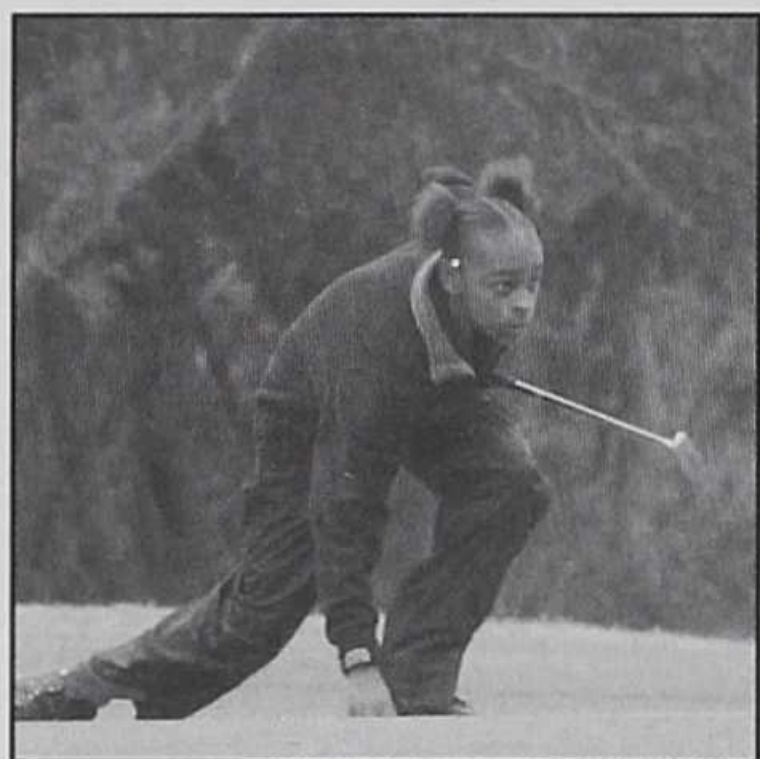

Rushing to meet the ball, senior Travis Ford returns a powerful serve. Ford shared, "I was proud of myself. I came in third place this year, and that is an accomplishment I am glad to share with my family."

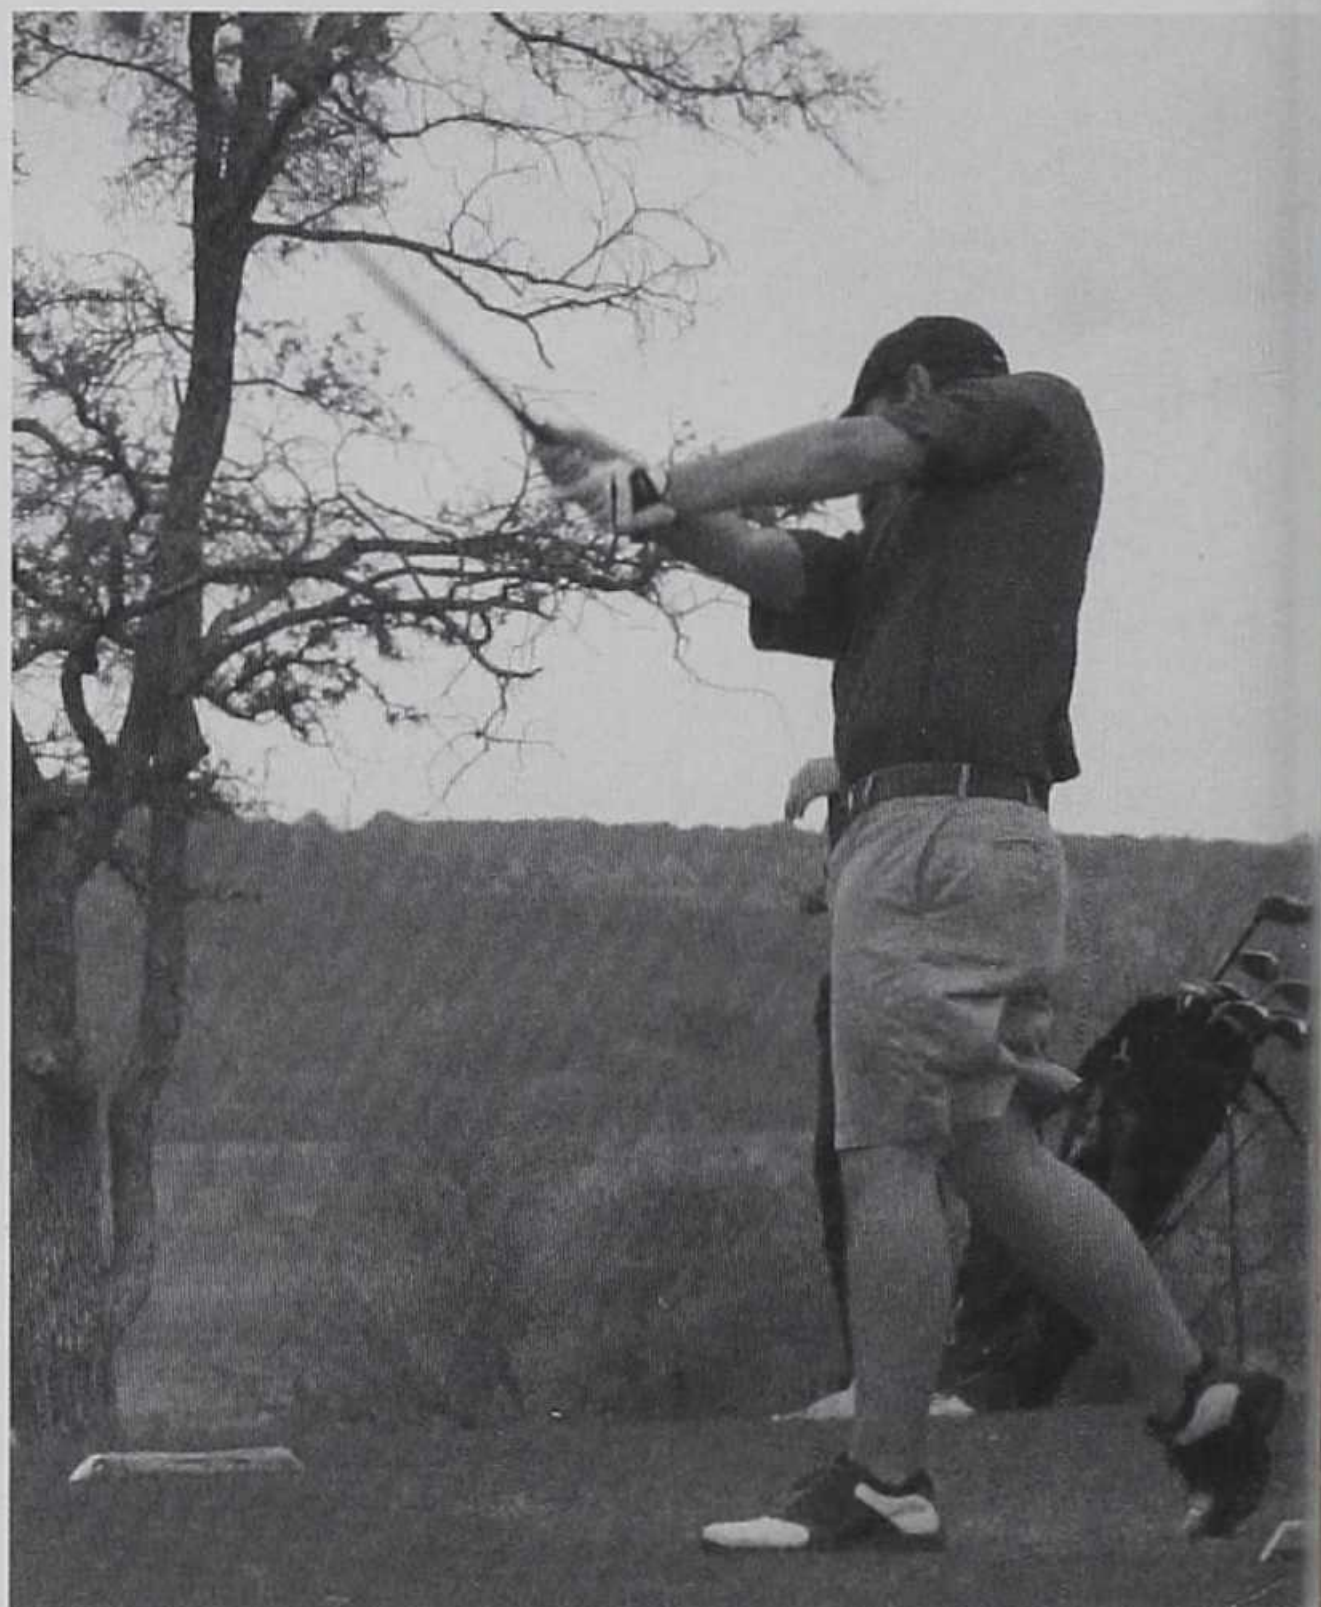

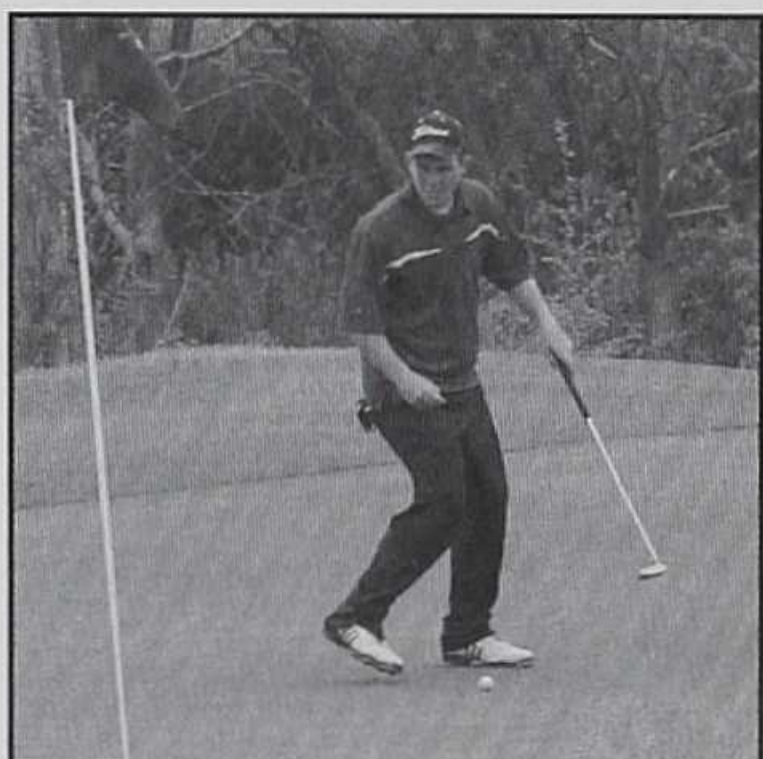

Nice and easy, senior Nathan Richardson putts the ball towards the hole. On May 16th, Richardson signed a letter of intent with UT-Tyler to play golf on a scholarship. He will be the first male golf player in Kennedale history to play at the college level. "My dream was to play college golf ever since I started playing in sixth grade," said Richardson.

Teeing off on the third hole, Blake Bowland maintains good body posture. "I was just trying to keep the ball straight, heading for the green, but it went slightly to the left," explained Bowland. In golf, good posture is key to getting a straight shot.

Golf team breaks school records, wins district]

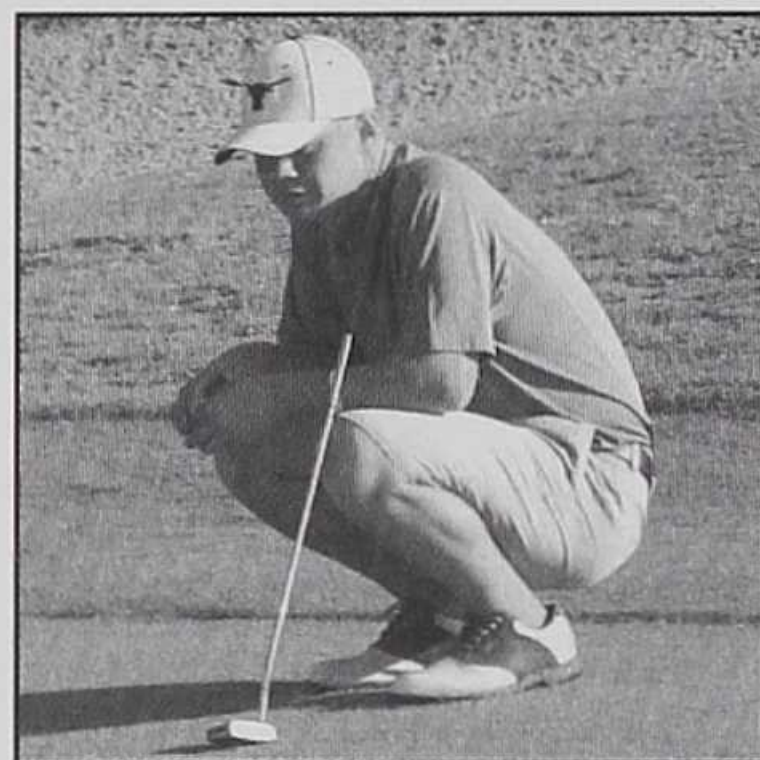

While golf is considered a calm sport, the golf team has had an exciting and exhilarating year. In the District 12-3A Tournament, the team won their 3rd consecutive District Golf Championship. With a total of 608 in two days they advanced to the State Qualifiers Tournament. The Wildcats were led by senior Nathan Richardson (67, 71) with a school record of 138 and sophomore Brady Capshaw (76, 71). Sophomore Evan Arter helped take the lead from Glen Rose. Brady Capshaw tied with sophomore Phillip Wheeler of Glen Rose at 147. The two had a sudden death playoff, but were still tied after the 18th. They moved to play #1 where Wheeler took 2nd and Capshaw took 3rd. The JV Wildcat team was led by sophomores Trevor McDonald 81, Hunter Renick 83, junior Mitchell Yarbrough 84, and senior Colin Duval, 86. The Lady Wildcats had 3 medalists playing and after day one of the 12-3A tournament junior Milaun Murry shot a 94. Sophomore Panpiroon Punnakanta shot a 99, just two shots back of 4th place. Murry finished with a 195 after 2 days and placed second overall only 5 strokes behind Dorsi Pendleton of Glen Rose (190). Murry qualified for the regional tournament. She finished 3rd place as medalist to West's Kristina Fabian (196).

"This has definitely been the best year for the boys' golf team. They've set and beaten a lot of school records. The best thing was when we went back to Glen Rose and beat them in district after they beat us 3 years ago when I took over the program," said Coach Les Schubert. "321 was our score last year and this year we kept getting better. The team scores have been 312, 307, 304, and 301. These last two weeks have been amazing," Schubert finished. Overall this year's golf team has been record-breaking and extraordinary. Limits have been broken and obstacles conquered.

Sizing up the competition, Brandon Crosier watches his teammate Brady Capshaw as he drives the ball. "Brady made a good decision with the shot, but had some luck with the trees," said Crosier. Although the team often competed against one another, they also supported each other and worked together as a team at tournaments.

Keeping his eyes on the hole, junior Mitchell Yarbrough puts at the 17th hole carefully. "When I play, I'm busy thinking about what strategy to use on the next hole." His strategies paid off with a score of 84, placing him at the lead of the JV team.

Though this year brought many challenges, due to all the changes that have taken place, we cannot forget what is truly important. School is foremost a place of learning, where students gain the knowledge and confidence needed to survive in the real world. Throughout the four years we spend in high school, as students, we get a better sense of discipline, responsibility, team work, and many other qualities we will continue to uphold when we leave high school and enter our college or professional years. Clubs and organizations help move us toward those traits with confidence while achieving our academic best. Many students join school clubs to make their high school years more memorable, and others to further their academic life. Clubs vary from community service organizations to clubs that bring out artistic abilities. Key club is an example of one community service club offered. To be a member of this international club is considered an honor because of everything they contribute to the community. Other clubs such as UIL give students the opportunity to represent Kennedale in academic competitions. Business Professionals of America (BPA) is a club that gives students the opportunity to compete in various business competitions. The art and thespian clubs cater to the artistic needs of the students in search of a change to do what they love. Youth Alive is a club that enables students to express their spiritual side. The clubs and classes that make up school are part of the academic experience that every student is able to partake in and remember for a lifetime.

With 100% accuracy, freshmen Alex Roland and Allyson Reed conduct an experiment in Ms. Pollard's IPC class. In this lab, students learned to measure and mix the correct amounts of ingredients so precision was necessary to get the right results. Roland stated, "I just hoped I didn't blow it up."

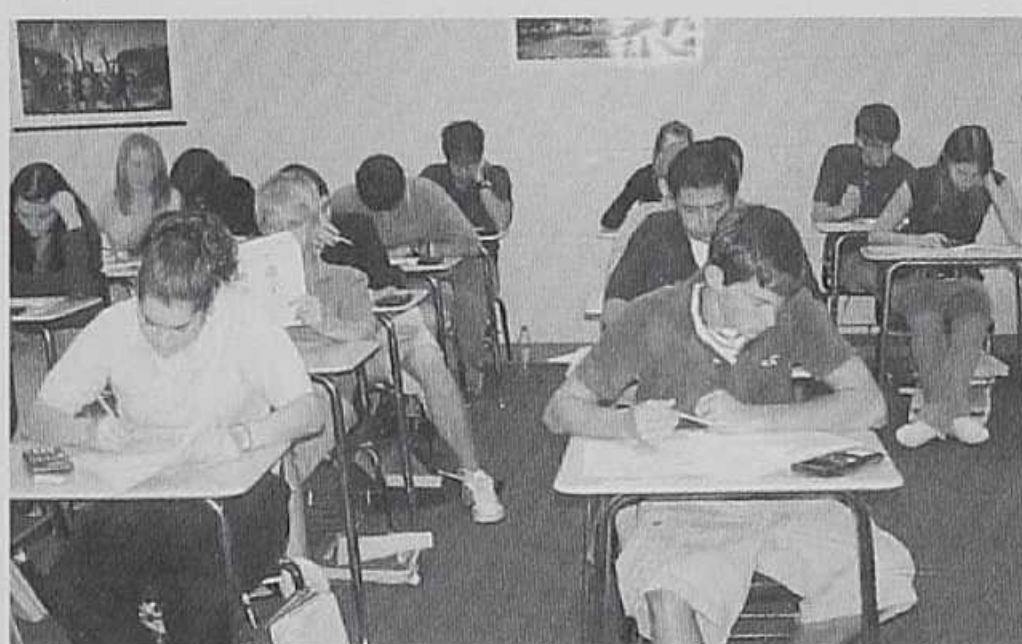

All dressed up with no place to go, junior Matt Fletcher puts on a dress during a hands-on lesson in Senorita Leã Spanish class. The students played dress-up to learn the Spanish terms for different items of clothing. Using this right-brain approach, many students found it easier to learn the foreign language.

With love in the air, seniors Shannon Cassidy and Tyler Moody exchange rings and say their vows in a western-style wedding ceremony. The mock wedding was a part of Mrs. Worley's sociology class. On pretending to be married Cassidy said, "It gave me a respect for marriage. It's actually really hard."

Exercising the left side of their brains, Mrs. McGuire's Honors Algebra II class works quietly on a unit test. Math and science were two subjects that required both analytical thinking and logic. "I really like math and the way Mrs. McGuire explains it makes it easy to understand," said junior Ashley Alviar.

Left-brained people tend to be more logical and solve things analytically. They look at parts of a whole first and are very objective meaning they follow the rules.

Right-brained people tend to have a lot of creativity and think bending the rules is okay if there is a good reason. They are often random and intuitive as well.

First time actor, junior Brittany Sims delivers her lines to her lawyer played by junior Seth Glover. Sims' character was up for murder in the play Crimes of the Heart. "It was so scary to go up on stage for the first time. The lights were like 'bam!' but I had fun with everyone," said Sims.

High school was a time when we started to morph into what we were going to be for the rest of our lives. We decided whether to be organized or messy, innovative or theoretical, driven by feelings or the facts. This was controlled by which side of the brain we use most. The theory of right-brain and left-brain told us that the two opposite sides of the brain control two different modes of thinking. Left-brain people use logic to process thoughts. These people tend to be very organized, rational and don't like change. These typically were the intelligent students who piled on honors class after honors class, and liked the challenge of math. Right-brain people are random and can't stay on topic for more than five minutes. They tend to be more emotional, loud, persuasive and creative. These were generally the students that liked to ask tons of questions and get off topic frequently. Some of us didn't fit into either one of these categories which meant we used both sides of our brain. These people altered back and forth every day, always having something different to say. Going from spontaneous one day and sticking to a strict schedule the next. These individuals had a variety of challenging academic courses along with fine arts classes. Left-brain people had academic classes such as AP History, English, Calculus and Biology. Right-brain people got involved in Art, Creative Writing, Sociology and Psychology which were courses that entertained their interests. People with both changed between the two, mixing it up. The difference in the student's personalities gave us a variety of people and classes that made our school unique.

Students and teachers find ways to de-stress at home and school]

Keeping up with schoolwork on top of extracurricular activities is sometimes more than students wish to bear. Many activities are made available to students, whether it be sport practices, clubs, organizations, or fine art rehearsals, these are time consuming and stressful. In addition, most students have a thousand other things to occupy their thoughts and add to their tension. Church events, family troubles, and friends with constant drama are enough to drive students insane. This is another reason to take the time to relax. When polled about the ways of dealing with the stresses of high school, the majority of students said they listened to music as their release. Other students said they allow stress to build and stretch until they finally crack, and simply scream. This is a relatively unhealthy way of dealing with stress, and there are better alternatives to freaking out. One great way to de-stress is to take time and calm down. Schedule some time in the hectic day to do some enjoyable and relaxing activities. Many students turn to physical release of stress by exercise, and there's hardly a more healthy and smart way to go about de-stressing. Twenty to thirty daily minutes of working out can really relieve tension in the muscles and give a new start to the day. While busy during the school day, take a moment to breathe and collect your thoughts before continuing with your studying. Another suggestion would be to use free time at home to catch up on your rest. For girls, an excellent way to de-stress is to get a manicure, pedicure, or a massage.

With stress at extreme levels, Mrs. Thacker releases the buildup with a hair pulling breakdown. "Stress comes in many forms: teaching 3 classes, raising a teenager, coaching cheerleading, managing time, finding time for my family and friends, and grading endless amounts of essays. Stress is part of this job. I don't know any other way to live," said Mrs. Thacker about her stress levels.

Catching some Z's in the cafeteria, sophomore Ryan Pugh takes a much needed break from his hectic schedule. Pugh said, "Besides soccer, my favorite thing to do is sleep because it gets me refueled and ready for the day." Students need to get enough sleep so that they won't tire out before the end of the day.

Relaxing in her home, senior Chelsea Johnson uses yoga to relieve her stress from a busy day. Johnson shared, "I love to do yoga because it calms me down and soothes my nerves. It is an activity I choose to participate in all the time." Many students used yoga as a release because it calms not only the mind, but the body as well.

In the quiet hallways, junior Amanda Mantooth enjoys the serenity as she takes her time before returning to class. Mantooth stated, "I enjoy roaming the halls while everyone is in class; it really clears my mind." A stroll through the hallways can be peaceful and calm, but be sure not to get caught taking too long.

Immersed in her book, sophomore Jordan Drake spends her spare time reading about her favorite wrestler. "I don't usually like to read much, but this book, Heartbreak and Triumph, is an autobiography by Shawn Michaels. It gets me pumped up and ready to powerlift," Drake explained.

Catching up on some sleep, junior Miranda Guzman uses quality time in Honors Pre-Cal to take a nap. Many students are offered the choice of working on their homework during class so they have the availability of Mrs. Cook to help them on difficult problems. Some students choose to push off their homework until later dates.

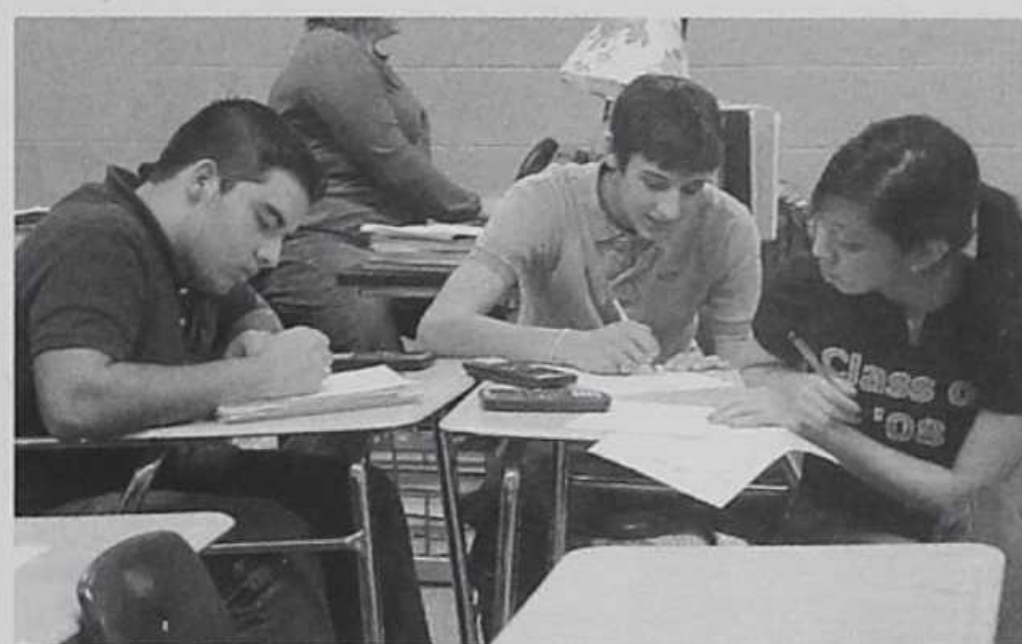

Reading a book in the library during his first period, Adam Sparling uses his period as a library aide to catch up on some homework. When there wasn't anything to be done in the library, it was good opportunity to study or work on other types of homework.

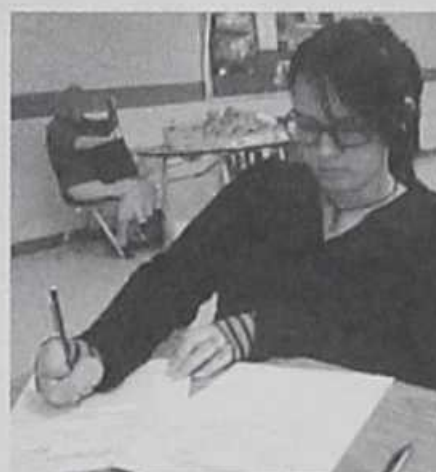

Procrastinating on homework, junior Simone Warner sits on the couch in the library to text her boyfriend Adam Sparling. "I should have been reading Of Mice & Men for my AP English III class, but I can't stand reading English books so instead I decided to chill on the couch and just wait until I got home," said Warner.

Working on homework together, seniors Jose Cabrera, Nathan Richardson, and junior Reanelle Navea go through their Pre-Calculus problems together to make sure everyone got the right answer and understands how to come up with it. Working in groups during math class is a good way for students who didn't understand at first, to get a second chance.

Overloaded with papers, seniors Ashley Schramme and Leigh Persons work on their senior research projects in the library. "Working on homework and other things would be so much easier if we had a Starbucks at school. Also, getting a coffee cup from Starbucks would make it appear as if I actually studied there," said Persons.

Tests make up an important majority of the final grades, which makes properly preparing for these tests, that much more imperative. From going over reviews, previous homework, and textbooks the night before to quickly glancing at a review the morning of or even just "winging" it, students have a myriad of different studying habits. In order to properly execute these studying techniques, some students require complete silence, whereas others need commotion such as music or studying in a public place. "I go to Starbucks, drink coffee, and pretend to study, but I do look smart sitting in Starbucks," said senior Ashley Schramme. "I study by staring at the paper for a good half hour in total silence," said junior Victoria Autrey. When students aren't having fun looking smart at Starbucks, the average time spent studying is usually only about a half hour, if even that. "All I do is look over my review once, maybe even twice if it is really important," said junior Simone Warner. Some classes, however, require more time to study the material. AP US History is a prime example of one of those classes. Many students are required to be familiar with the reading material before the lecture of it the next day in class. This means students could be asked to read whole twenty page chapters and absorb the information in only a short period of time. The same goes for students in AP Government. For classes such as AP Calculus, students are given a small break since there are only formulas involved.

Flying down the zip line, PALs participate in the obstacles set up at Ropes Course. Every year the PALs go to this event for team bonding and to learn how to work in groups. "Going down the zip line helped me overcome my fear of heights and has made me a stronger person," commented senior Cheyserr Navarre.

Walking past the capitol building, junior PAL members Mandy Seremet, Kelsey Kayser, and Hannah Anderson enjoy the grandeur of the state capitol. Every year the PALs attend a PAL conference to learn mentoring and leadership techniques. "The capitol was huge. It was nice to be around something taller than me for once," jokingly said Anderson.

Picking a spot to dig, Key Club members Bryan Stites and Karina Torre plan to plant bushes and flowers around campus. Key Club is a volunteer organization meant to pitch in around the community. "It is great to help out the community. It gives me a great sense of accomplishment," commented Stites.

Community clubs volunteer throughout the Metroplex]

A volunteer is defined as a person who renders aid and performs services of one's own free will. This definition is exemplified by the many students at Kennedale who took time out of their assiduous schedules to volunteer throughout their community. A particular club dedicated to volunteer work is Key Club. Key Club spent time this year to visit a retirement home to entertain their Alzheimer inflicted patients. "It was very rewarding to know that simply talking with the patients became the highlight of their week," commented Key Club president Kayla Carnagie. Key Club also joined the families of soldiers at the DFW Airport to welcome them back to the states. A relatively new club in Kennedale, KISS, Kindness in Students Spread, Club spent time to help brighten the hallways at Kennedale. On a monthly basis, KISS Club members would post the birthdays of students and teachers throughout the hallways. For teachers, they would also decorate their doors with posters and streamers to wish them a happy birthday.

The PAL program, Peer Assistance & Leadership, spent their usual sixth period this year by visiting the younger schools to spend time with children in need of that extra friend and mentor. PAL also took a trip to Camp Thurman located in Arlington and PAL Conference located in Austin, Texas to better learn skills that are both helpful in being mentors towards their PALees and to utilize throughout their lifetime. These clubs offer a chance for students to give back to their much loved community.

Lying on the capitol floor, PAL sponsor Adrienne Janek smiles next to the word PAL. "Conference is a blast every year! It is a time for us to get away, bond, share, and learn. I love it," commented Janek. Mrs. Janek founded the club four years ago, and each year it has grown in popularity.

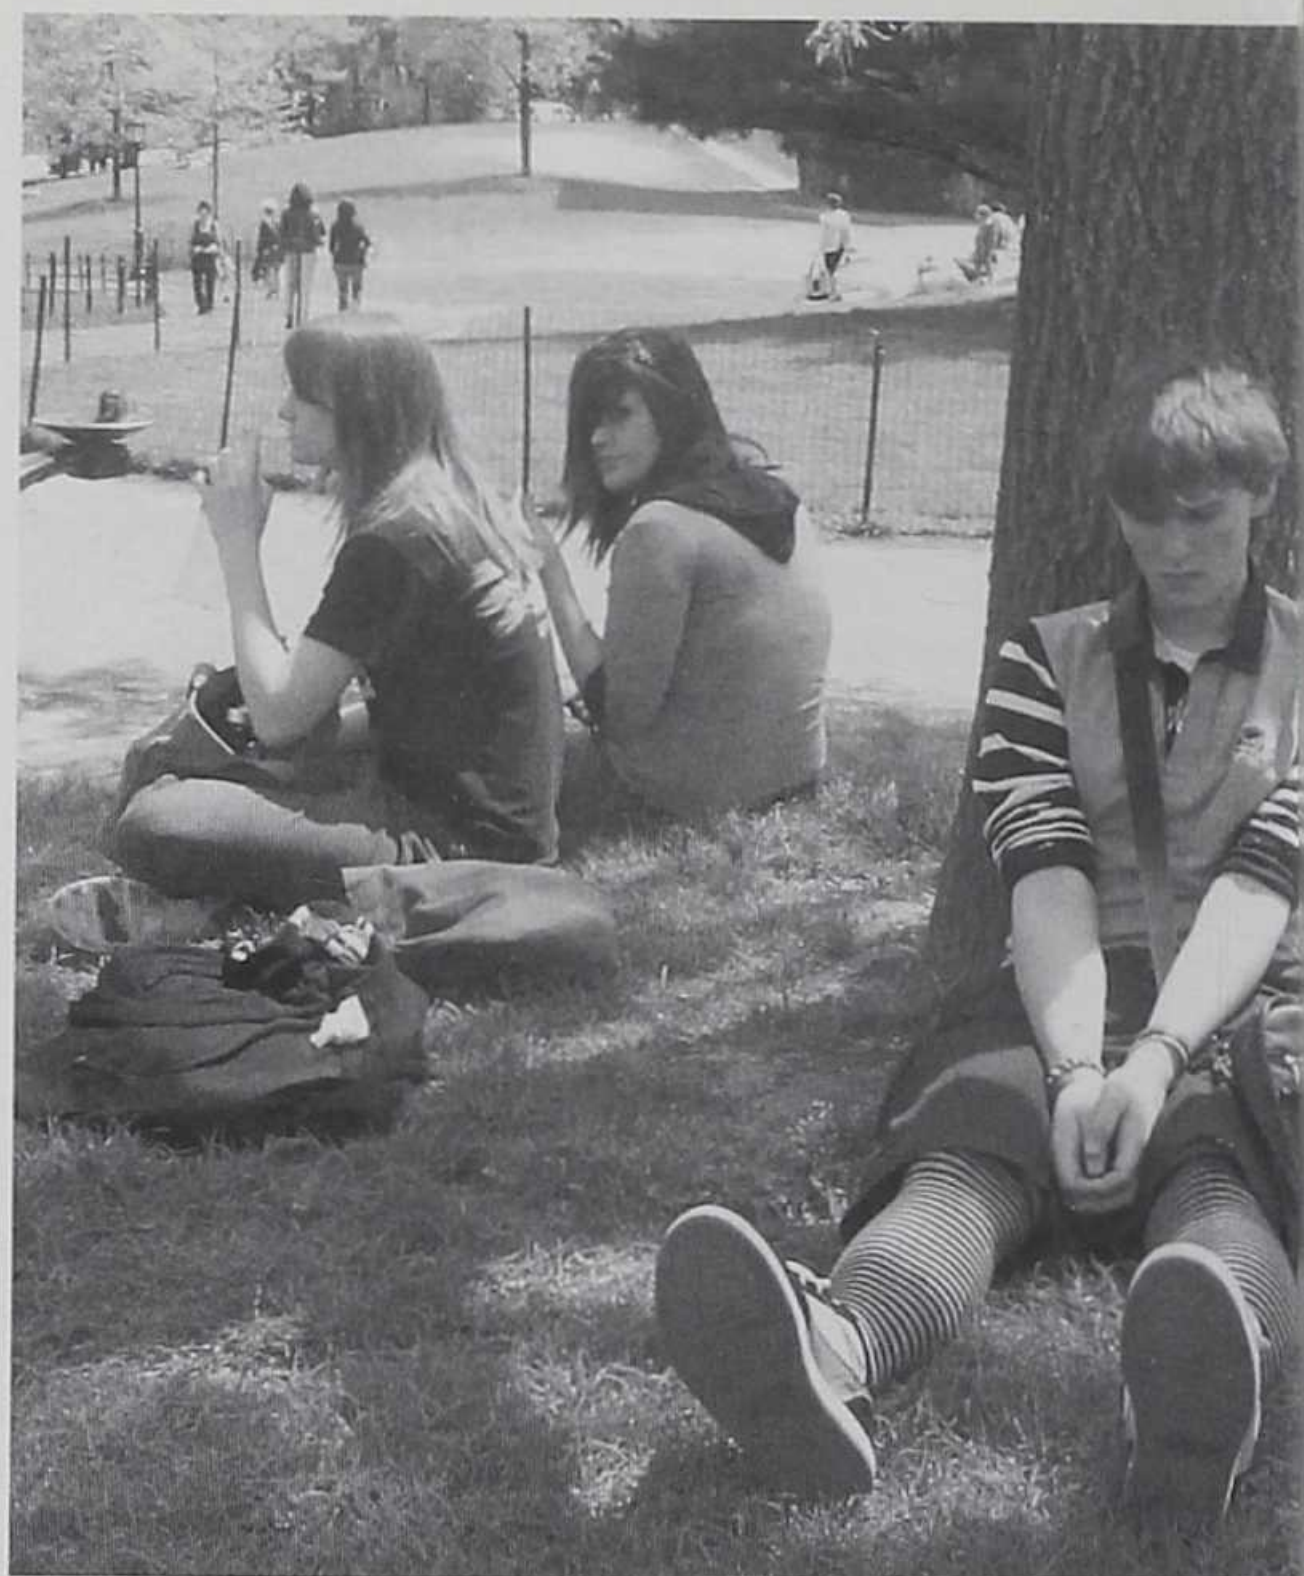

Putting up birthday signs, KISS Club members Valerie Morgan and Antoinette Sims use a ladder to reach above the lockers. Every month, KISS club makes signs for everyone's birthday and posts them in the hallway. "I like being involved in KISS Club because I enjoy helping out," commented Morgan.

Relaxing beneath the shade of a tree in Central Park, sophomores Julie Robinson and Brittany Williams and freshman Mitchell King take a break from their hectic New York schedules. The art members who went to New York took this side trip to the beautiful Central Park before heading off to the Museum of Natural History.

While looking at her favorite piece of art, Brittany Williams smiles for the camera. Williams enjoyed visiting the many museums with other art club members while they were in New York City. Williams loved seeing the different sculptures and paintings. "It was really cool to see the Andy Warhol exhibit. I've always been interested in his art and painting."

Singing in the musical number "Stick to the Status Quo" senior Rebecca Higgenbotham and sophomore Bryan Stites try to be as dramatic as possible to give the best show to the audience. "It's a very fun experience being under the lights and in front of the audience," shared Stites. "I feel like we all come together on the same stage and build our friendships."

Posing for the camera, juniors Kayla Carnagie, Kelsey Kayser, Kristen Fails, and freshman Christian Marks stand in front of the Statue of Liberty. Carnagie commented, "It was a lot of fun getting to go to New York. Seeing all of the things that I watch in movies was amazing." The trip to New York will be an experience all students will remember for a long time to come.

Passing the time, freshman Christian Marks and junior Brittany Dowell play checkers on one of the top floors of the M&M store in New York. The three story building was full of shelves and shelves with chocolate candies. The New York participants were able to visit this store, before going to Wicked, and buy some souvenirs for the way home...if they didn't eat them first!

Climbing up light poles, sophomore Ben Taylor, also known as Spiderman, shows off his amazing superhero talents. Taylor spent much of the trip in his super hero costume; he went to museums and Central Park dressed up as Spiderman. Little kids even came up to him, asking for photographs, believing he was the real deal.

In May 2007 the Drama Club, Art Club, and Choir visited New York City. All three of our creative clubs saw the Broadway performances of Wicked (the story of the wicked witch of the west) and Phantom of the Opera (the story of a man looking for love in all the wrong places). The students in the Theatre department got to experience several interactive theatre workshops, with a cast member from Wicked, which strengthened their acting skills. "New York was amazing. Shopping in Chinatown was probably the best part. I wish we could've stayed longer and that Mrs. Borah was there," said sophomore Hillary Schwind. Art members went on a harbor cruise and rode back to the hotel in two stretch limousines. They also enjoyed many museums such as The Guggenheim. Art and Theatre members who woke up early enough on Saturday got to be on the Today Show. Choir members enjoyed seeing many New York sights and placed second in the Concert Choir division. Other than the trip to New York, the creativity clubs have been hard at work with other projects and accomplishments. Art and Theatre came together to put on an art show at the premier of High School Musical. Theatre competed in the one-act play contest, and was selected as the Alternate Advancing Play. Kennedale's Theatre Company won "Best Technical Crew" for the 4th year in a row. Sophomore Abel Ramos won "District All-Star Cast". Junior Maria Gross and Senior Chelsea Johnson won "Honorable Mention All-Star Cast". The choir program overcame many obstacles and put on exceptional concerts throughout the year. Overall this year has been full of achievements by all of the outstanding creativity clubs.

Academic club members look for a challenge]

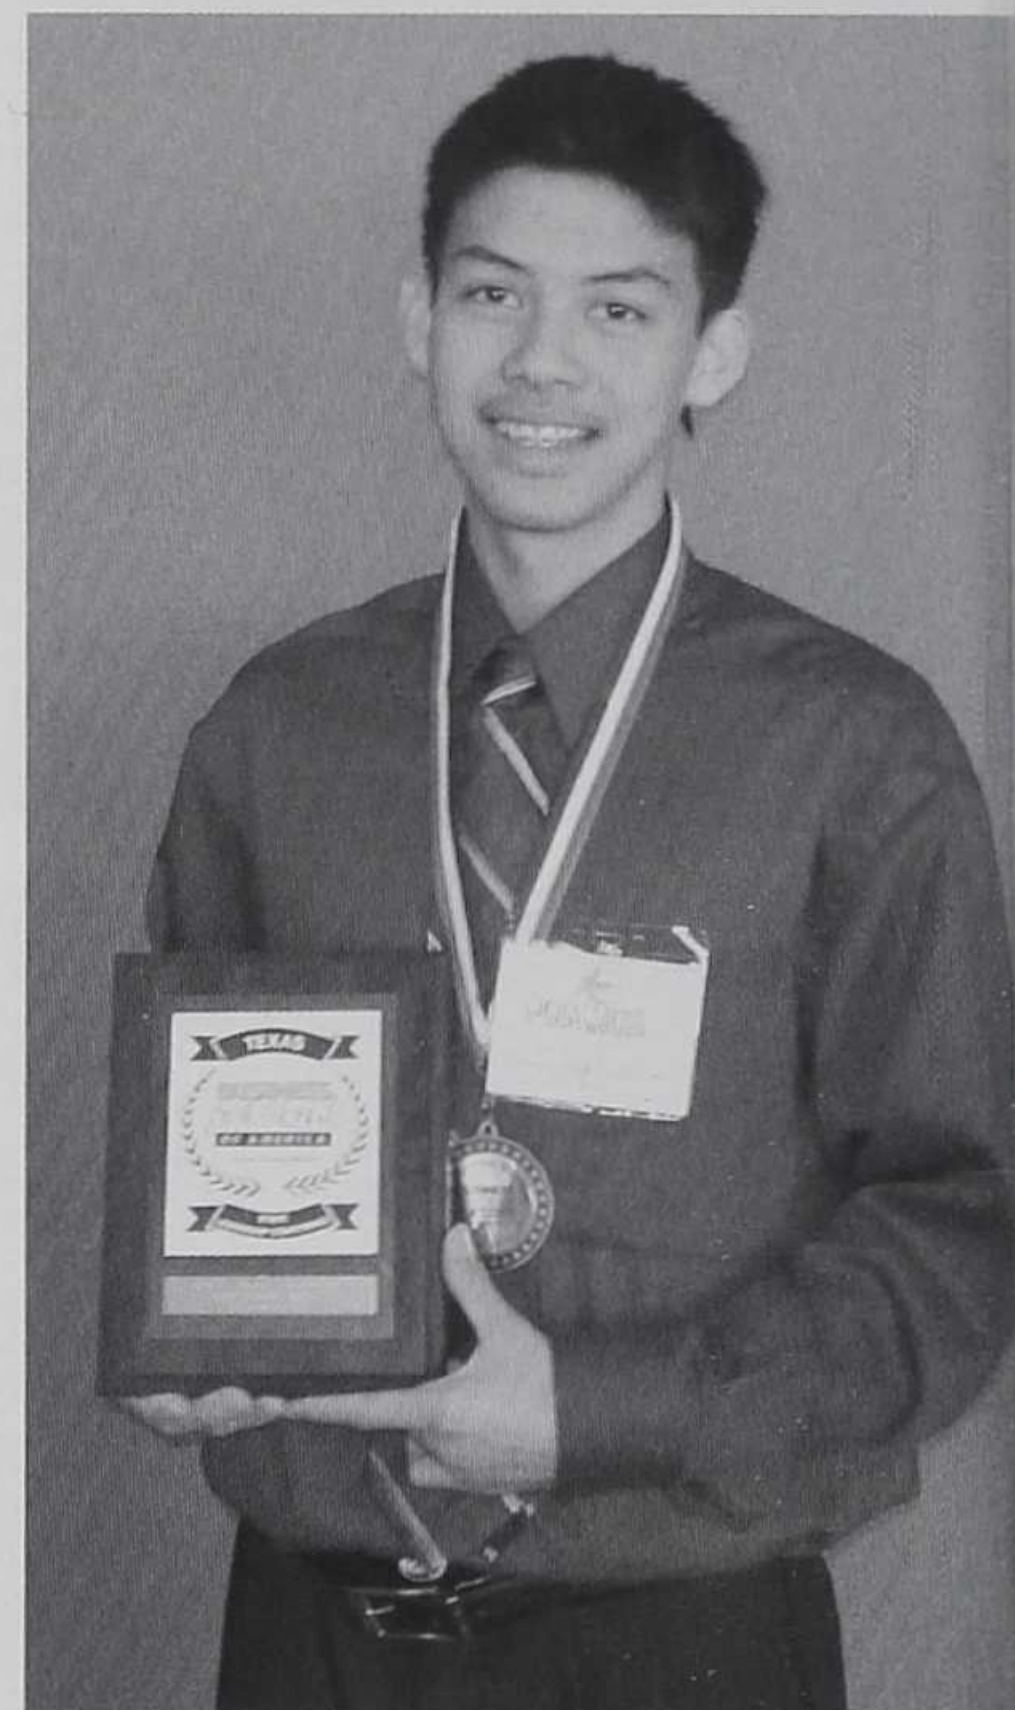

Business Professionals of America, UIL Academics, and the National Honor Society are not just academic organizations offered at our school, but all around the country. BPA helps students develop leadership skills, professional growth, career related competencies, and enhanced social awareness.

"BPA helps me prepare for my career because I plan to major in business financing. Its also helps me learn about computers and technology as it continues to change. Another reason why I like BPA is because I get to travel and meet other students that are competing, and that are interested in the same things as I am," stated senior Brittany McPartlin. Numerous students competed at the Regional Leadership Conference; four advanced to the state Leadership Conference held in Corpus Christi, Texas.

UIL (Universal Interscholastic League) is another organization offered to students so they can show off how smart they are. UIL competitors travel to different schools and colleges to compete in a wide variety of events such as News Writing, Current Events, or Calculator Applications. A number of students competed in district, and several advanced to regional competition in Commerce, Texas. NHS is not just for those dedicated to academics, but those who are, overall, good students. NHS is a highly recognized academic honor club which praises those students who work hard and do their best in school and life. The students involved in these organizations are doing an amazing job, positively representing our school at every competition and in every aspect of their lives. Their work and dedication to school will definitely be worth it.

After winning in state competition, junior Kevin Tran proudly shows off his medal and plaque. Kevin did a great job representing our school in the Novell Network Administration event for BPA. Not only did he make it to State, but he became one of the few to make it to the National Leadership Conference in New York City.

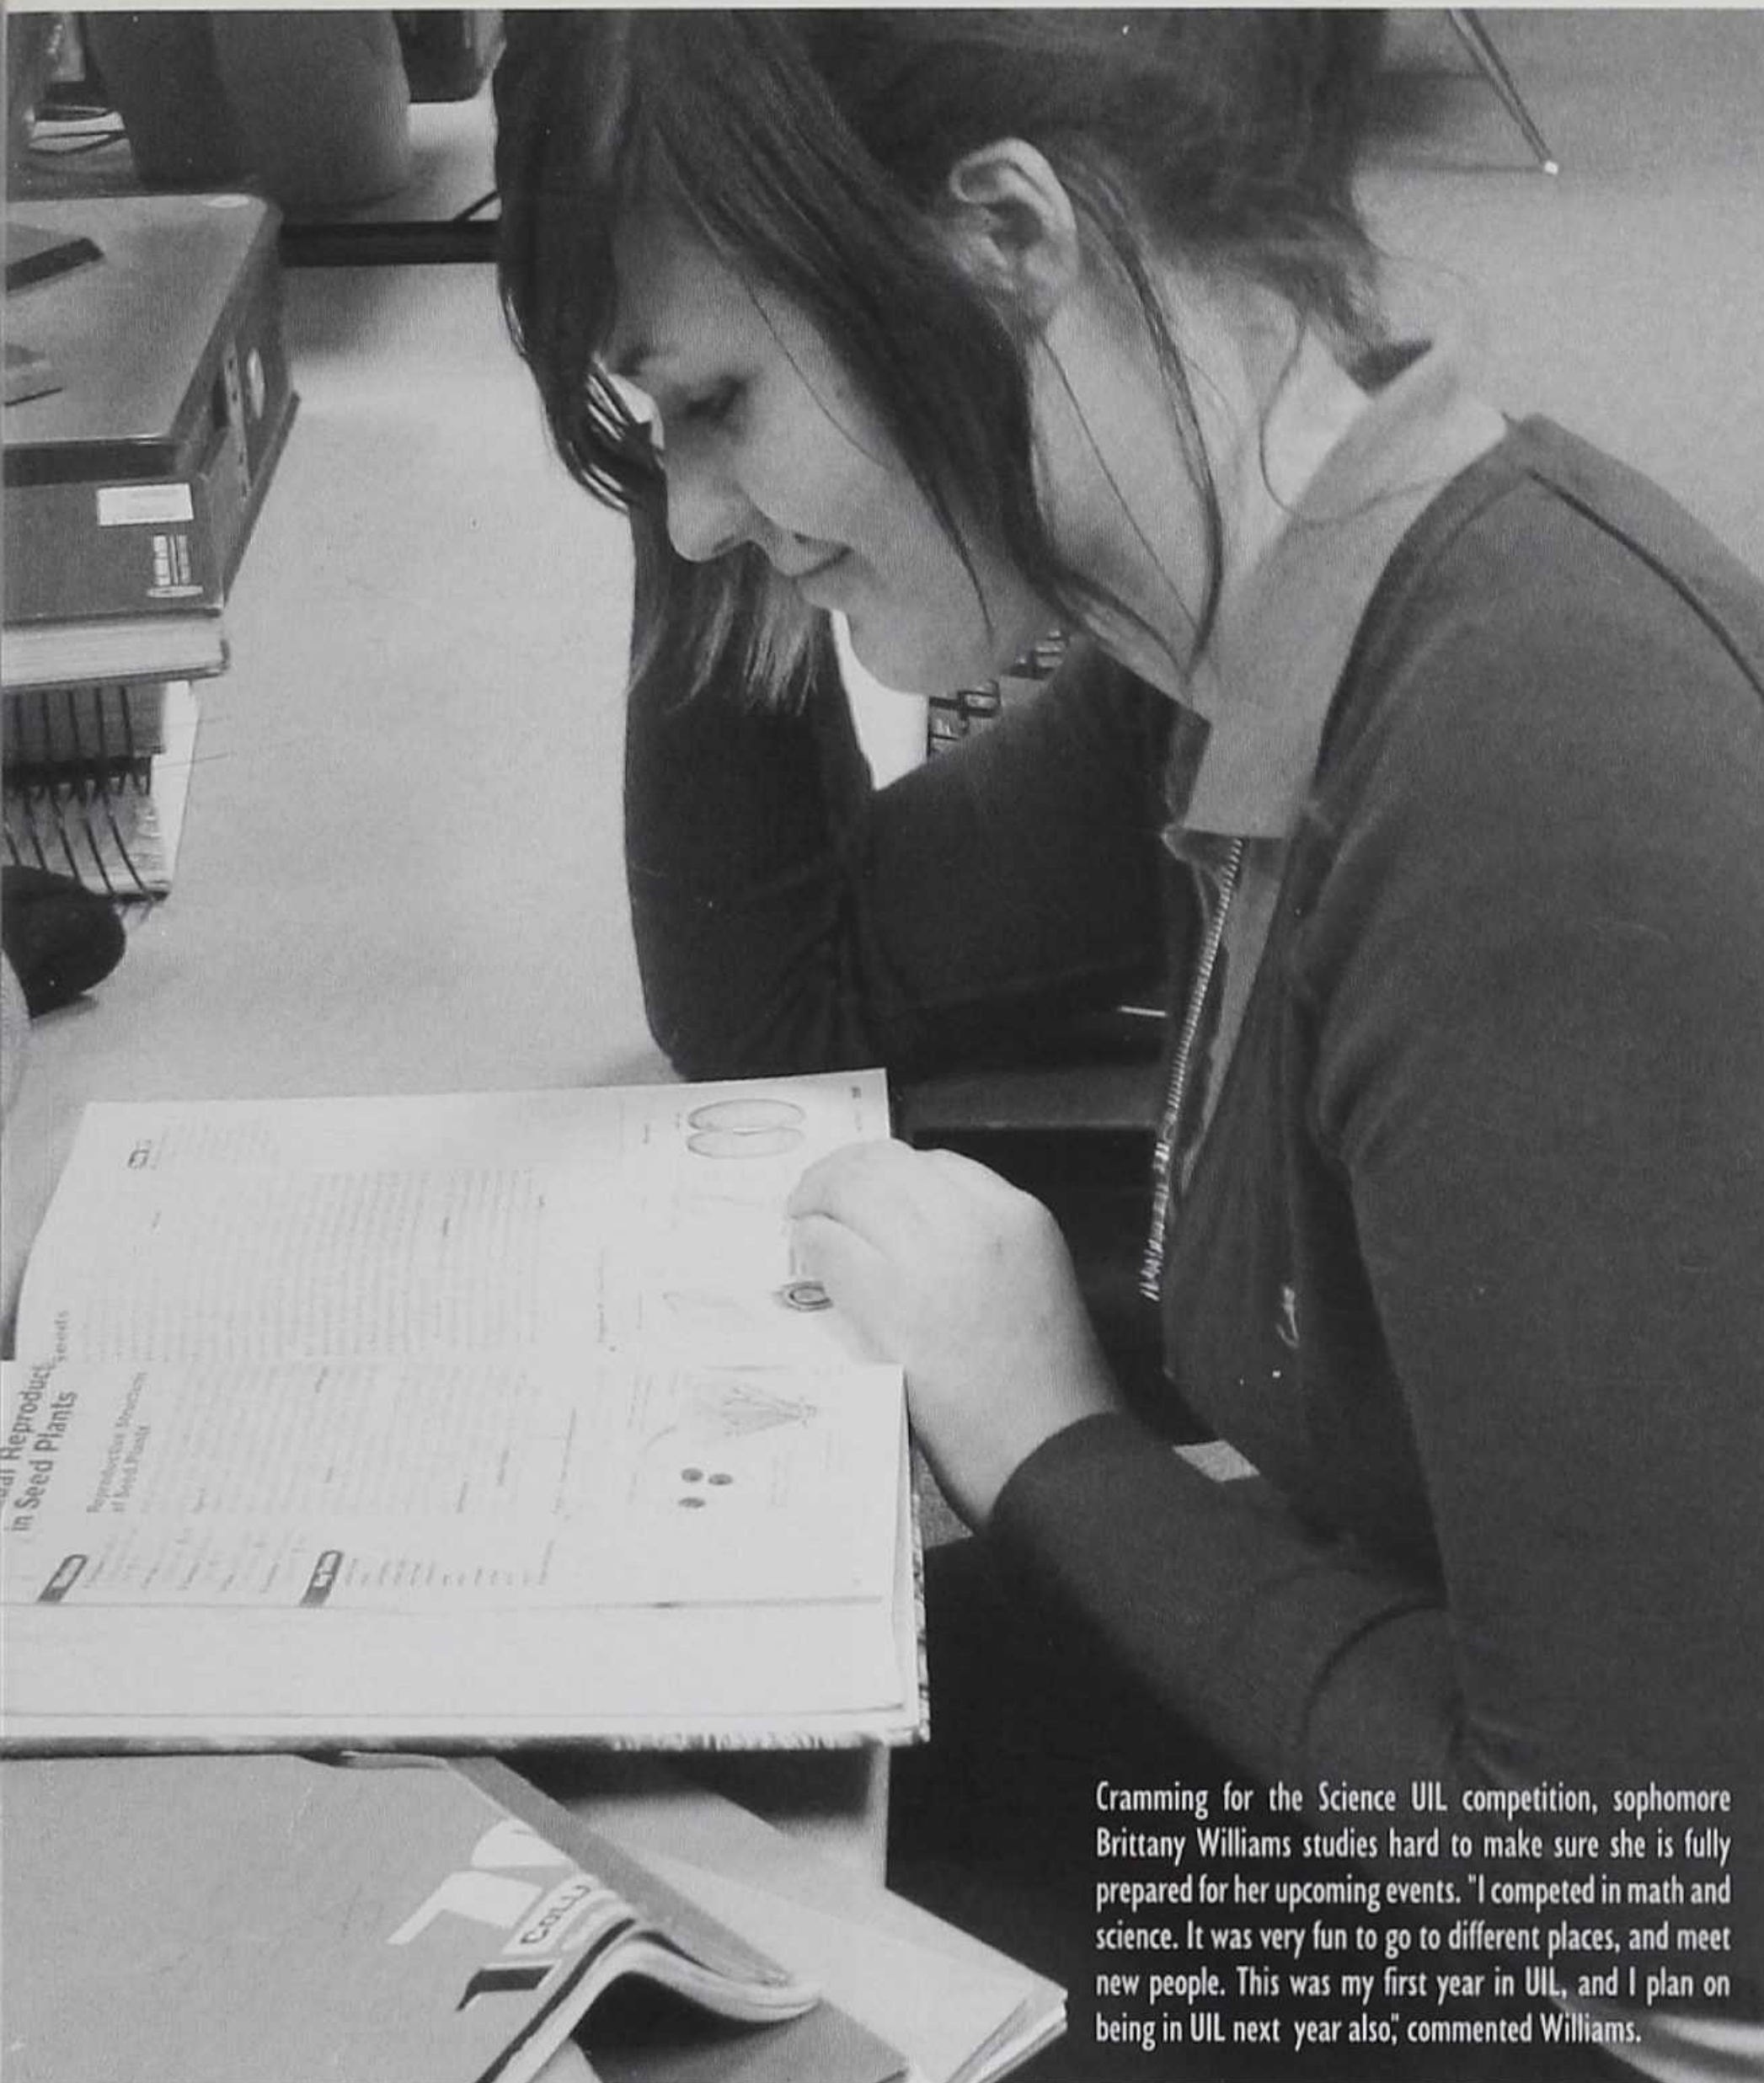

Celebrating their win, members of the Business Professionals of America take a picture after one of their competitions. "My friend Kendra thought it would be fun to be in BPA so we decided to join. I was very excited to make it to regionals and state for identity theft," stated senior Maxdiel Robles.

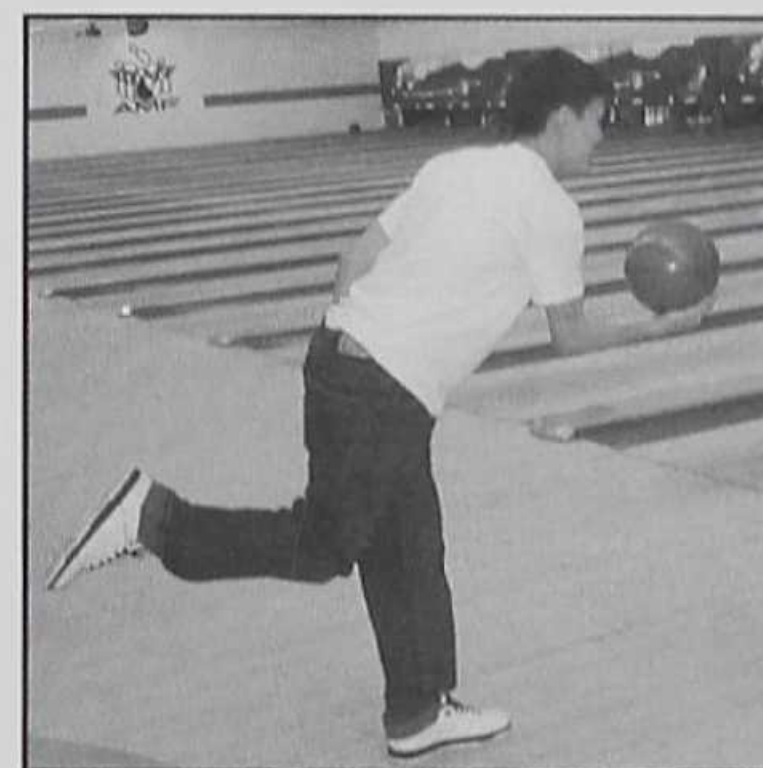

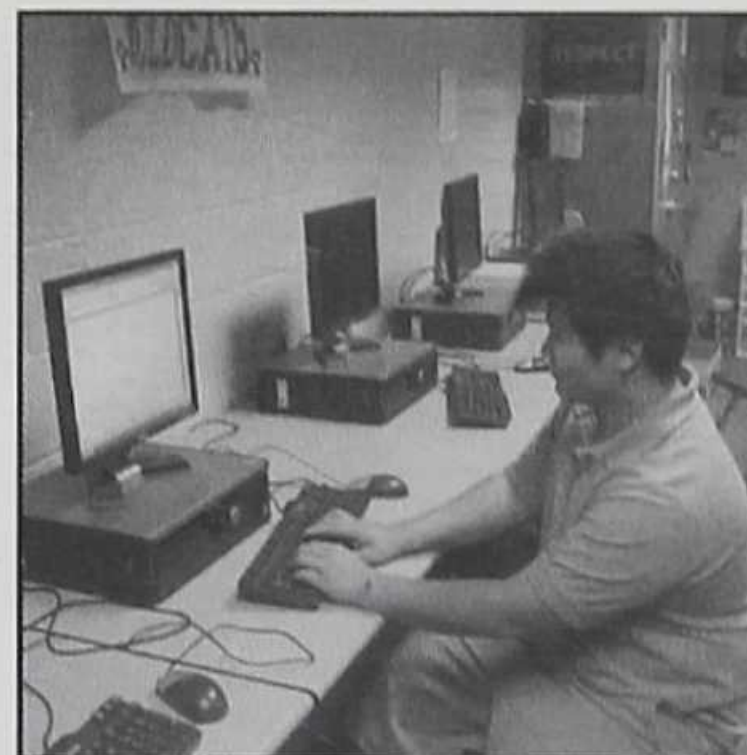

"The reason I got into BPA was because I thought it would help me later on in my life and it also looks very good on college applications.

Robert Vo (12th)

Cramming for the Science UIL competition, sophomore Brittany Williams studies hard to make sure she is fully prepared for her upcoming events. "I competed in math and science. It was very fun to go to different places, and meet new people. This was my first year in UIL, and I plan on being in UIL next year also," commented Williams.

Doing some last minute preparations, junior Jena Burger brushes up on her knowledge of history to get ready for the UIL competition. "I won first in district. Then, I went to regionals and received 5th place. I was very proud that I got the highest score in Kennedale history. It was a very exciting thing for me," said Burger.

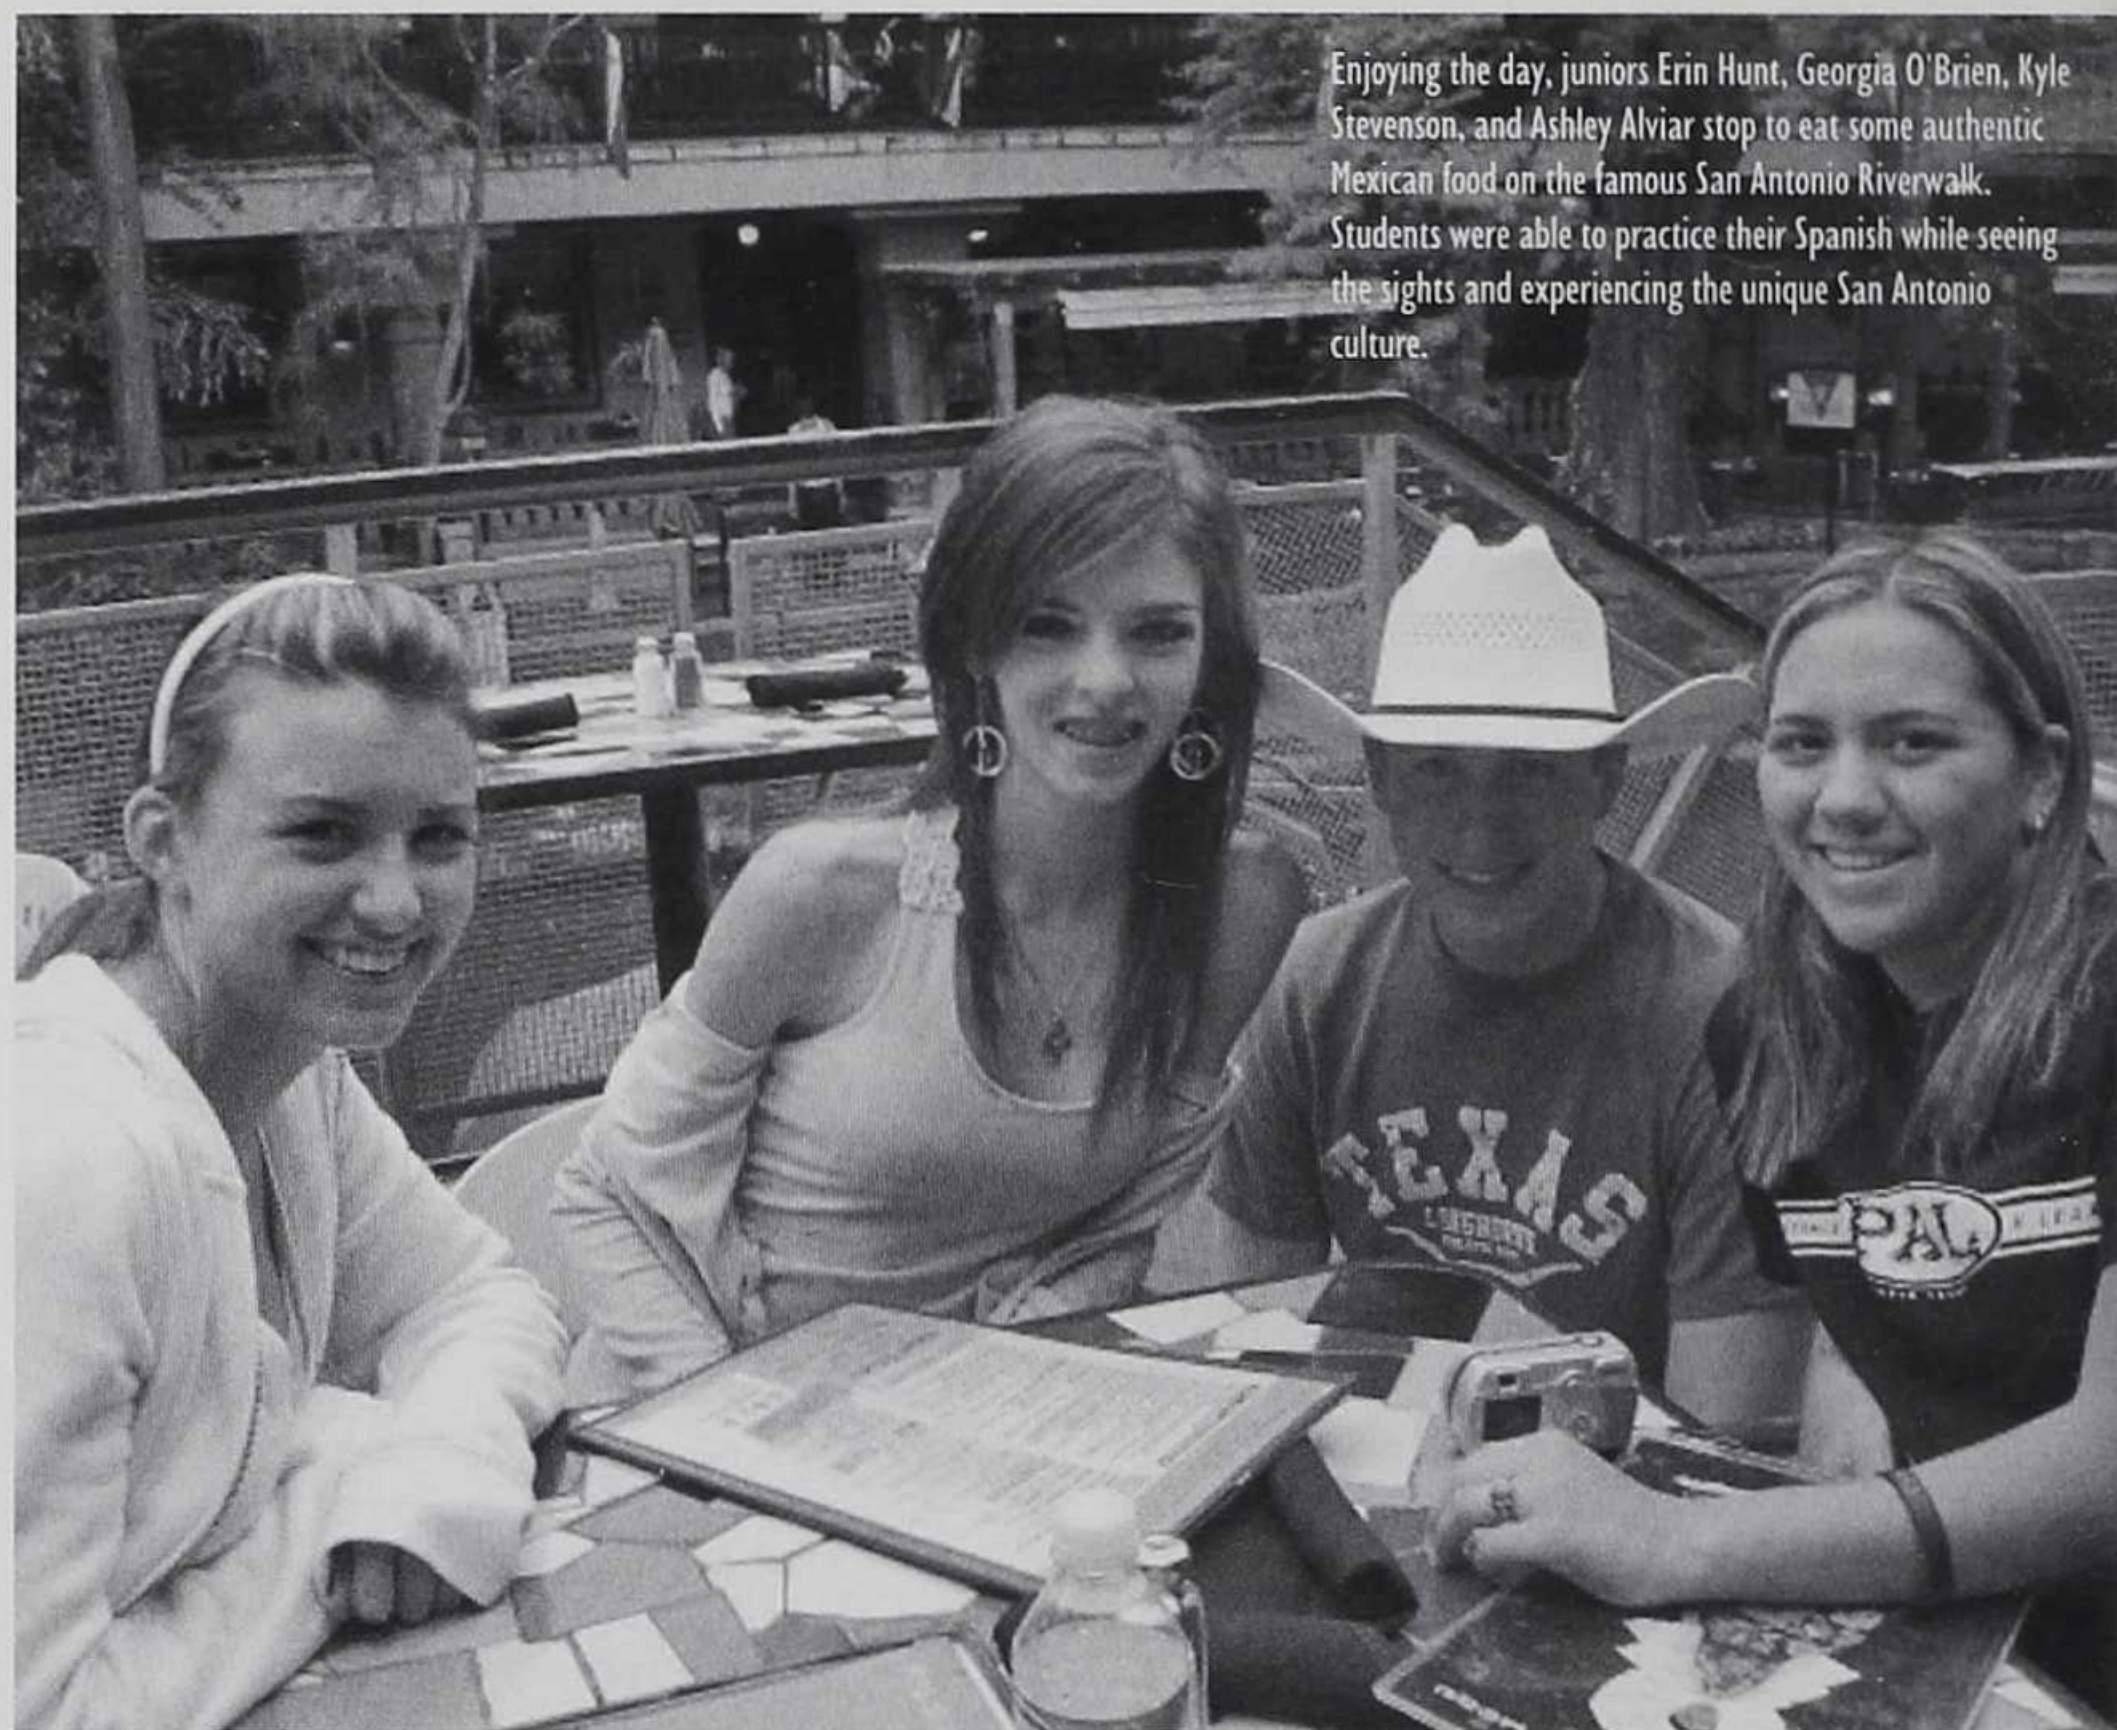

Inducting the new members of National Honor Society sponsor Ruth Worley announces the students as they receive their spot in the Kennedale High School chapter of NHS. "I like being a sponsor for NHS because I get a sense of pride when I see students achieve their goals," commented Mrs. Worley.

DeeDeeFelan (11th)

"I got into NHS to help prepare for college. The thing I look forward to most next year is being an officer and the volunteer work. It will definitely help me in my future."

Making a difference, sophomore Amber Owens takes time after school to clean up the campus with the Spanish Club. "I love being in Spanish Club and it makes me feel good to do the community service projects. I feel like I'm helping out my community." Owens has participated in almost all of the Spanish Club activities this year.

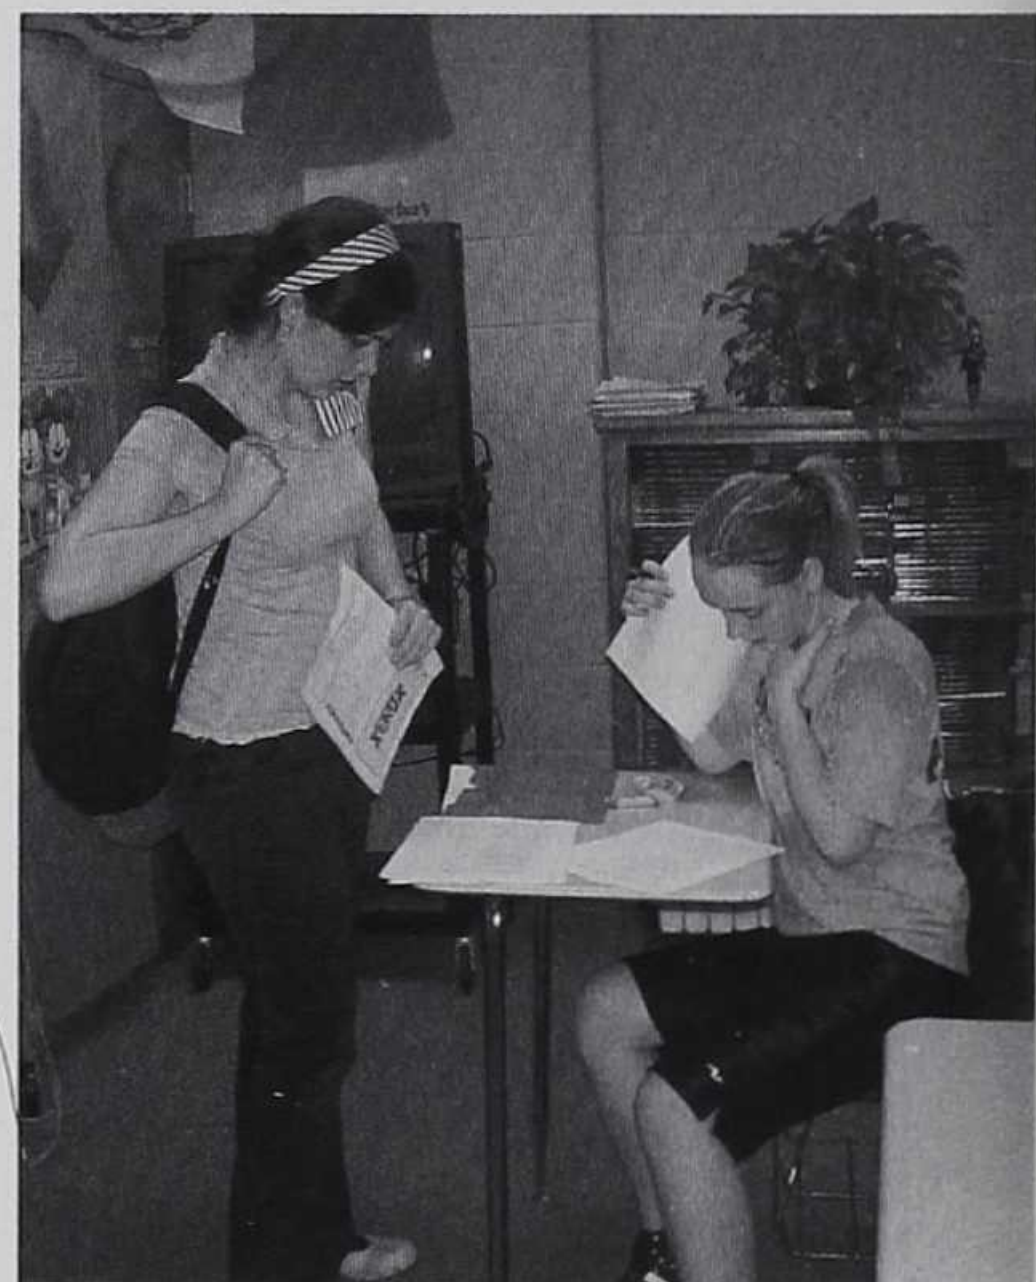

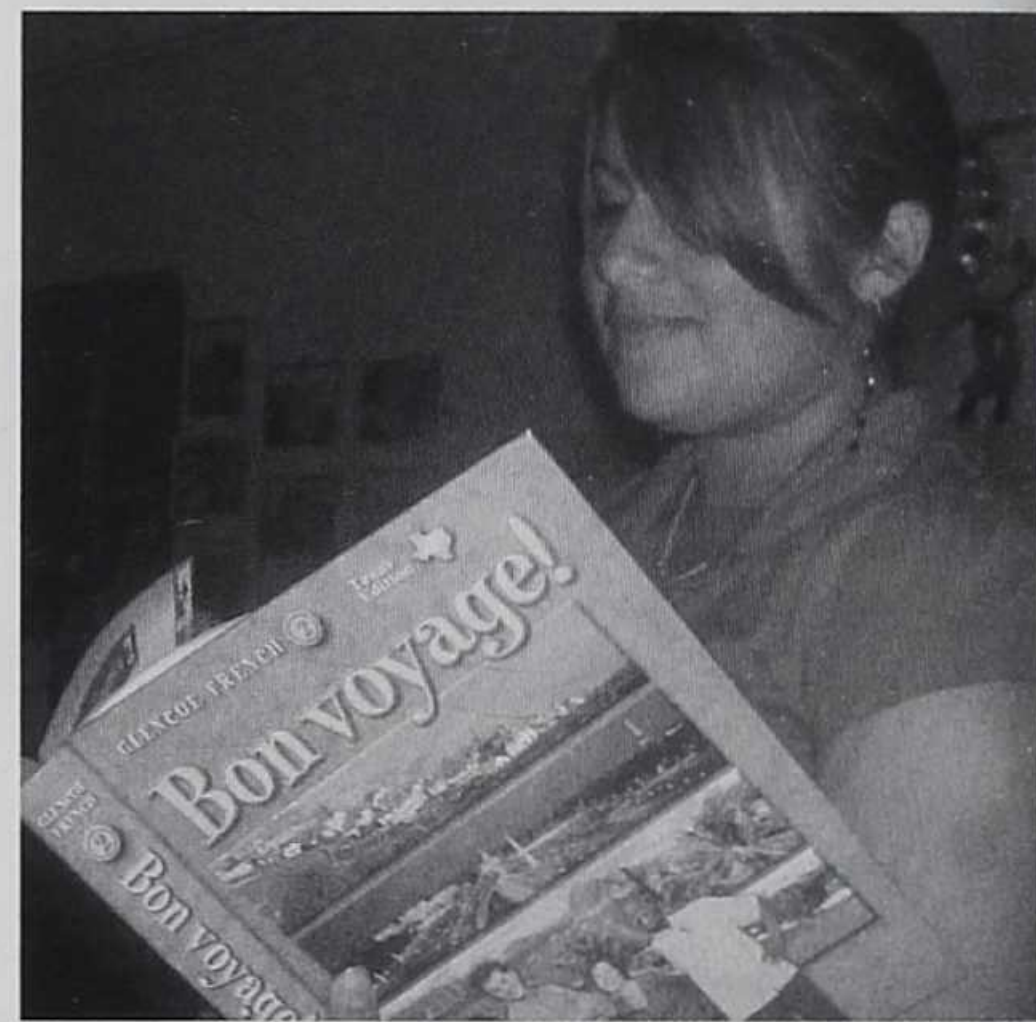

Enjoying the day, juniors Erin Hunt, Georgia O'Brien, Kyle Stevenson, and Ashley Alviar stop to eat some authentic Mexican food on the famous San Antonio Riverwalk. Students were able to practice their Spanish while seeing the sights and experiencing the unique San Antonio culture.

The two languages offered here consist of both Spanish and French. Both foreign languages are combined into a single "Foreign Language Club," however, they are usually referred to simply as Spanish Club or French Club. Due to this, the two groups don't tend to do much collaborating. Maestra Valdez - Stephens planned a trip for the Spanish Club in which about twenty students went across the state to San Antonio. The Spanish Club has taken part in several community service projects, but has managed to have a good time while doing them. "It's easy to have fun doing work when you're with your buddies," commented sophomore Ceara Swille. Led by Mrs. Dalton, the French Club participated in several fundraisers, such as selling crepes and croissants during break. They were saving money for a possible trip next year to places, such as France. "The fundraisers were pretty productive. We made some money," said sophomore Ayodele Odubela. Odubela claimed, "My parents spoke French and I've always wanted to know what they were saying, so here I am, taking French!" Students seemed to have enjoyed the foreign languages and the extra time they spent with fellow students learning the same second languages as they were. Spanish and French clubs alike focus on expanding our knowledge of foreign cultures and helping us become more well-rounded American students.

Yearbook staff captures memories of the year]

This year, the Wildcat Track yearbook staff has been hard at work finishing the big book of memories that students will cherish forever. This year's staff was made up of hardworking sophomores, juniors, and seniors who had a drive for journalism and spent countless class time hours trying to finish these exact pages. Editor in chief, junior Kayla Carnagie recalled, "This year was extremely frustrating trying to meet deadlines, but I thoroughly enjoyed it and look back on this year as a productive one." While the students hurried to complete their pages by deadlines, it was an exhilarating adrenaline rush that kept them working vigorously. Meeting deadlines included staying after school to put in extra time to complete stories, captions, and photo editing. While it was an overwhelming task at times, the staff still managed to find fun and excitement. Sophomore Courtney Suter claimed that "It was very cool knowing that I was helping document the memories students will look back on for years to come." For many students, youth is a time to be remembered, and the yearbook staff is enabling students to reflect on happy moments in their younger life. Suter shared, "It will be fun in twenty years to know people are staring at the pictures I took and saying, 'man, I can't believe I wore my hair like that' or something. It's cool to say I was part of that."

Making notes, copy editor Jena Burger, senior Kellye Moore, and yearbook advisor, Mrs. Ashley Coffman, interview an applicant for next year's staff. "As the only veteran senior on the yearbook staff, I was glad to get a quick look at the future staff member's qualities," commented Moore.

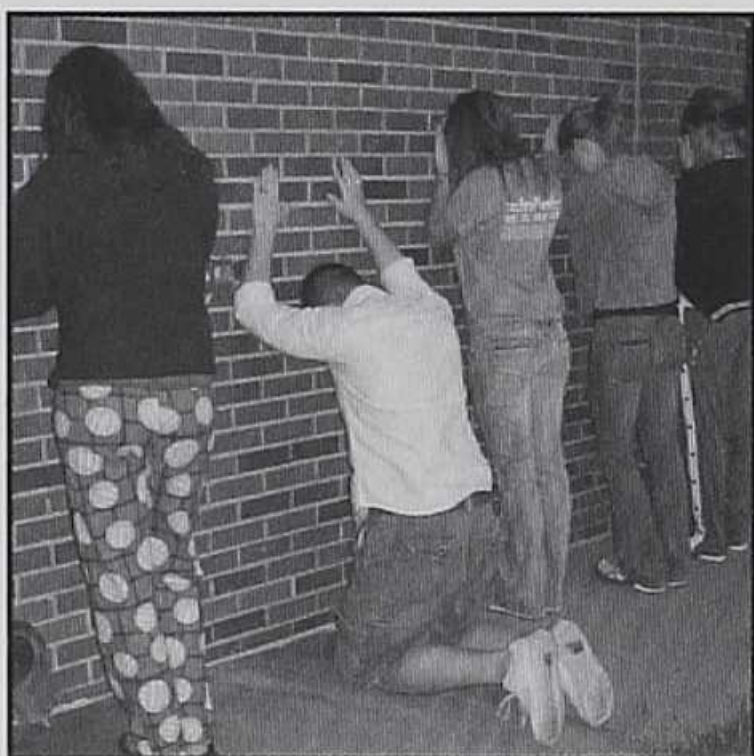

Adding photos to pages, junior Jena Burger prepares to write captions. Burger stated, "Writing captions for pictures is always a chore for me." While it's not one of her favorite parts of being in yearbook, she manages to complete it as well as all of the other tasks that come with being copy editor.

Bowing their heads with respect, sophomore Valen Thomas and junior Matt Fletcher hold hands to pray. "I remember it was my birthday. We were thanking God for all my blessings," commented Fletcher. "See You at the Pole is an event where students can find others with similar religious beliefs to relate with."

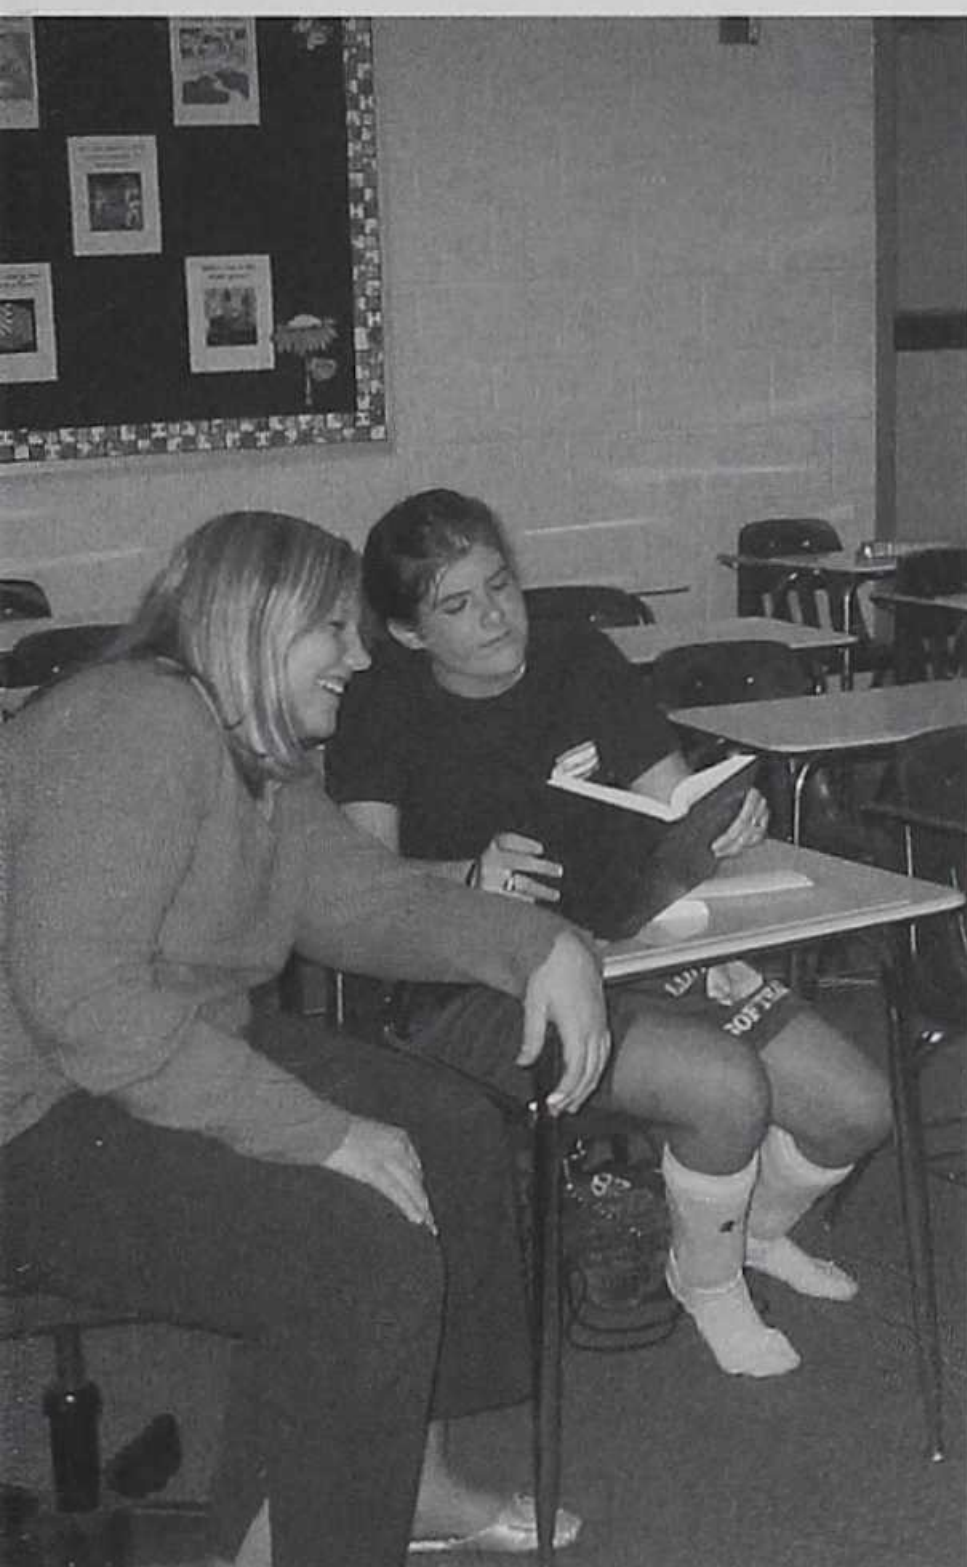

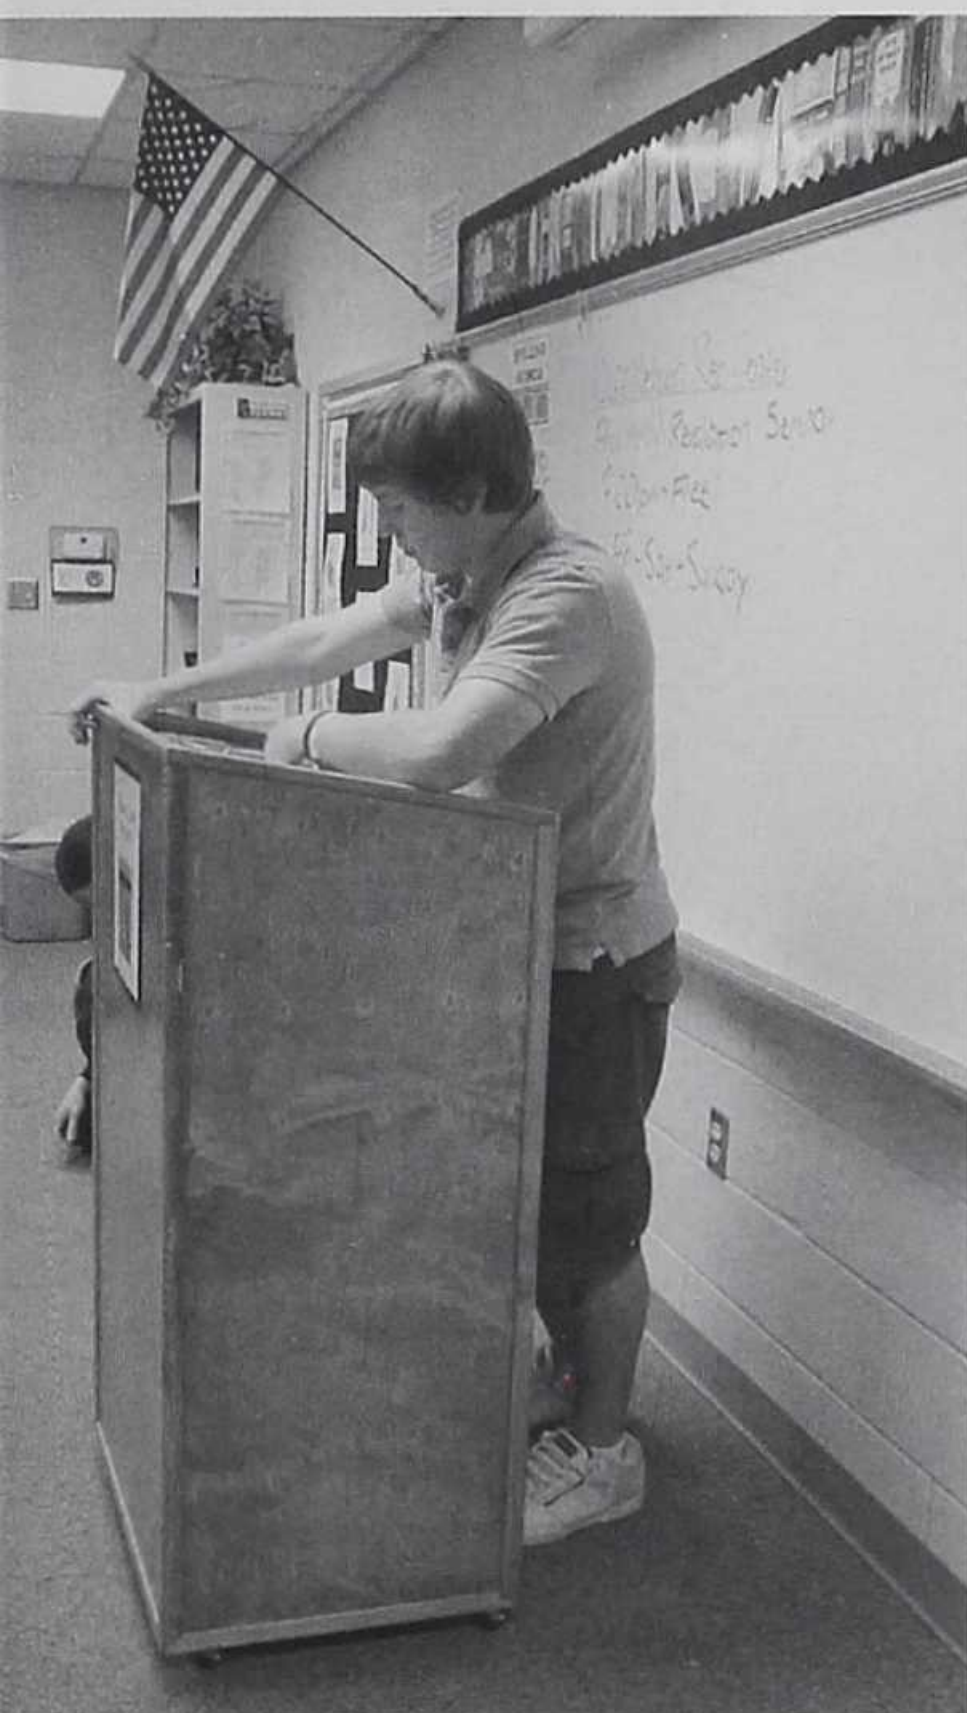

With hands on the walls, students stand together to bless the school in their prayers. Being outside or having background music played from senior Sam Craig, brought some students even closer in their worship at See You At the Pole.

h the group listening intently, sophomore Mike Reed is a study on hypocrisy. "I just wanted to get through the group and make them think about how their actions affect how other people see Christ." Though he claimed to shy in front of a group, Reed felt he needed to share his message with other students.

[coming TOGETHER

Students of all faiths unite in worship and prayer]

The two main religious clubs this year, Generation Revival, [formerly Youth Alive], and FCA [Fellowship of Christian Anybodies] both contributed greatly to our school. FCA was a more traditionally well known Christian club, while Generation Revival was a slightly more laid-back Bible study. The two clubs are both based on the Christian faith. Students spend their time at gatherings, studying the Bible, praying, and socializing with fellow Christians. The Generation Revival Club met twice a week while FCA had more sporadic meeting dates and events throughout the year. Junior Kristen Falls commented that she "enjoyed doing it a lot because [she] loves learning about Christ and sharing time with Him and with other students." At the Generation Revival meetings, students would share their specific religious beliefs and compare them with the beliefs of their peers. Members would also read sections of the Bible and explain what they interpreted it to mean. Everyone's opinions were heard, and no one was persecuted or judged for their beliefs. Throughout the year, students were very supportive of these clubs. FCA held an event where they invited students to meet at the flagpole at the front of the school to pray and worship together. "It was an uplifting experience seeing all the Christians at our school come together," said senior Amy Steinbach. "It was just such a powerful feeling holding hands and showing our love to Him." In general, teenage students like when they share the same interests and passions with other students. The religious clubs offered here allowed students to do just that, while growing in their own faith and beliefs.

Engrossed in the teaching, students in Generation Revival pay close attention as Mike Reed leads them in worship and study. Junior Bailey Turner shared, "I was in there for student council, but I really enjoyed going to the meeting. It was uplifting."

Enjoying the opportunity to come together for worship, freshman Burgandi Johnston and senior Skylar Stone brush up on their biblical reading after school. "I love going to Generation Revival. It's held in my aunt's classroom so it's convenient," commented Johnston. "I always enjoy hanging out with fellow Christians at my school."

"I really liked spending time with fellow Christians, talking about subjects and our ideas, learning about God, and just relating to and helping the others with problems."

Colorguard adds to the excitement of football games]

Though the colorguard is a part of the Wildcat band, it is an individual aspect of to our school. The girls have put in daily practices and strived to prepare for Friday night football games. The team believes that colorguard is definitely a sport, an art, and is difficult for many to master. "It's challenging, but it comes pretty naturally to me. I've wanted to be in colorguard since I was like 5, and I plan to pursue it in the future," freshman Tiffani Potter shared. Football season is a big deal to the members of colorguard. They have to do a lot of practicing to perfect the routines for the audience's enjoyment. The group performed at each game along with the band. "It gives everyone a great big smile on their faces when they see how hard we've worked," Potter recalled. In their off-season, the girls played instruments and participated with the band. While color guard was small, they are hopeful about the size of the group next year. "There is a large group trying out for next year," Elizabeth Olvera commented. The four girls involved in the colorguard program were driven to spend many frustrating hours learning the routines. "It can be really hard, but after you get the hang of it, it simplifies and becomes more fun," freshman Angela Folmar stated.

Adding to the already elaborate decorations of Homecoming, the colorguard team poses with their flags on the field. "I love colorguard. It is artistic yet performing in front of a huge crowd is great," sophomore Elizabeth Olvera shared. "I love putting on a show for people."

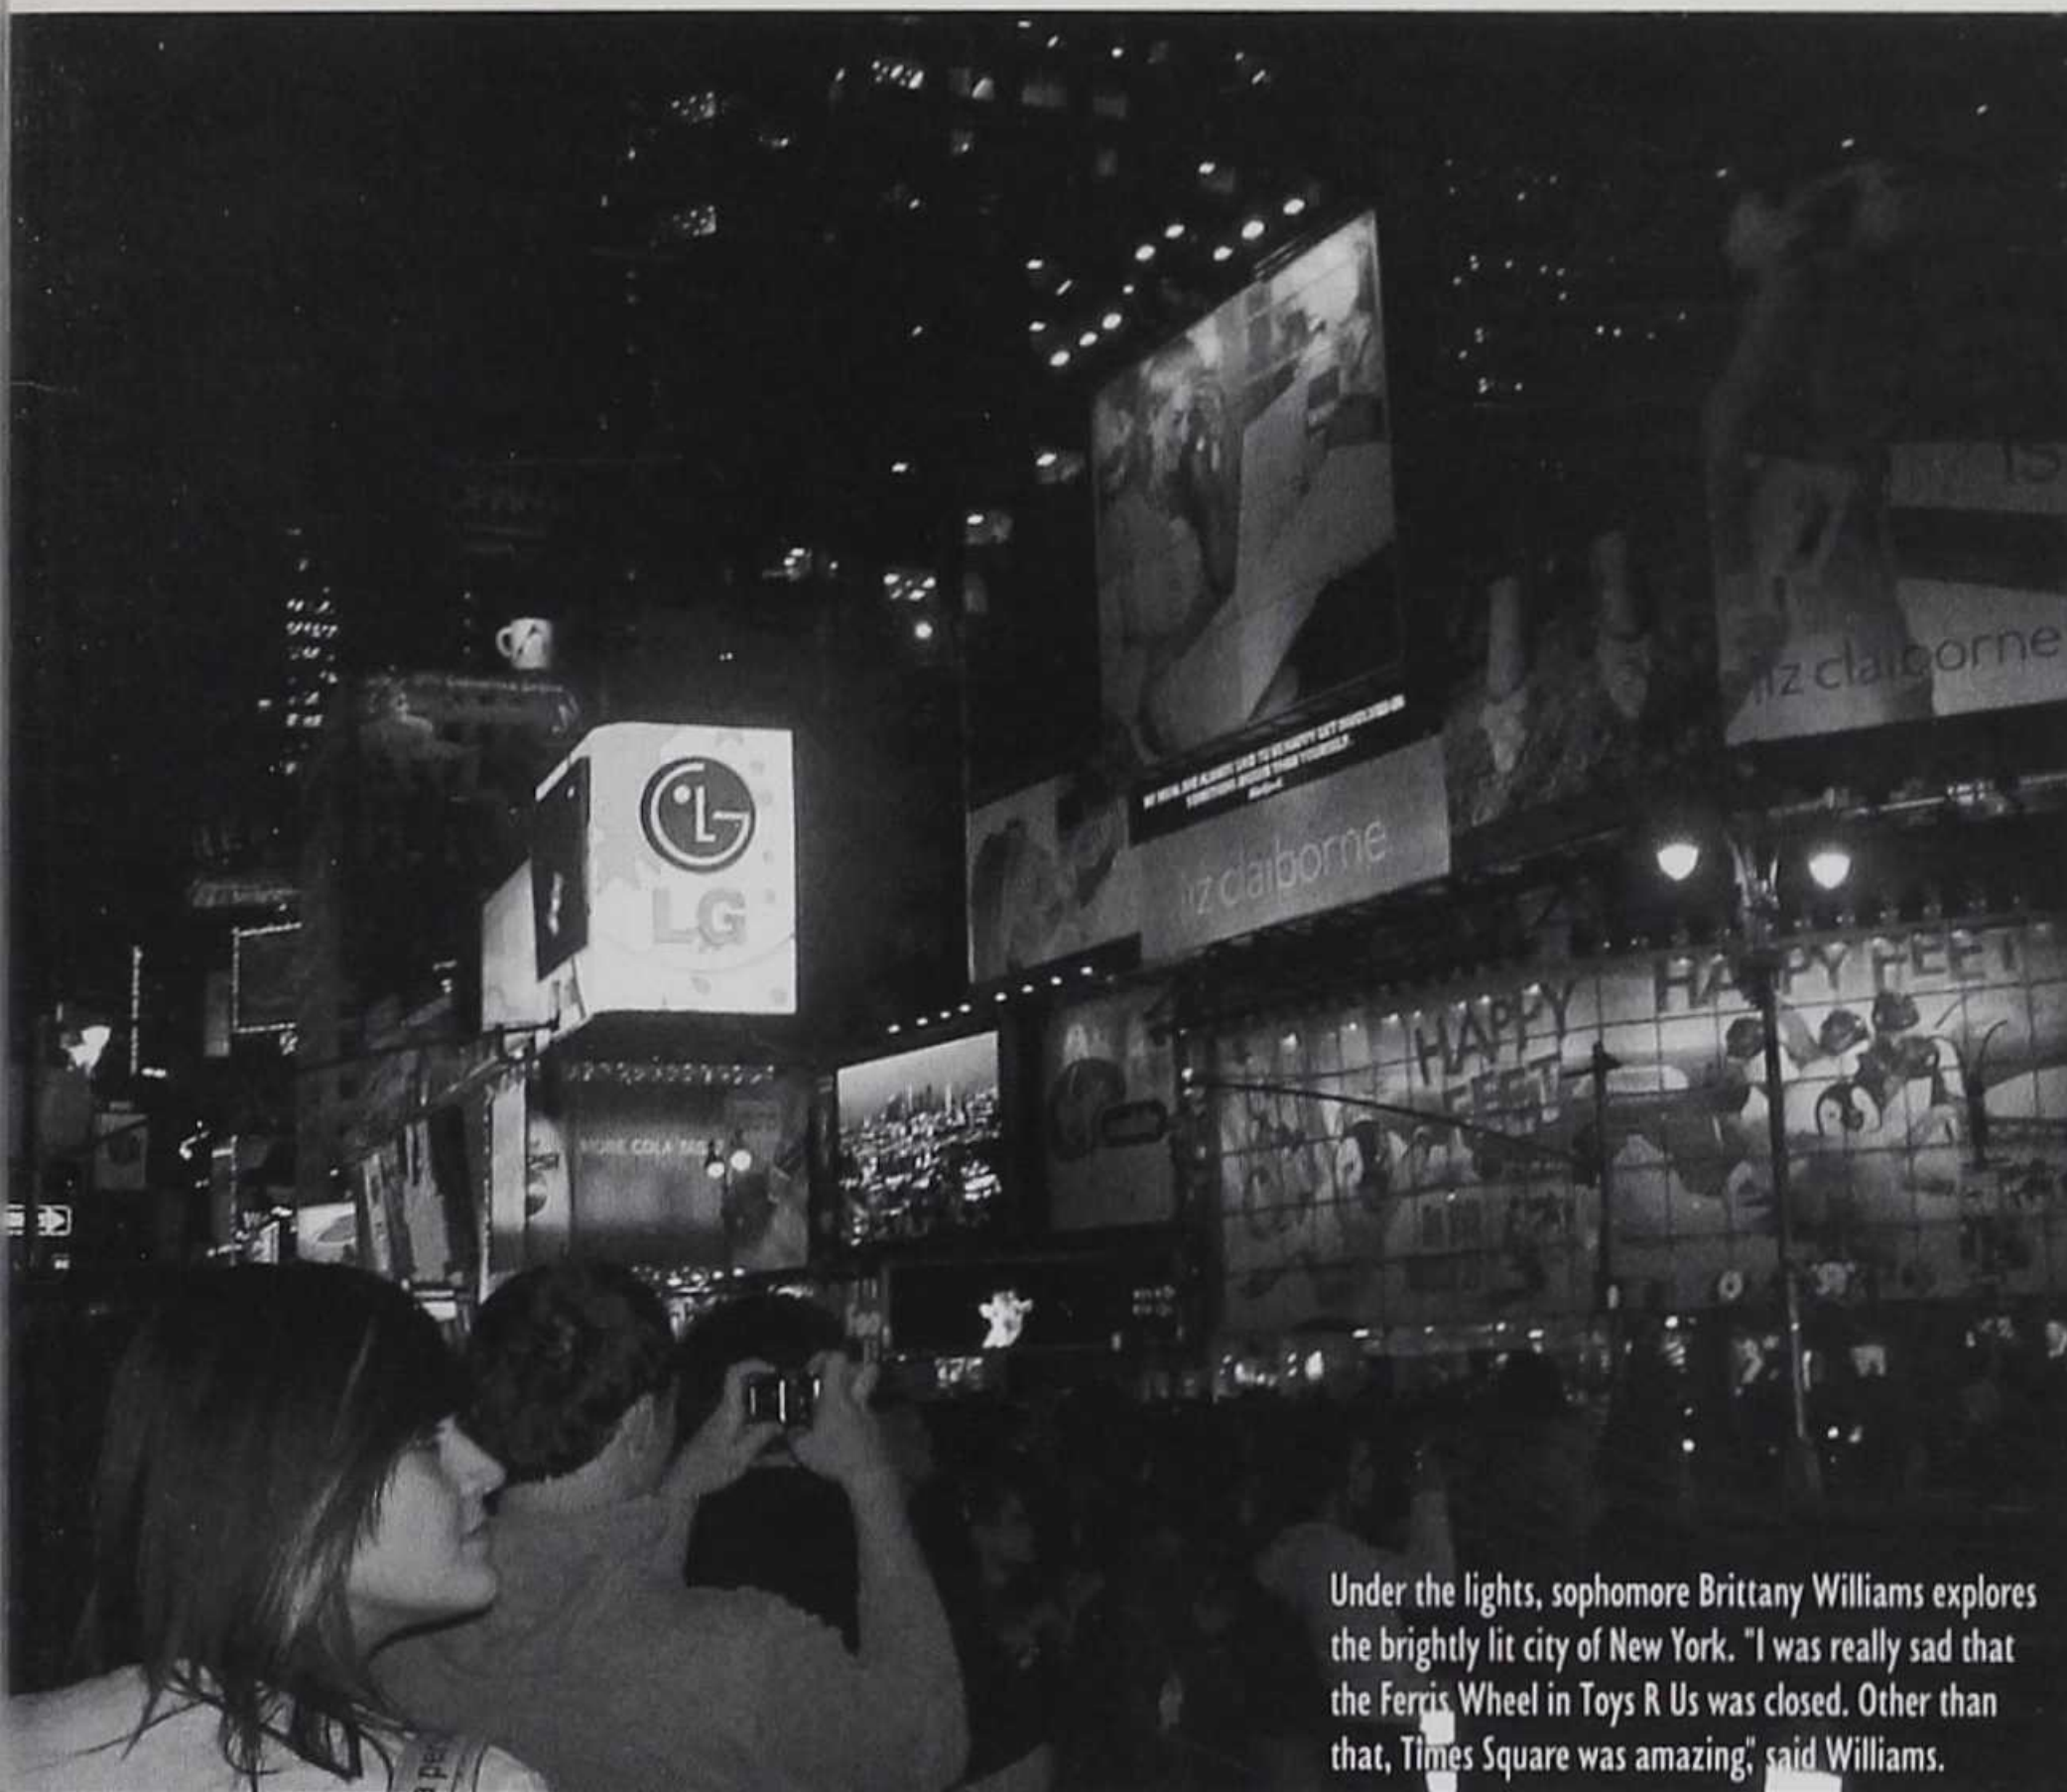

"Colorguard is not about twirling flags. It is a sport of art. The adrenaline rush that I get from performing this art in front of many fans is very thrilling."

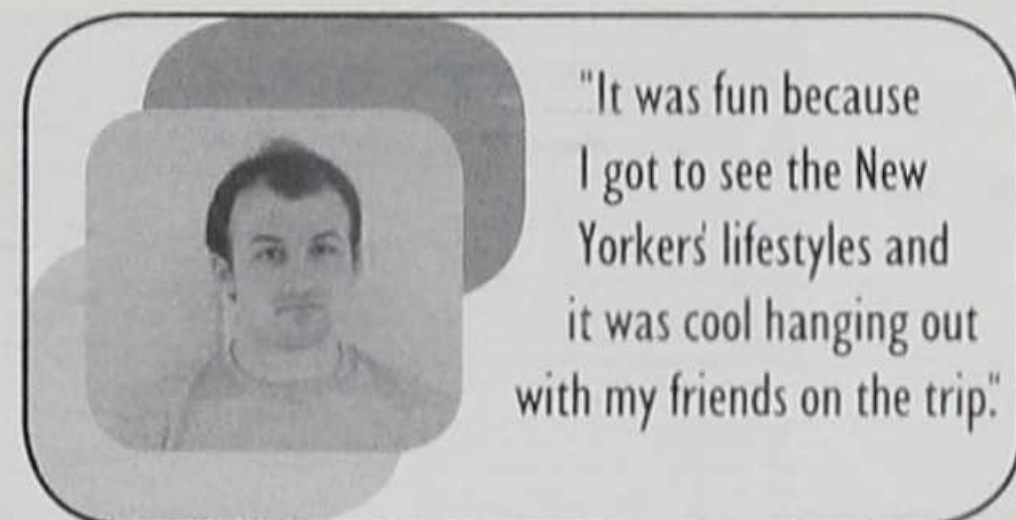

Diana Alvarado (10th)

During a halftime routine at a football game, the colorguard twirls the flags to the beat of the band. Freshman Angela Folmar recalled, "I like seeing everyone cheering for the team. I always have a really fun time."

Under the lights, sophomore Brittany Williams explores the brightly lit city of New York. "I was really sad that the Ferris Wheel in Toys R Us was closed. Other than that, Times Square was amazing," said Williams.

"It was fun because I got to see the New Yorkers' lifestyles and it was cool hanging out with my friends on the trip."

Seth Glover (11th)

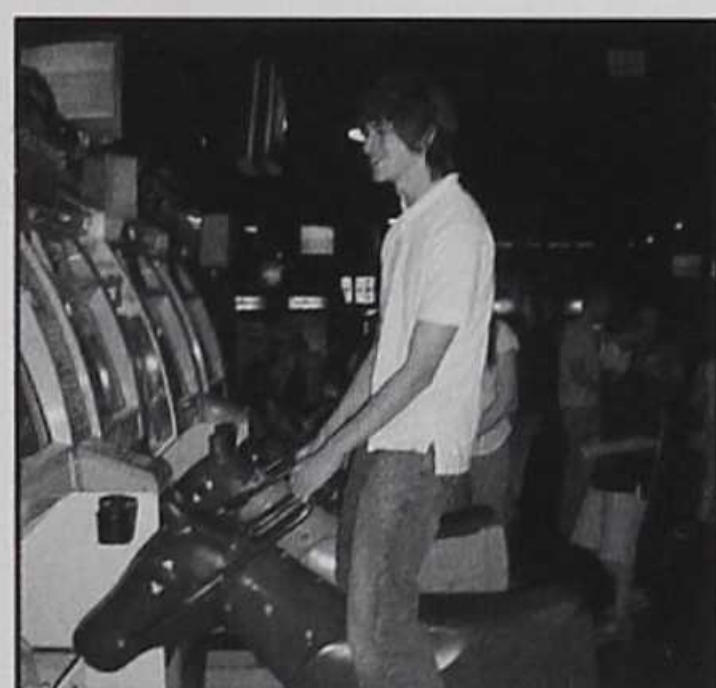

Being praised by many little hands, sophomore Benjamin Taylor gives children "high fives" in Central Park. "It was great knowing that I made the children happy for a day under the mask," commented Taylor. "I love children and I love Spiderman."

One of the major field trips of this year was the fine arts trip to New York City. While the group of 105 people toured the city, they were immersed in culture and buildings many had never seen before. Whether they were touring art museums, seeing plays, participating in workshops, or singing in competitions, the fine arts students found a way to have fun while keeping the trip educational. During their downtime, teens found their way to the best shopping. "I loved Chinatown. The shopping was great. We all had a good time yelling at cabs, 'Hey, I'm walkin' here!'" senior Christina Tidwell remembered. Another favorite activity of the students was eating at famous restaurants. However, not all of them were as good as the legends have claimed. Senior Chris Reynolds recalled some of the restaurants, "I ate at a place called 'Hot and Crusty?' Oh, and Harold and Kumar were idiots. I ate at White Castle, and it was NOT the best." On their way to eat, shop, or sight-see, students had the full experience of New York by means of transportation. "It was so scary when I got left on the subway, but it left me with a good story to tell." Senior Meaghan Flaherty recollected. The field trip to New York was eventful, exciting, and left the students exhausted as they returned home to Kennedale.

[making HISTORY

Band makes first trip to state competition]

When people think about high school football games, the halftime show put on by the band is often something that also comes to mind for many. Not only does the band play throughout the games and pep rallies, but they also compete among hundreds of other state high school bands during the spring and fall.

"This year took a lot of hard work in order for us to obtain what we did. The directors made us work hard and weren't always the nicest people, but in the end, we got exactly what we wanted and had a good time doing it," commented sophomore Alex Sleeth. The band received a sweepstakes at their UIL competition for the second year in a row. To receive a sweepstakes, the band had to make straight I's in marching, sight reading, and concert. They also went to San Antonio for the State marching competition. "This was Kennedale's first time in history to go to state for band. Only 20 bands from our class all around the state received that honor," commented junior Erik Hackett. "So it was a big feat in our eyes." After state, the band took another group trip, this time out of the state, to the Colorado Rockies for another competition and a few days of skiing and snowboarding. Yet again, the band received straight I's and was presented with the Best in Class Award. "Colorado was a ski trip that the band could enjoy together" commented junior Cameron Garland, "It was also something that didn't involve San Antonio!" With their intense dedication and talent, the band program will continue to grow and succeed in everything they set out to accomplish.

Tuning in to the beat, senior Taylor Hardin strikes the perfect notes adding to the songs. A four-year band member, making it to state was a great accomplishment. "My favorite band memory is going to state my senior year. It made my last year of high school the greatest," commented Hardin.

Marching with pride into the stadium, the band focuses on their job in the football game. During the games, their primary job was to distract the other team with loud and exciting songs. Their other job was to encourage our players by playing songs like the Alma Mater, which represents our school pride.

"Even through hard and tough times, band pulls together to achieve great accomplishments. I cannot wait to see what band will do in the forthcoming years."

Robby Wehr (10th)

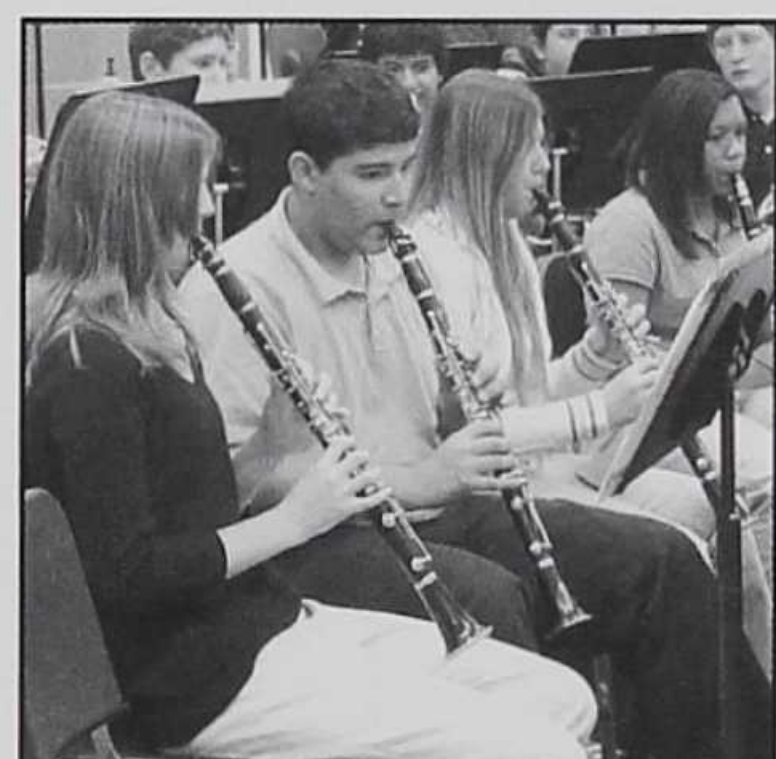

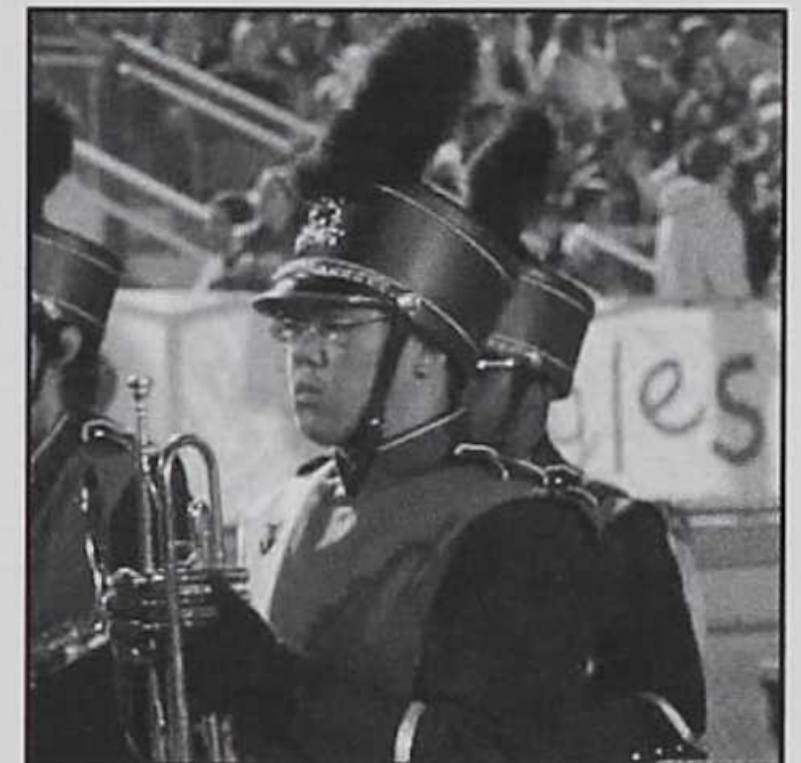

Playing his heart out, freshman J.J. Sedberry synchronizes his beat on the toms with the rest of the band. Sedberg was just one member of the 14-person drumline. "Like always we were just trying to jam and enjoy what we were playing," stated Sedberg.

Walking through the snow, Matthew Beggs, Krysten Warren, Sage McCoy and Josh Owens enjoy the fresh mountain air and their time away from school. "The best part of band is missing school even though there is piles of makeup work when we get back. The trips are so much fun!" exclaimed sophomore Krysten Warren.

"As long as I can remember I have been in choir. The best part about choir is doing the thing I love and that's singing. To get myself prepared for a concert I talk to my friends and try to relax."

Practice makes perfect as junior Chris Chreene practices for his Pizzazz concert in the choir room. Chreene has been in the Pizzazz program for two and a half years. "I definitely will be in Pizzazz next year, and to get myself pumped I drink my favorite tea and 'chill out,'" said Chreene.

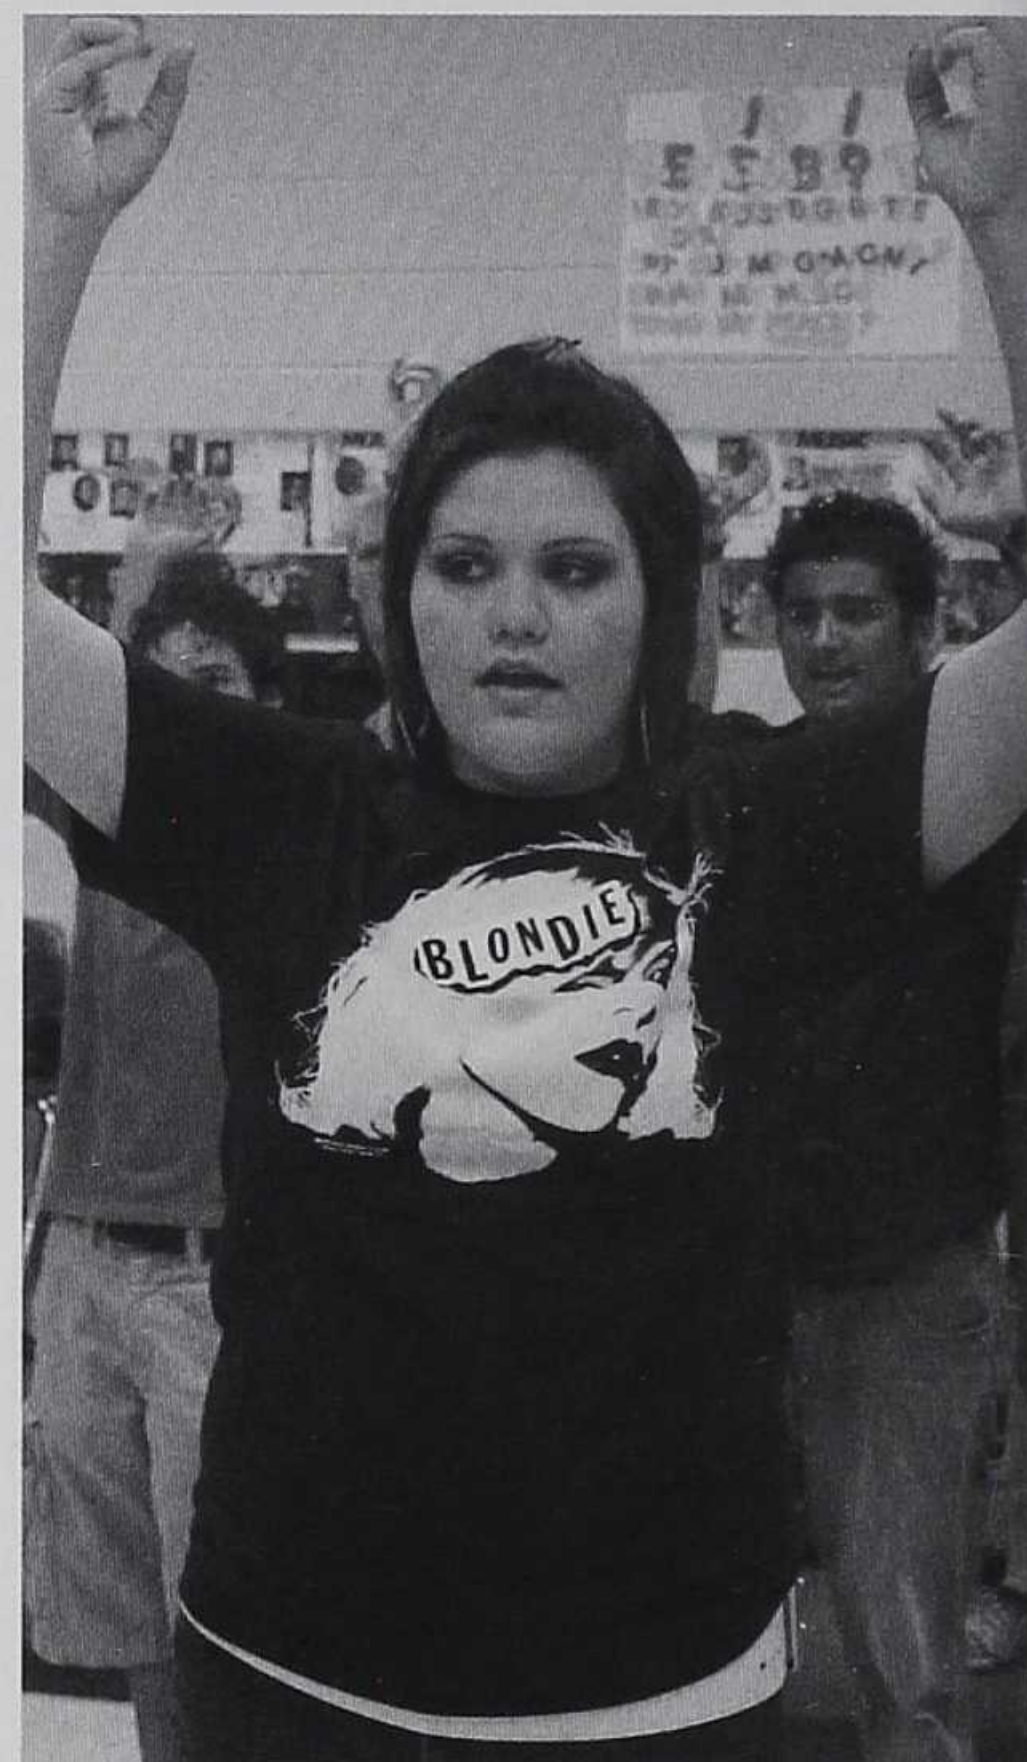

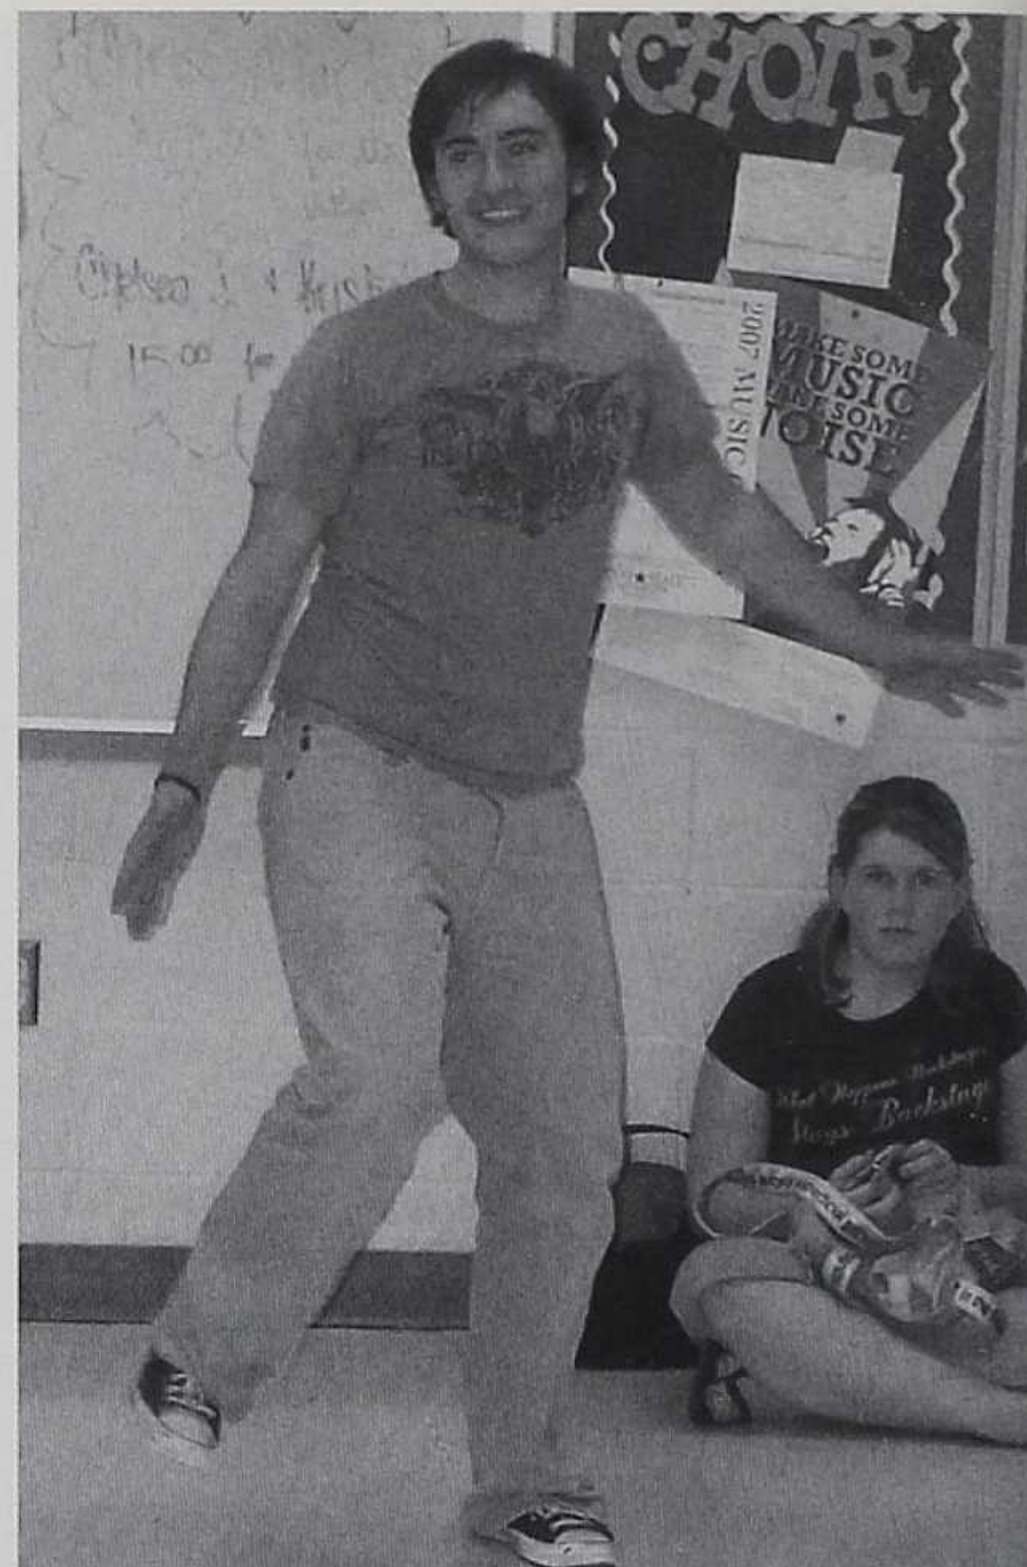

Singing their hearts out, Ms. Sara Jacobi directs the Kennedale Varsity Choir in their concert performance in May. Ms. Jacobi came to Kennedale in February and had to quickly prepare them for UIL competition, concerts, and a performance in New York City.

Choir is a class that is a part of the fine arts department at Kennedale High School. Students that are involved in the choir program get the opportunity to show off their love for singing and their skills in vocal and sight reading performance. The choir students perform year round at many concerts featuring Broadway hits, peaceful choral pieces, and pop pieces. This year, the varsity choir traveled to Weatherford High School for the Universal Interscholastic League's (UIL) annual contest. In sight reading, the varsity choir received a four, and on their stage performance they received a two. All of the students in choir have gone through many challenges this year. At the beginning of the year students had to cope with the unexpected change of a new teacher. Over half way through the year, the choirs got another new teacher, Ms. Jacobi. She took on the job just a few short weeks before UIL, but she managed to get the choir prepared. Although these students had been through a lot this year, they remained focus on what really matters. "I've been in choir for three years, and I'm very proud that I was elected choir president my senior year. It's definitely the highlight of my life. Music has always been a huge part of my life, and I will continue to pursue it as I enter college," commented senior Chelsea Johnson. The choir program went to New York in May, along with the rest of the fine arts department. While there, they participated in a competition, and placed second over all. These students had an amazing year, and definitely made a huge impact on the choral program.

With her eyes focused on the director, freshman Brook Hallman practices for a choir concert. Hallman's voice was heard at many games, and will be heard for years to come. "Choir has been a lot of fun this year and a lot of great friendships have developed in choir. I'll never forget some of the experiences I've had this year," commented Hallman.

[singingwithCONFIDENCE

Singing a heartfelt solo, senior Chris Reynolds blows the crowd away at the first choir concert of the year. Reynolds has been in choir since his freshman year, "I love singing and performing at competitions and my favorite part about this year was the All-State competition and All-State camp," stated Reynolds.

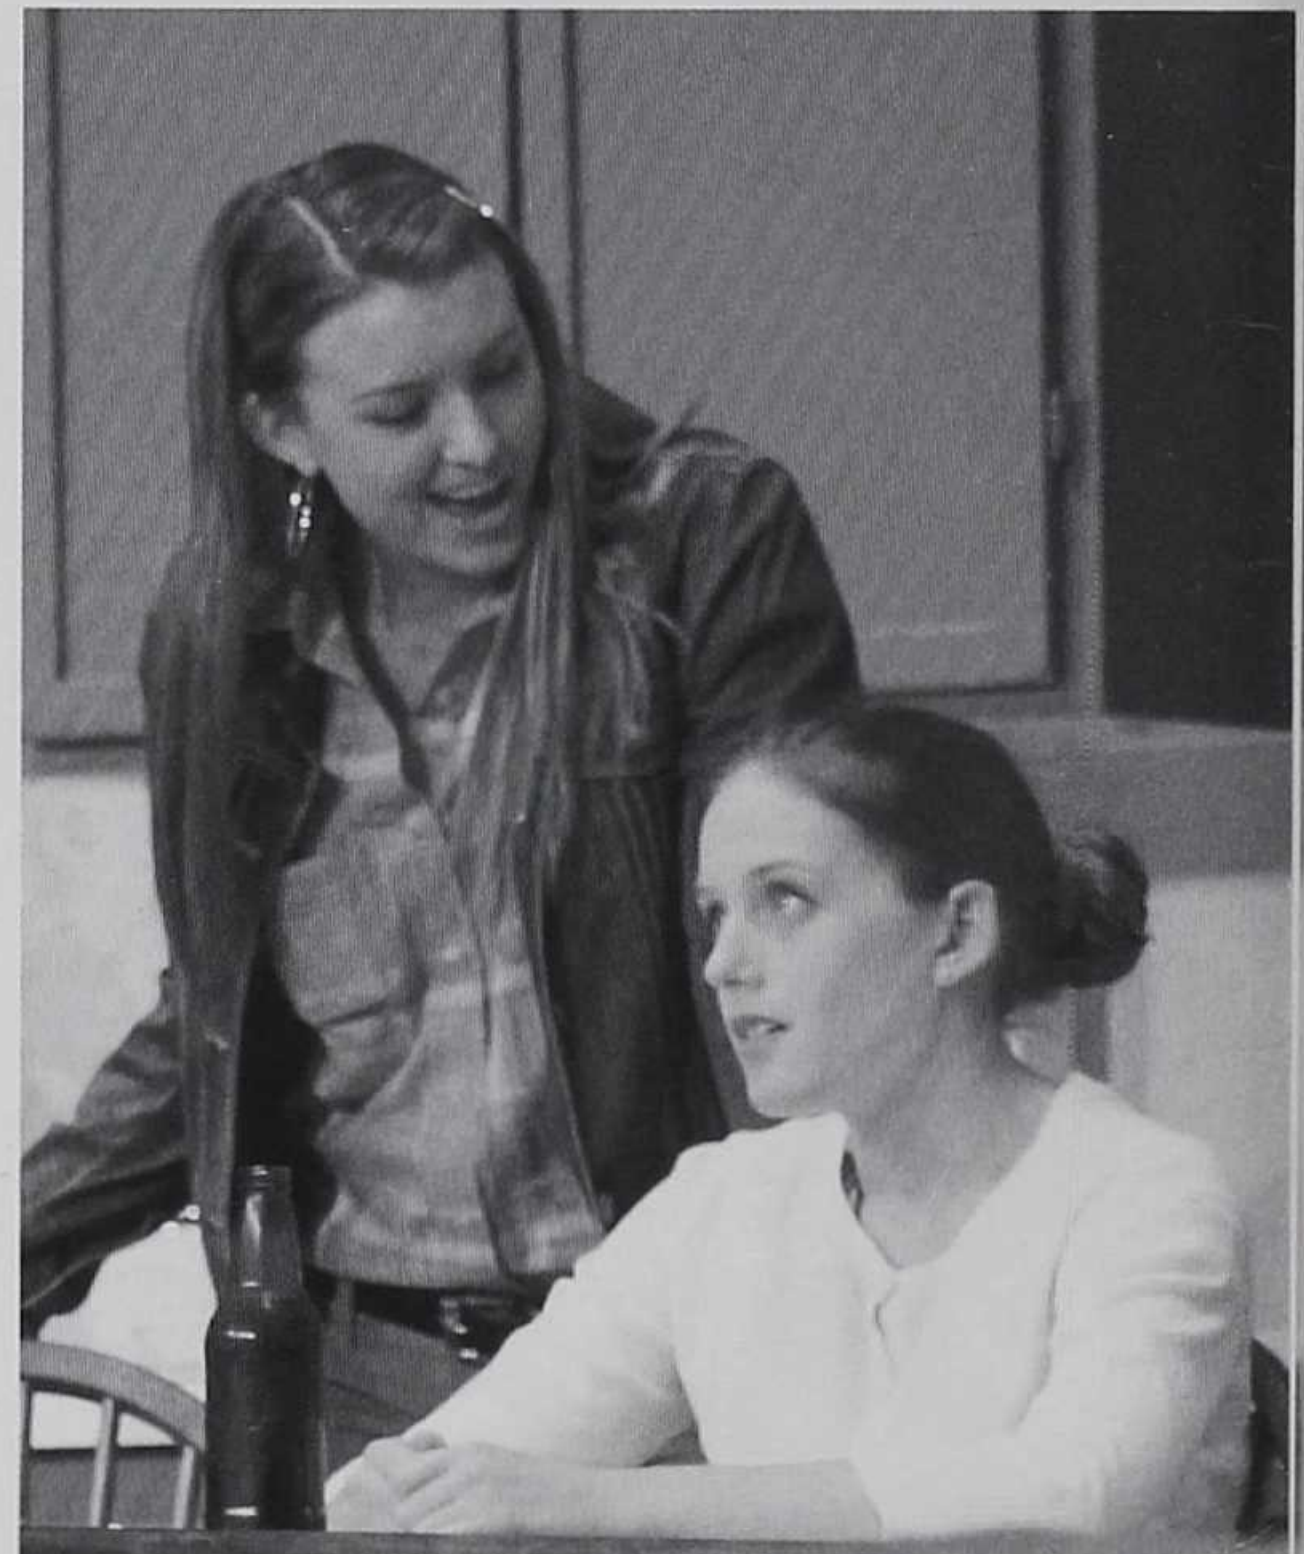

Performing for the crowd, Pizzazz members sing and dance in one of their many concerts. Pizzazz members worked hard throughout the year, despite the slow start to the program. The students practiced after school to perfect their routines and had fun with their final product - a great performance!

Playing the leads in High School Musical, senior Chris Reynolds and sophomore Ceara Swille belt out a ballad for the audience. "It was my first musical and I really loved it, because I enjoy acting and singing. It's a rush for me," stated Swille. High School Musical was sold out during all of its showings.

Performing together in Crimes of the Heart, juniors Maria Gross and Erin Hunt run through their lines. "Theatre is great because it contains all sorts of groups; drill team, jocks, cheerleaders, powerlifters, and artists," commented Gross. Gross also took part in theatre's One Act Play for the UIL competition.

[actingitOUT

Students take part in school play and musical]

Showing the attitude of their characters, senior Chelsea Johnson and junior Chris Chreene take part in the spring musical, High School Musical. "Getting to do High School Musical this year was so much fun," commented Chreene. Chreene and Johnson also performed in the fall play, Crimes of the Heart.

The theatre department kicked off this year with the play Crimes of the Heart. Crimes of the Heart is a Pulitzer prize winning play by Beth Henley. This year, Mr. Parker, theatre director, pulled a unique move by casting two different groups of people for the same play. The show started off with cast members including lead roles by senior Chris Reynolds, juniors Maria Gross, Erin Hunt, and sophomore Ceara Swille. The next group of thespians performed later in the week and included such persons as juniors Marissa Ericson, Simone Warner, and Brittany Sims. The casting of two different sets of thespians allowed for a completely different performance of the play which allowed the audience to see it in many different lights. "I really think Mr. Parker did a good job on picking the shows," stated junior Kristin Maniord. "They were really interesting and made you think." The plays we did this year were definitely a lot of fun. The morals of the play and musical were about sticking together and realizing we're all in this together," commented Warner.

The spring musical this year was High School Musical, made popular from the original movie on the Disney Channel. "I really enjoyed learning the new songs and dances from High School Musical," said play assistant director Conor Donohue. "Getting to meet all of the new theatre kids is really neat too." The thespians continued onward after their spring musical to prepare for the One Act Play where the tech crew received All-District and numerous thespians were rewarded with honorable mentions.

Backstage, junior Serena DeLeon applies stage makeup to senior Adam Sparling. Stage makeup was an essential aspect of the show; without it, light would shine off their faces. It also helped the actors and actresses look the age they portray. For example, Sparling played a middle aged character with children and a wife.

Acting with heart, cast members juniors Brittany Sims and Seth Glover give the performance of their life in Crimes of the Heart. "I really enjoyed performing in Crimes of the Heart," commented Glover. "The cast was really fun to work with." Sims and Glover were a part of the second cast chosen to perform Crimes of the Heart.

[defining IDENTITIES

“As you grow, you begin to realize what's important in life and begin to understand who you are and that not everything needs to be so dramatic.”

- Zach Waters, senior

High school is the time in our lives when we grow and change into the adults we will become. After these four years, we will no longer have our hands held and our backs watched. We will be adults just starting our lives and utilizing the skills we have learned to become successful. As freshmen, we are excited to finally begin high school. We think we are cool and powerful due to the new freedoms entrusted in us. As we grow and mature we become sophomores. We are finally considered high school students, but are still grouped with the underclassmen; however, carrying the equipment is a duty we can pass on to the new freshmen. Due to the new freedoms, trust, and responsibilities given to us in our junior year, we become ecstatic. We are no longer considered underclassmen and are allowed to venture off campus for lunch. We are able to arrange our classes around our schedules, choose the classes we wish to take such as chemistry or physics, and we can decide whether to continue in classes not required such as athletics and theatre. With all of the freedoms and responsibilities now given to us, not all are easily accepted. College no longer seems as far away as we once believed it to be, and we begin to have concerns with our GPA's, SAT scores, and class rankings. Finally, we hit our senior year. Our freshmen selves have morphed into the frameworks of who we will become. We've reached the end of the transformation and prepare ourselves to take the next step.

[freshFACULTY

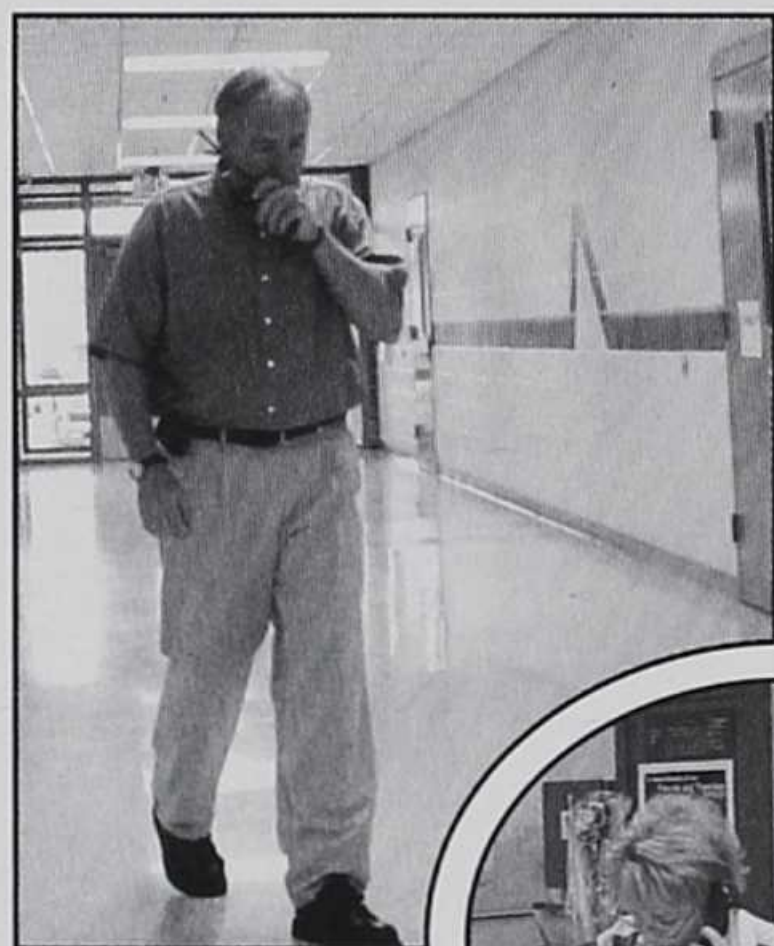

18 new staff members welcomed into KHS family]

With a large portion of our staff this year being new teachers, it became difficult to know who taught what anymore. The upperclassmen suddenly became as confused as freshmen concerning who was who and taught which particular subjects. "This one teacher came up to me and told me I was out of dress code, but I just walked off because I thought she was another student," said junior Miranda Guzman. With all of the new faces and names, recognition became very difficult for everyone. For the returning teachers, names didn't always accompany their return. Coach Threatt and Coach Medford acquired the names of Polk and Bonner; making the name confusion that much more dizzying due to there now being two Coach Polks and two Bonners. To eliminate the confusion, we merely referred to them as either the female Polk or Bonner or the male Polk or Bonner.

Apart from learning the new names of teachers, we also had to figure out which teacher was sponsoring which club this year. Mrs. Dalton, the new French teacher, took up the position of French Club sponsor. "With this year being my first year at Kennedale, we got off to a slow start," commented Mrs. Dalton. New World Geography teacher, Coach Zeller, took the position of Head Boys' Soccer Coach and Assistant Coach for the girls' team.

PARAPROFESSIONAL OF THE YEAR

MARSHA KNOX

Paraprofessional of the Year, Marsha Knox, has been working at Kennedale for the past two years. During her spare time, she enjoys working in her garden and spending time with her family. She has four children, Zac, Brandi, Bryan, and Brandon, and three grandchildren, Zachary, Antwaniqua, and Jaylan. "I really enjoy working with the students and making sure they follow the rules," commented Knox. "I also try to let them know that all through their life there will be rules and regulations whether it is in college, a job, or etc. I give them this advice, value their life because it is a gift and no one controls your destiny, but you. Always set goals and try hard to accomplish them."

Wendy Thacker, voted Kennedale's Teacher of the Year, has been teaching at Kennedale for the past 10 years, and attended Kennedale High herself. Mrs. Thacker is married to John Thacker and together they have one son, John. Mrs. Thacker also has two dogs, Todd and Ranger, and two cats, Tiger and Princess. During Mrs. Thacker's free time, she enjoys reading and catching up on grading papers. Another enjoyable experience for her are the many group discussions she takes part in during her English classes. "I love the connection that I have with my students when we are discussing and sharing our insights about literature and life," commented Mrs. Thacker.

Freshmen take first steps in high school career]

Entering high school was a hard, scary, but exciting time of our lives. No one knew this nerve wracking, butterflies in the stomach kind of feeling better than us. As freshmen, we had to make the challenging and difficult transition from junior high to high school. Although the transition was filled with some difficult moments, most of us enjoyed the experience of being in a new place with new faces and new opportunities. Due to a different atmosphere and greater expectations, we had to make adjustments in our school and personal lives. Academically, athletically, and socially, we gained more knowledge, we studied harder, we played and practiced longer, and we made more friendships. With a more demanding workload in class and more difficult workouts in athletics, we had to push ourselves to be better than ever before, and we succeeded. Our freshmen class welcomed a change of campus, more so than the freshmen of years past, because we finally attended school in a real building rather than portables used while the junior high was being rebuilt after the fire. "We like being in an actual building and having lockers. Plus, it's not as cold in the hallways," commented Victoria Pearce. Despite the nerves of the first year in high school and the challenges of a big transition, freshman year was memorable. We might have been known just as "fish" but freshman year was the start of something new and great that won't be forgotten.

Sophomores continue their journey through high school]

Sophomore year was all about transition and change. In our second year of high school, we had come to understand what was expected of us as high school students. We were no longer new faces around campus, but we had also not reached the top of the high school chain.

As sophomores, we learned to adjust to a more difficult workload. Some of us struggled with juggling newly found scholastic challenges with numerous extracurricular activities, but we got the hang of things in the end. Several sophomores had their first experience with playing on varsity teams this year, an advantage to being a sophomore. "It was real cool because when I got to varsity, I started," shared football player Steven Sanders, "my first game was hard, but after a while, I got the hang of it." The first experiences with varsity sports made memories that will last a lifetime. Besides playing sports, our sophomore year was filled with many more memories. Most of us turned Sweet 16, and several of us started to drive. Many places begin to hire at 16, so many of us went out and got jobs to pay for the cars we started to drive. In this one year we took on so much more responsibility and earned more independence than we ever had before. Our sophomore year was a transition from childhood to adulthood as we continued to work hard to achieve all our goals. As we finished this year, we were one step closer to becoming upperclassmen and graduating from high school.

higher EXPECTATIONS

Freedom, responsibility increase as senior year approaches]

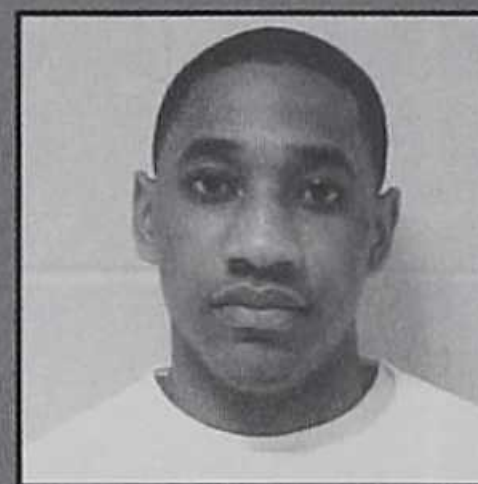

At last, we were finally considered "upperclassmen" after two years of being the underdog. We were entrusted with privileges such as off-campus lunch, late arrival, and early dismissal. However, school was no longer all fun and games. There were many new responsibilities and stresses that came along with being upperclassmen. We had tougher classes with more homework, and also higher expectations from our parents, teachers, and coaches. We began planning for the future by researching colleges and career choices. "As a junior I began to worry about college and taking the SAT's," said Erik Hackett. Some classmates even made the brave decision to graduate early and get a head start in the real world. With senior year right around the corner, our class also had to get serious about raising money for prom and other senior activities. Luckily, with our wonderful class representatives and parents, our class raised more money in the past three years than the seniors had in four. "This class as a whole knows how to come together and work to get something done. Our fundraisers always have a huge turn out and are made a huge success," said junior class officer Mandy Seremet. Overall, junior year was a time to gear up for our last year of high school and begin thinking about the future. "All that junior year does is give us a year to talk about how we're going to be seniors," said junior Erin Hunt.

Seniors prepare for a new life after graduation]

As seniors, change came at us full speed with many transformations ahead. We never thought that senior year or graduation would ever come, but they arrived faster than we imagined. Throughout the year we made and changed plans to go to college, start a good career, or make other changes in our lives. As seniors we completed four years of high school filled with memories of everything: freshman year, prom, homecoming, fights, wins, losses, friendships, love, broken hearts, and happy endings. Through the school years we have made friendships that will last, and we will be letting go of others as we start new, more grown up lives. Each one of us head towards our futures with different attitudes. Some of us will think of this as a time where we can start fresh and new with a clean slate. Others will think of it as a struggle to find identity and learn what life is really like on your own. Some of us know exactly what we are looking forward to and will run to it with open arms; others will take time to figure out what we want out of our lives. We don't know what we will run into, but with the successes of high school behind us, we have confidence for the times ahead. So as seniors we will enjoy the time we have left before responsibilities and adulthood sets in. In the days we have ahead, we will make memories and cherish good times as teenagers to remember the rest of our lives.

highly RECRUITED

Many student-athletes have dreams of playing their favorite sport at the college level. Aubrey Davis and Chez Thomas achieved their dreams and signed letters of intent this year.

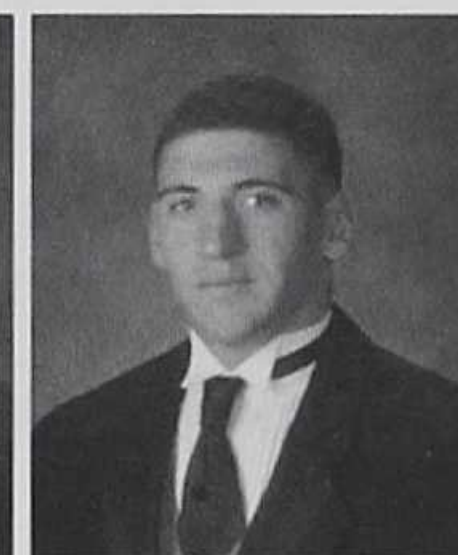

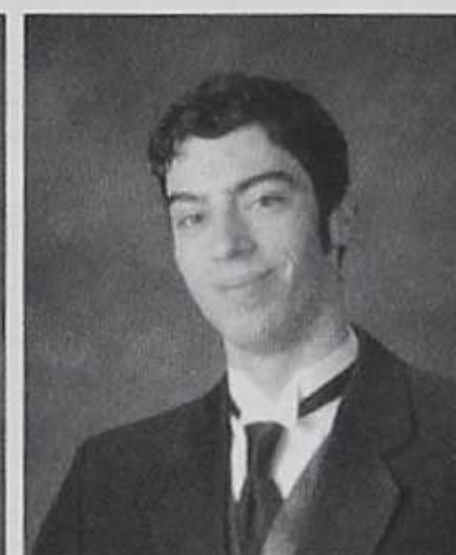

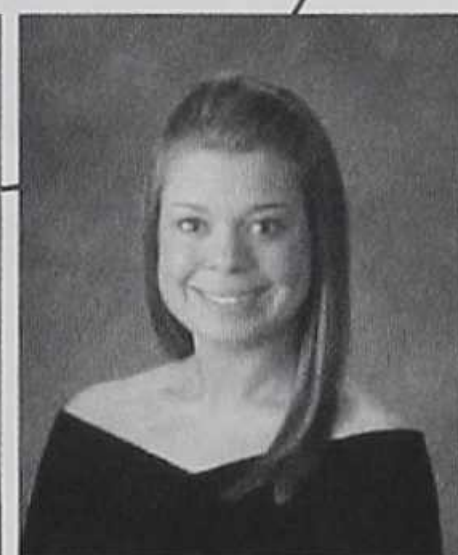

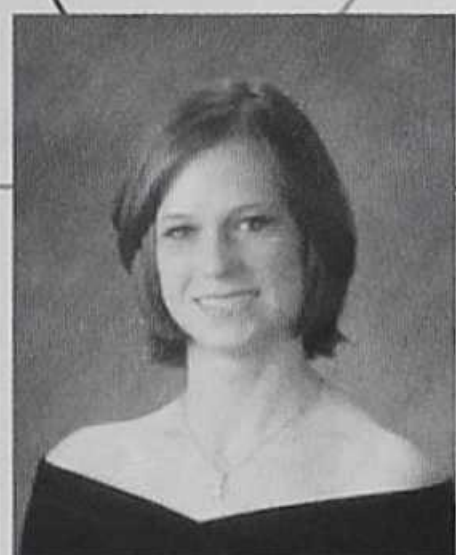

Aubrey Davis
University of Minnesota
Softball

"I feel lucky because there are thousands of talented athletes out there that aren't getting the same amazing opportunity to get an education for free."

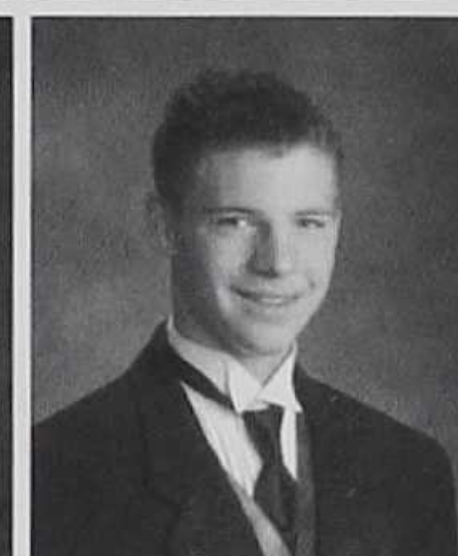

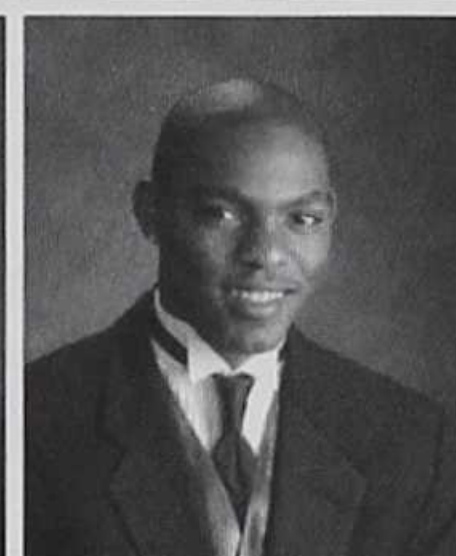

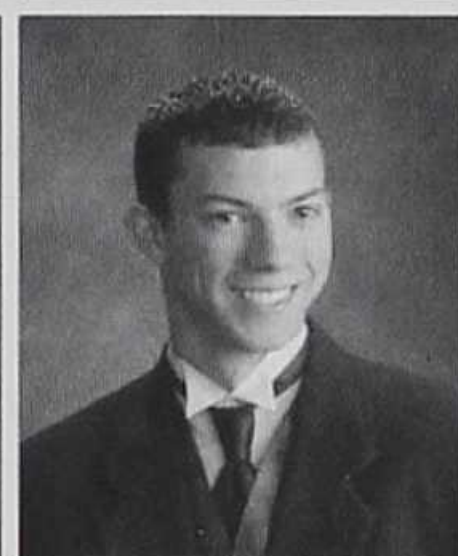

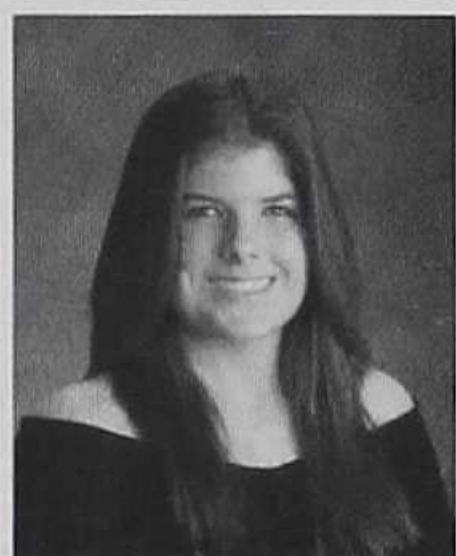

Chez Thomas
Texas Christian University
Football

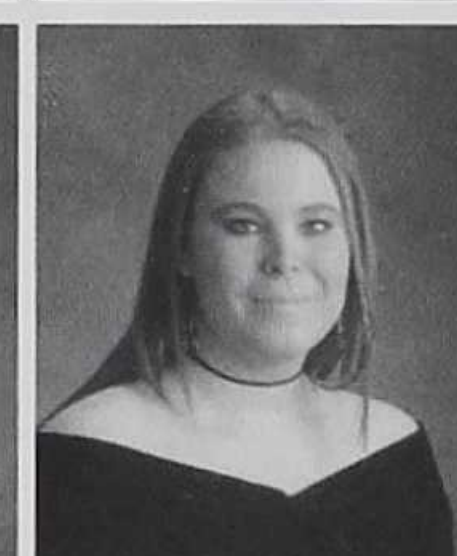

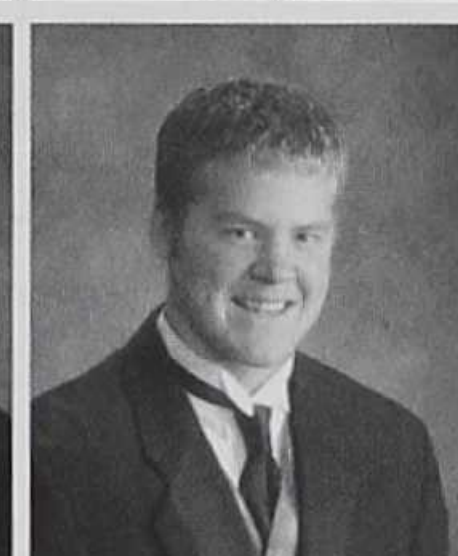

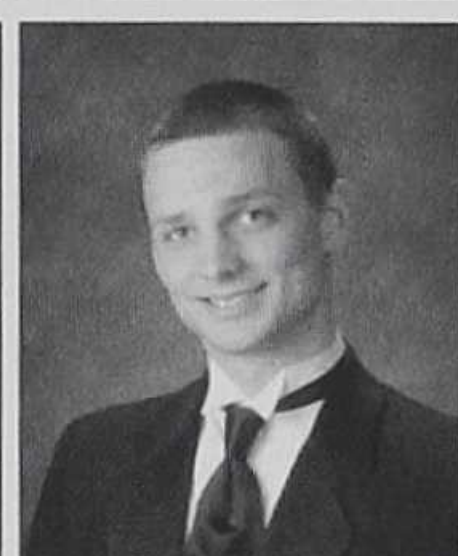

"I was pretty lucky I guess because not a lot of people got the opportunity that I got."

rememberinggoodTIMES

After 13 years, seniors still love recess and dodgeball

After thirteen years, the playground has been moved, renovations have been made to the school, the water fountains are suddenly four feet lower, and the teachers who formally towered over you are now the same height. "Actually, everything is about the same size for me," commented Alissa Wells. Thirteen-year seniors have an advantage over students who didn't start out in the district. "Being a thirteen year senior allows you to develop some life-long friendships with the people you have known forever," commented Nathan Richardson. "It was nice to start out living in a small town and watch it and your friends grow." Recess was the popular place to form these friendships. "My favorite thing to do at recess was to chase boys and beat people up," said Katy Little. "The most memorable moment at recess for me was the time Mrs. Wakeland had to come save me when I got stuck on the monkey bars," shared Dakota Greenfield. "Jumping rope and playing hopscotch was my favorite thing to do at recess," commented Brooke Spearman. Recess wasn't the only thing seniors found themselves missing. "I found elementary to be more relaxed and we had regular bathroom breaks," said Heath Rush. Regular bathroom breaks were imperative in elementary. "The thing I miss the most was having 'read-ins'. I loved bringing my favorite books and getting to spend all day reading with snacks," admitted Wells. As thirteen year seniors we take with us life-long friendships and happy memories.

"The best part about being a 13 year senior is that I've gotten to know a lot of people, and I have known my friends for a long time."

Kristi Marshall

"In the past 13 years, I have learned a lot of life lessons and each year I have become a little bit more independent than the year before."

Dakota Greenfield

Dakota,

We are so incredibly proud of the confident, spirited young lady you have become. Thank you for the smiles, the laughs, and the cherished memories gathered over the last eighteen years. Your strong character, intelligence, dedication, and loyalty are traits that will lead to even more success in your future. We can't wait to see what the next few years bring. Be strong, stay true to yourself and your goals. Good luck, Aggie-girl!

Love Forever,
Mom, Dad, and Alyssa

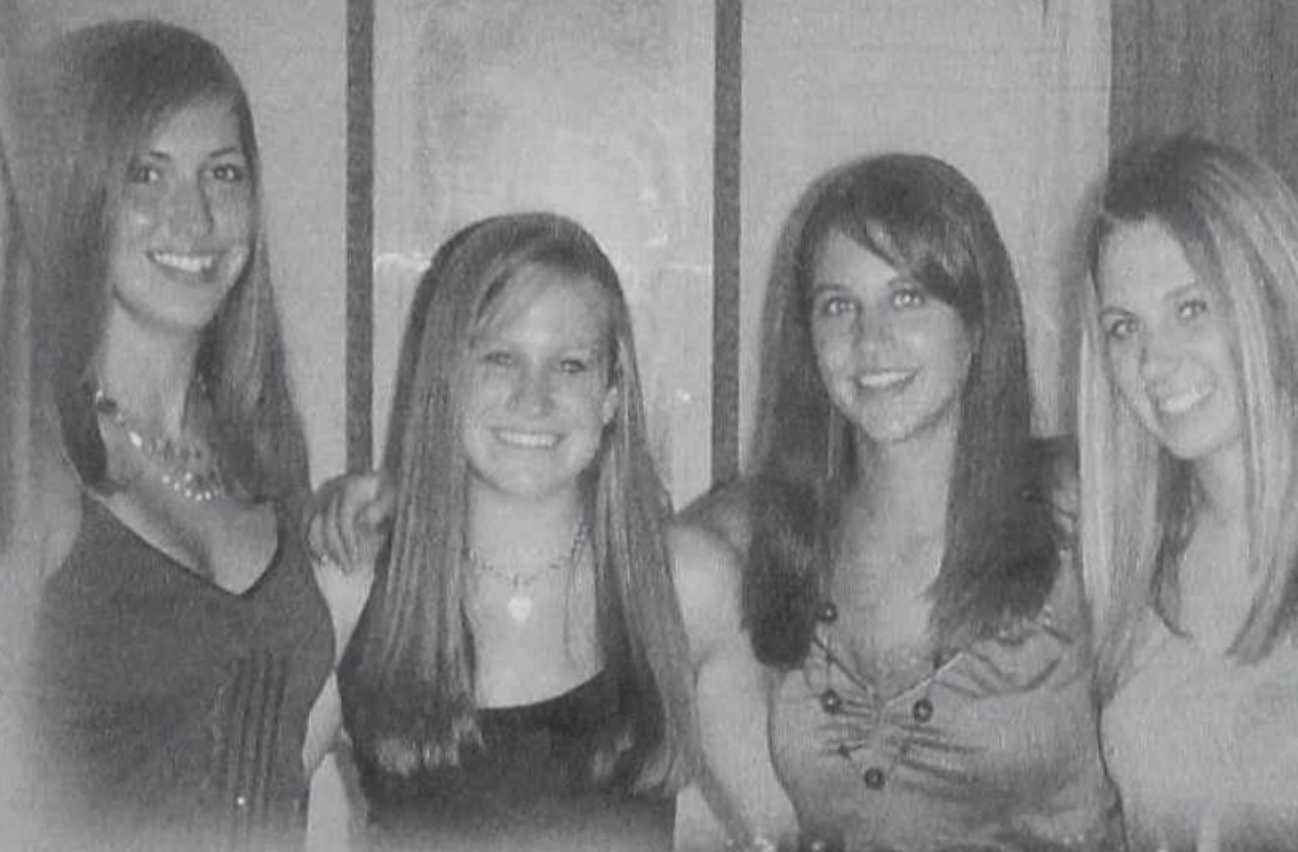

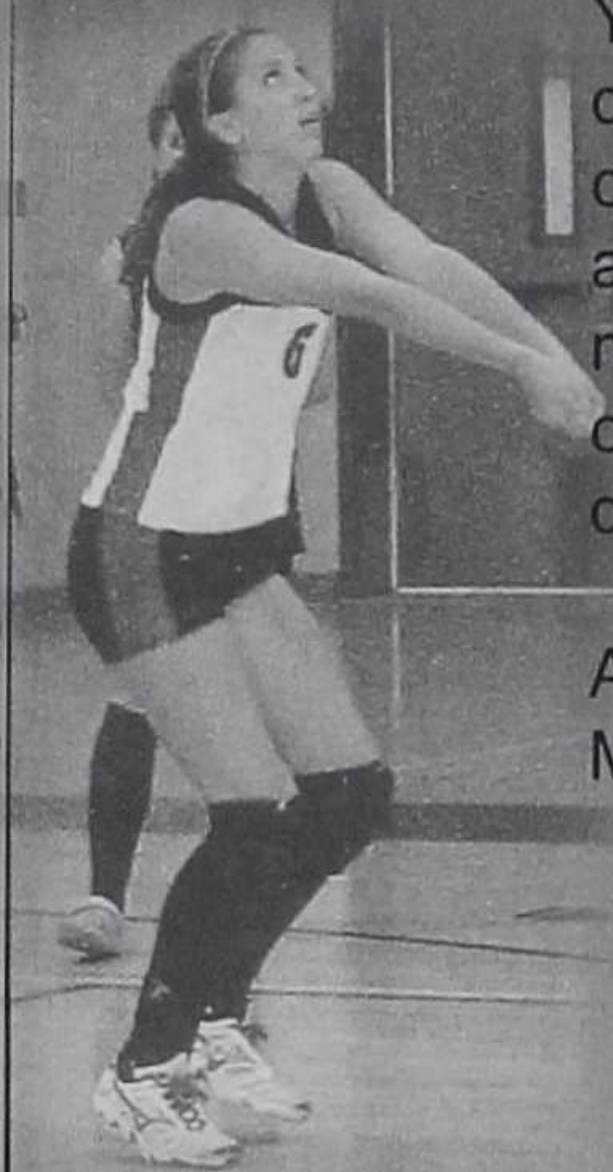

Kristi Marshall

Kristi,

You have become an intelligent, beautiful young woman with the discipline and drive to accomplish anything you want. Your graduation from high school ends a chapter in your life filled with many accomplishments in academics, athletics, and activities. You will remember these accomplishments and friendships you have made for forever. The next chapter is beginning, and the sky is the limit. Words cannot express the joy you have brought us, and we are truly proud you are our daughter. We will always love you!

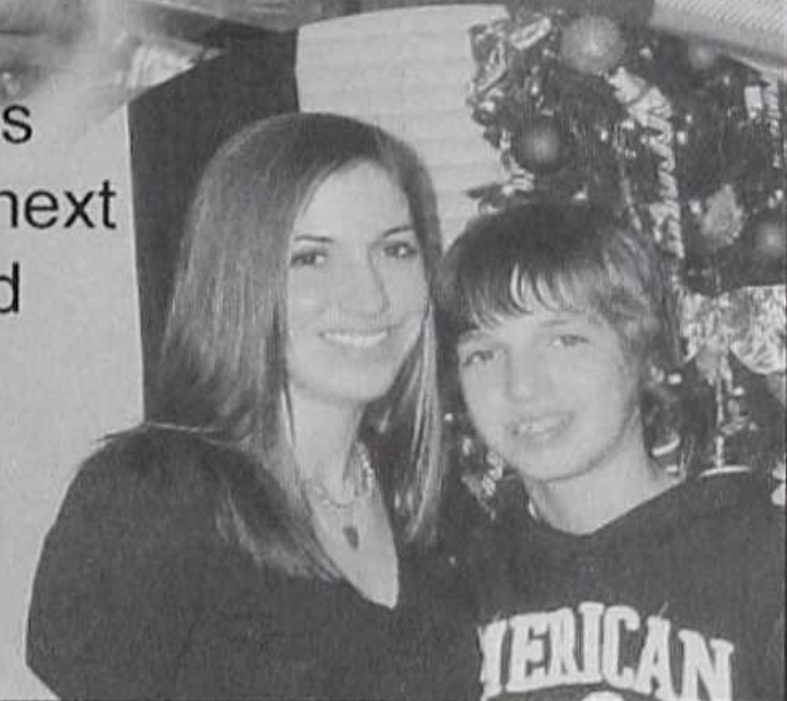

All our love,
Mom and Dad

Kristi,

We have had many great times growing up together. I'll miss you next year. Good luck at Texas A&M and have fun!

Love,
Kevin

Katie Jackson

"For I know the plans I have for you," declares the Lord,
"plans to prosper you and not to harm you, plans to give you hope and a future." - Jeremiah 29:11

Dear Katie,

Born to us on Thanksgiving Day, you were truly the blessing we had prayed about for so long! We have watched you grow from an adorable baby into a beautiful young lady. As you stand on the threshold of adulthood, we want you to know how much we love you and how proud of you we are.
Your persistence and hard work have paid off. Your future is limitless. Always remember to keep God first and all else will follow.

Love Mom, Dad, and Danny

Brittany McPartlin

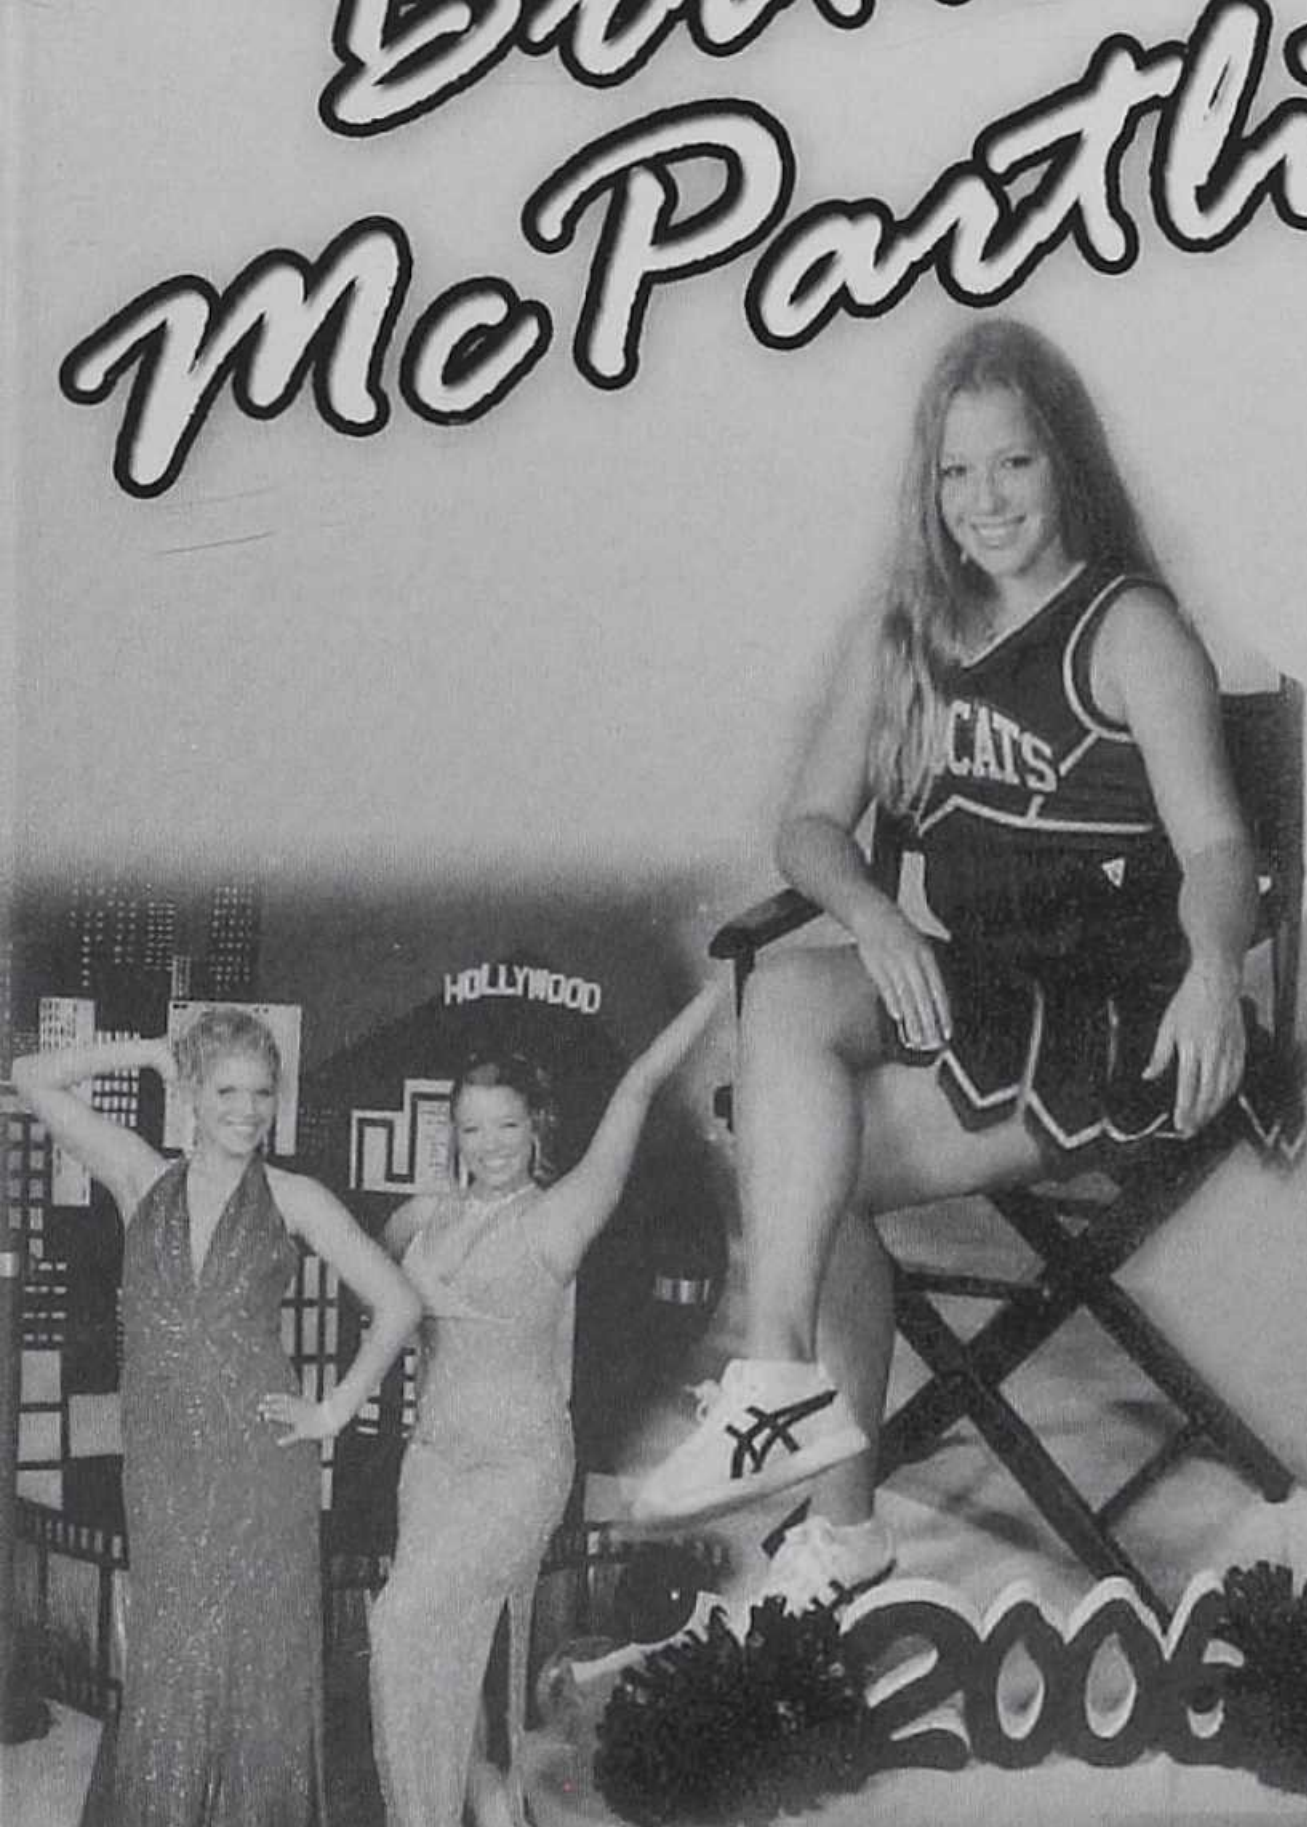

Brittany,

You are our beautiful baby daughter and we are proud of all your accomplishments. You've been a dancer, competitive gymnast and cheerleader, cheerleading captain and to top it off, a straight "A" student. Senior year will make memories of cheerleading under Friday night lights, Homecoming court, and of course that heavy academic load that lets you out of school at noon. As you graduate from high school, you are beginning the first day of your life.

The most important advice I can offer you is to set your goals high and always aim at achieving them. Brittany, you have great leadership qualities, and we have no doubt you will be successful in business and whatever else follows. We're proud of you both because of your academic achievements and the life by friends you've made. WE LOVE YOU!

Love,

Dad, Mom, Angelica, Connor, and Phantom

Chelsea Johnson

Chelsea Lauren Johnson,

You are my beautiful Baby Girl and I love you so much.

You have been the most precious daughter any parent could ever hope for. You have such a pure heart and you are kind and thoughtful and sweet.

You have been bestowed with so many wonderful talents and gifts and you have worked hard to make your dreams a reality. I know you will succeed in your future endeavors. You're destined to be a tremendous leader. One day you'll be a Supreme Court Justice or perhaps The President of the United States of America.

I thank God every day for you. You're my gift straight from heaven. You have given me such joy and I am so proud to be your mother. My cup runneth over.

You're gonna love UT—Hook 'Em HORNS!

I love you always,

Tarun Wilson

Tarun,
I just wanted to let you know how thankful I am to have a sister like you. You are the best sister anyone could ask for. I will miss you when you go off to start your life. I will miss all of our stupid fights and all of our funny jokes. Most of all I want you to know that I will always love you no matter what! Thanks for being the BEST sister in this whole wide world!
I love you!!!
Kayci

Tarun,
August 22, 1989 changed my life forever! You are so precious to me and have been since the first time I laid eyes on you. I know we've had our moments throughout the years but I wouldn't trade one second for the world. You have so many awesome qualities- a great sense of humor, love, desire, strength, loyalty, determination, and just the right amount of stubbornness- that will help you be successful in this next phase of your life. I'm so proud of you for sticking in there all these years and never giving up on yourself.....You are AWESOME! I love you sweetheart with all my heart and soul and am so very proud of you! May God always be with you!

P.S.
You are my Sunshine!
Love,
Mom

It seems like just yesterday we were taking pictures of our Grandbaby on her first day of school. Now we are taking pictures of your last. We are so proud of you! May you achieve all your dreams in life!
We love you!
Grammy and Papa

Tarun,
I know I'm little, and sometimes get on your nerves, but you are always there for me. You are the greatest big sister and I'm very proud of you! I will miss you and always love you!
Your lil' sis,
Baleigh

Tarun,
It seems like yesterday when you started your journey at KHS. I am so proud of you for the commitment and hard work you put in. Your passion to achieve leaves me with no doubt that you will reach every goal you set in life. You are a kind person and anyone would be lucky to call you friend. You are a caring person and I am lucky to call you daughter.
Love Always,
Don

Thelma,
You are the GREATEST cousin I could have ever asked for! I'm going to miss you so much when you go off to school. Be for real...Who else is gonna pull the stuff with me that you did? Ha! We had some crazy, fun memories that I will never forget!
I love you Tator!

Wow. Can't believe we're GRADUATING!!! Well, my mom always told me you find out who your true friends are in high school. Amazingly, she was right.

Through the good and bad you've been there, and somewhere along the way you became more than a best friend, you became my sister. And no matter where life takes us, you'll always be my best friend and I'll be here no matter what!

Lauren,
You're my best friend and I will always love you like a sister. Hope you get everything you want in life. Keep your head held high and don't let anybody tell you that you can't do it. You know I'm always here for you. Can you believe we are actually graduating?!

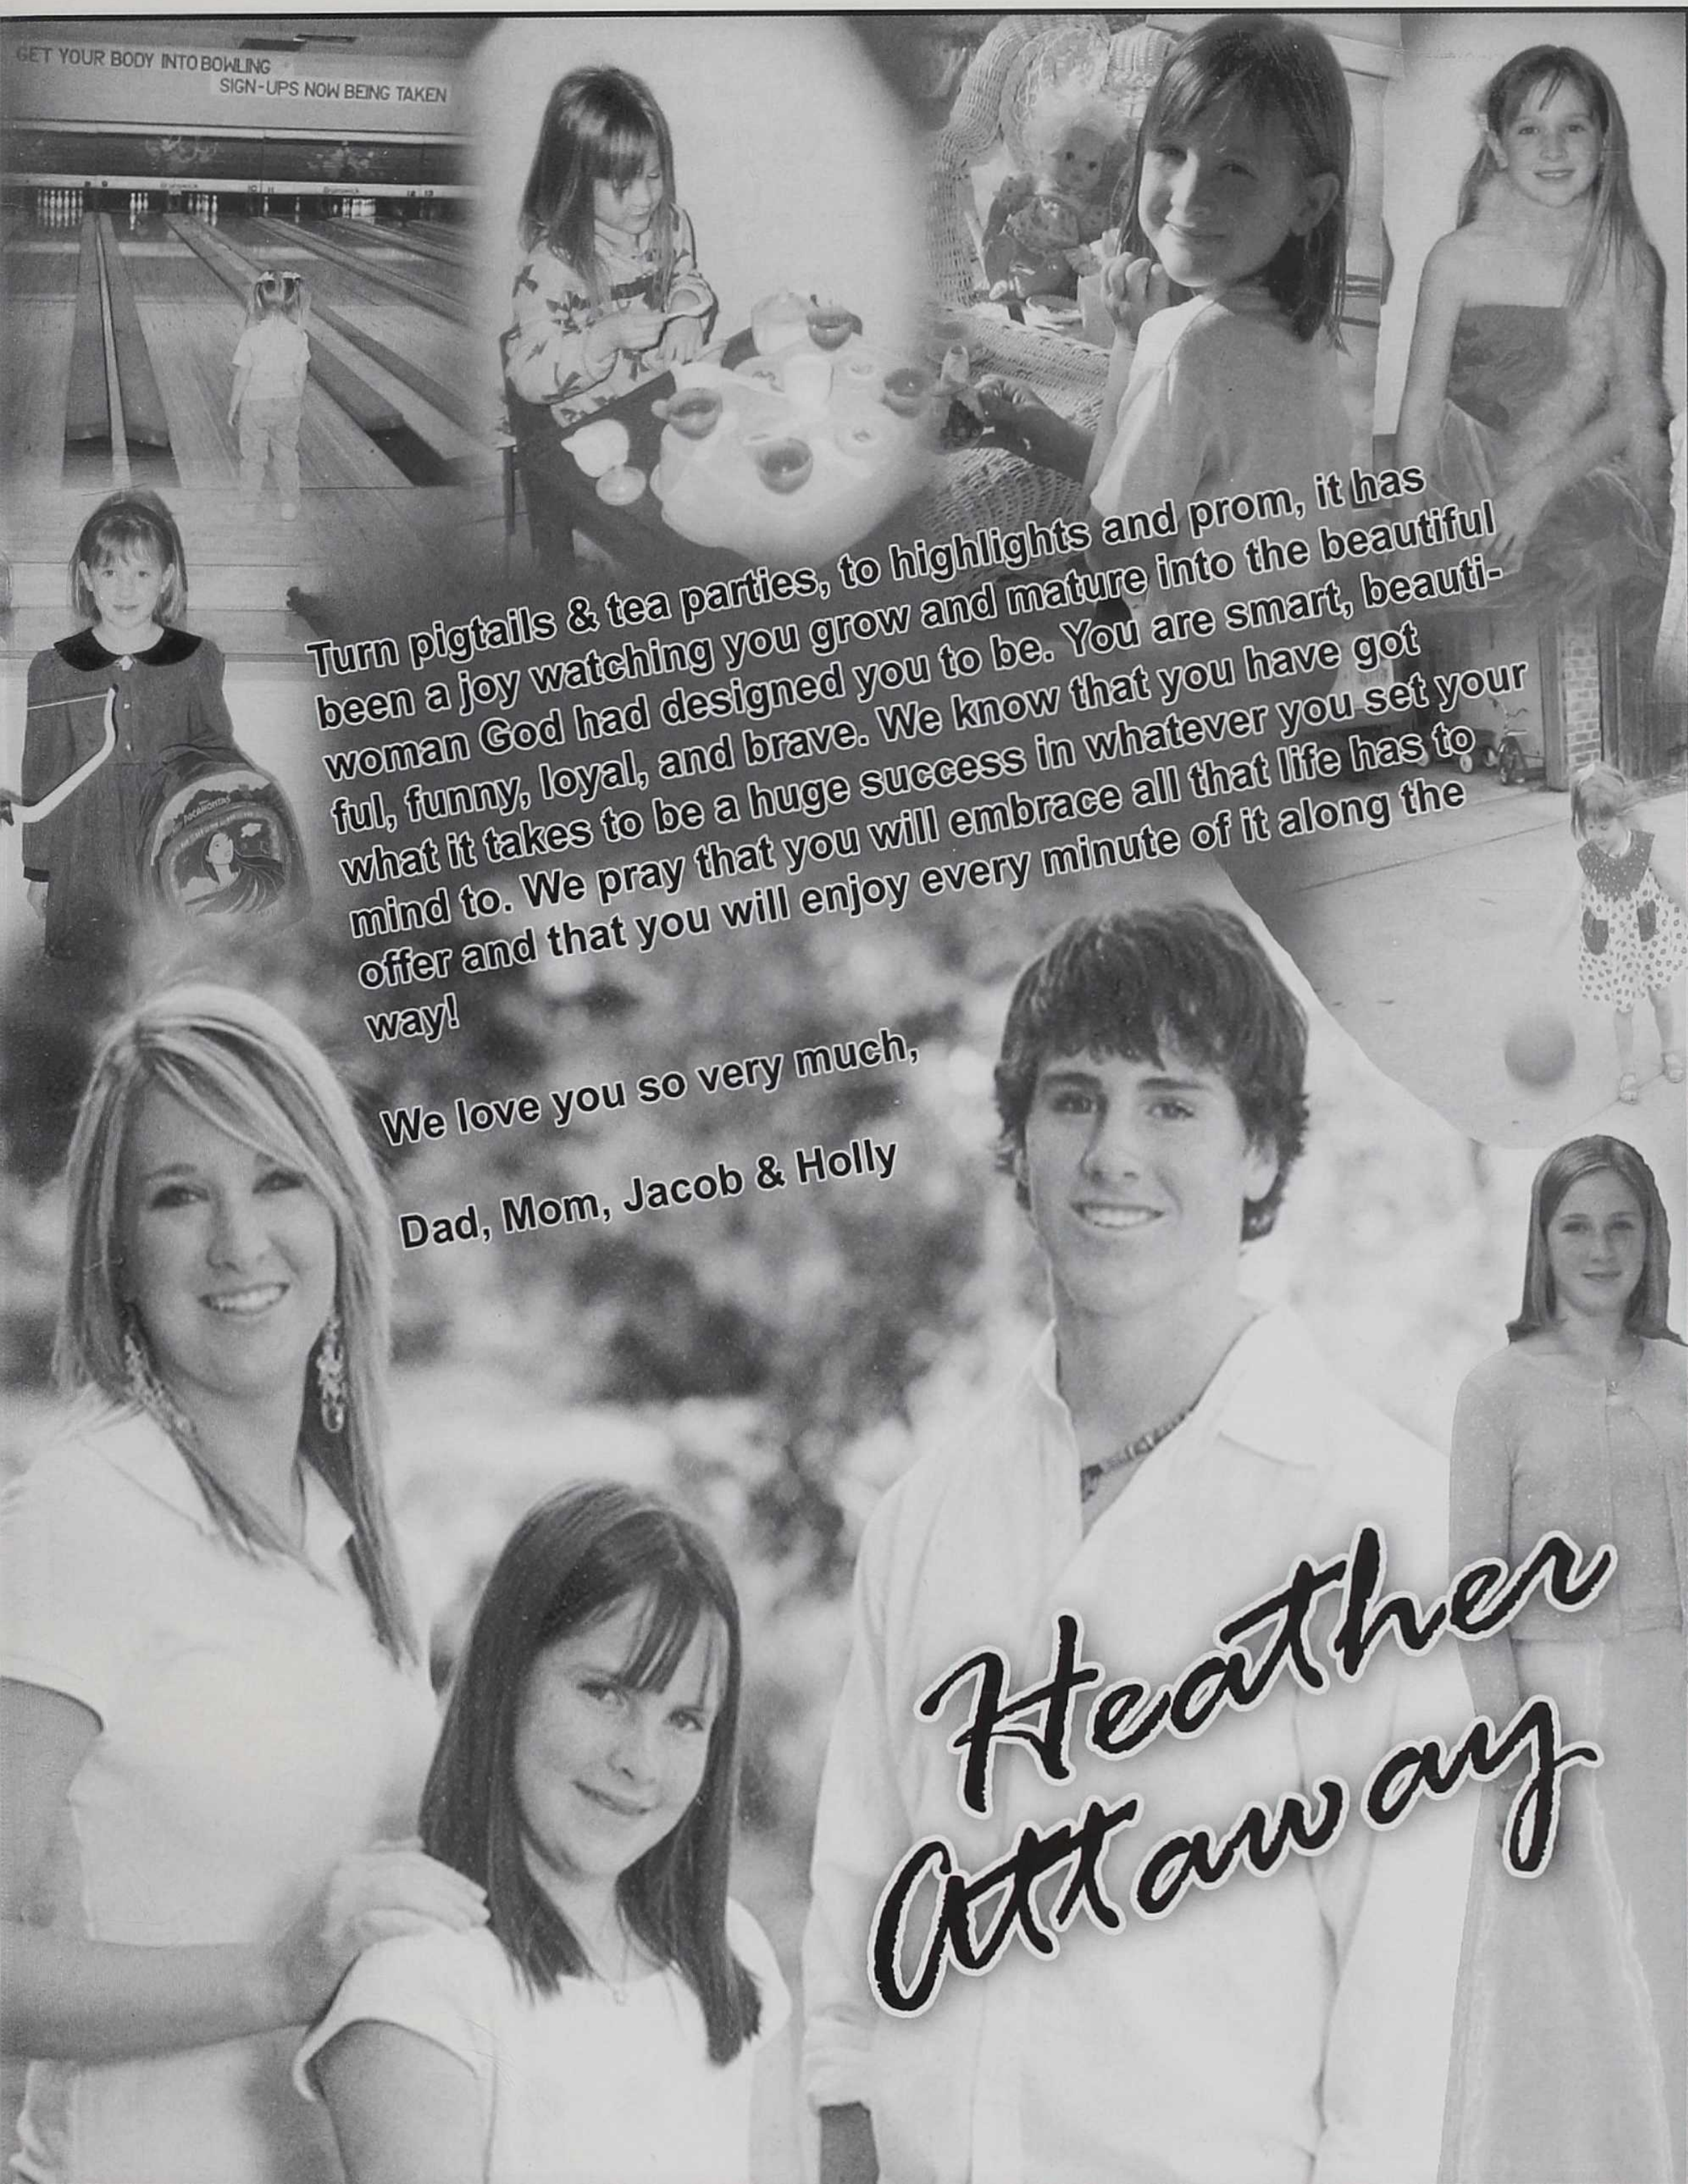

Love ya,
Kaci A.K.A. Bobetta

Kaci,

It seems like only yesterday that you came into this world and was solely dependent upon Momma. I turned around, and now, suddenly, you are a beautiful young lady dependent upon yourself! Always remember though that Momma will be right by your side in time of need. Just because you're graduating and starting a new chapter in your life does not mean I am losing you or that you will lose me. I'm here for you whenever you need your momma- then, now...always and forever! There really aren't words adequate for all that you have brought to my life. I am honored to have you as my daughter! You are everything a mother could ask for. And now, you hold the world in your hands! I Love You So Very Much and am so Very Proud of You!

Love You Bunches!

Kaci & Lauren

Turn pigtails & tea parties, to highlights and prom, it has been a joy watching you grow and mature into the beautiful woman God had designed you to be. You are smart, beautiful, funny, loyal, and brave. We know that you have got what it takes to be a huge success in whatever you set your mind to. We pray that you will embrace all that life has to offer and that you will enjoy every minute of it along the way!

From Kindergarten to Graduation, Wow-What a Journey! I wouldn't have missed it for anything. Another great chapter reaching an end. I am so proud to be your mother. You, my dear, are simply a really good person. Continue to let your faith and your heart guide your way. And you are right, "the sky is the limit." Let the next chapter begin. Turn the page.

Love Mom

P.S. Still no bag of chips-Yet!

I am very proud of you! Don't stop, reach for the stars.

Love Dad

Kiki,

I'll never forget the way you looked at me when you were such a little girl. I see this exact same look when my children look at you. I cannot tell you how proud we are of you! You are an angel on earth and have a special role in this world.

From the first day I met you I knew that you had a wonderful, loving heart for this world to see. Every smile that you make just fills everyone's lives with joy. I know after high school you will do something great with your life, family, and friends no matter what the cost, because that is just the person you are. I love you and God bless.

Love, Jose

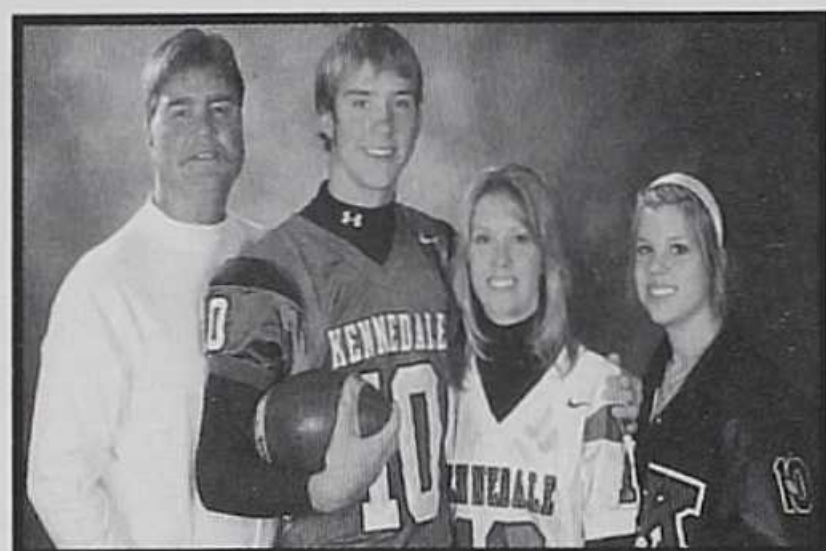

Cortney, we are so very proud of you and all of your accomplishments. We know that you will go far in life and will achieve all of which you aspire.

CHASE JOHNSON

Chase,
Our cute little Chaser...so full of energy, has grown into a handsome young man...so full of life. Time goes by too quickly! From T-Ball in Kindergarten to Football in High School, you have given us so many memories to cherish and look back on with a smile. Your Senior year has gone so fast...you many have been #52 on the court and #10 on the field but you'll always be #1 to us. You are not only a loving son and a protective brother, but you are trustworthy, compassionate, loyal and giving. These are traits that have made you the wonderful young man you are. You have brought us such joy and happiness since the day you were born and we are so proud of you, Chase! As you graduate and continue on with college and life, remember that God will not only send blessings, but challenges that will make you stronger in character and integrity. Stand for what you know is true, and look to God always, for He will guide your paths. You are such a blessing to us, Chase, and we will always be there for you with all our love and support. Another play has been sent into the huddle...the huddle of life. Your number is called, take the ball and run with it!!!

We love you,
Mom and Dad

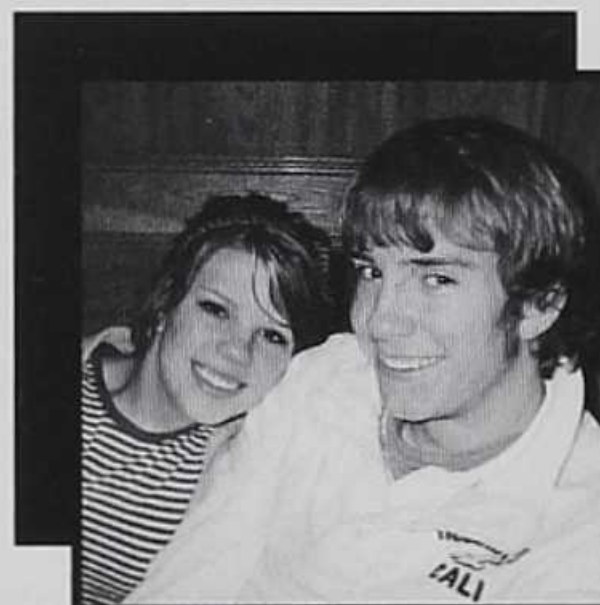

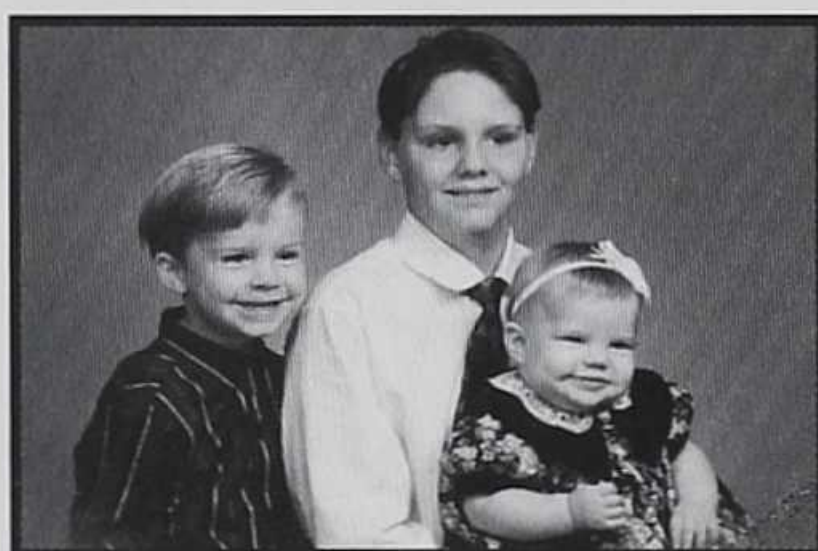

Chase,
My how time flies!!! It seems like just yesterday I was kicking you out of my room for being a pesky little brother, and now you are graduating high school...WOW!!! I just want to say good luck in wherever your path may lead you and know that you are very loved by all of us!!! I'm always here for you, by phone, mail or in person occasionally. I love you bro!!

Love,
Ryder

Big Brother,
Wow! Senior year already. Time really did fly by. It seems like just yesterday we were playing with Legos in your room. You have come so far in life, but there is still so much more to come! You've gone from helping me with my homework to helping me with boys and have given me some of the best advice I could take. You taught me that life is a precious thing that goes by too fast!! You're an AMAZING brother...and the reason I now know every word to every Red Hot Chili Pepper song. You keep me going everyday and without you I just wouldn't be "Chase Johnson's little sister", a name I am so proud to have! Oh, and thanks to everyone who gave me that title. I love you Chaser!

Love,
Madison

Dear Christina,
 This day seemed so far away on the day you were born. But now it has arrived. The truth is we are so very proud of you and the beautiful person you have become, both inside and out. Remember to always believe in yourself, because you have special qualities. We hope you know how much we love you.
 God Bless You,
 Mom and Dad

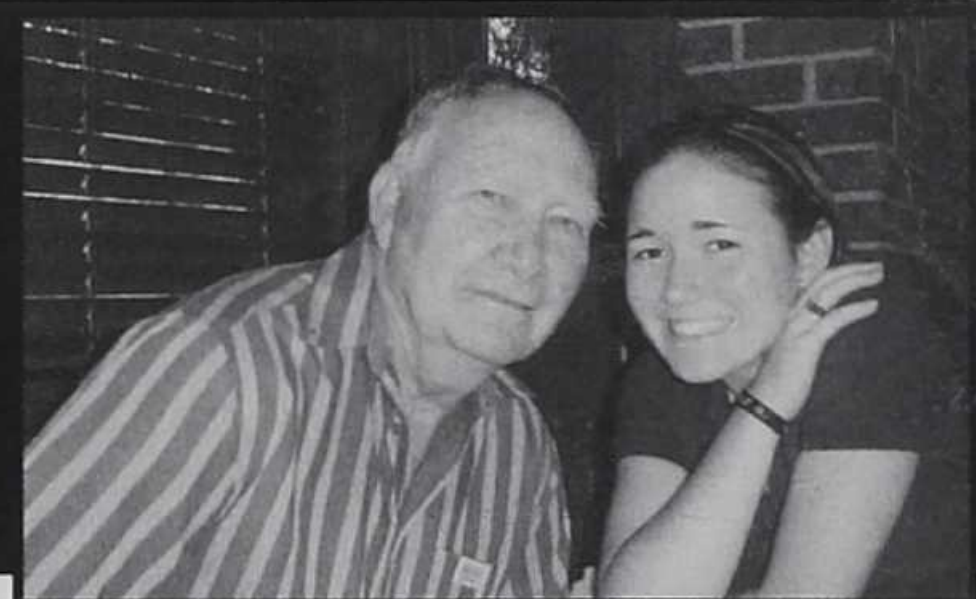

Christy,
 I love you more than you will ever know and I'm so proud of you and the things that you've accomplished.
 I've watched you grow into a beautiful, wise, and pure woman of God and loved every minute of it. From the tears, to the laughter, from the sadness to the joy, and through the trials and temptations. By the strength of God you overcame it and only became stronger. Now you're graduating and walking into another chapter in your life. Wherever you go, whatever you do, and what ever decisions you make just know that the Lord will never leave or forsake you and is always holding your hand through every valley and on every mountain top.
 And don't limit yourself because you can do all things through Christ who strengthens you. So don't be afraid of who you are or what you can become, but go for the goal that's in front of you. And I mean every word I say. I believe that you can do great things, just believe in yourself.
 I love you always and forever!
 Your big sister and best friend,
 Tiffany

CHRISTINA MENDEZ

Samantha + Craig

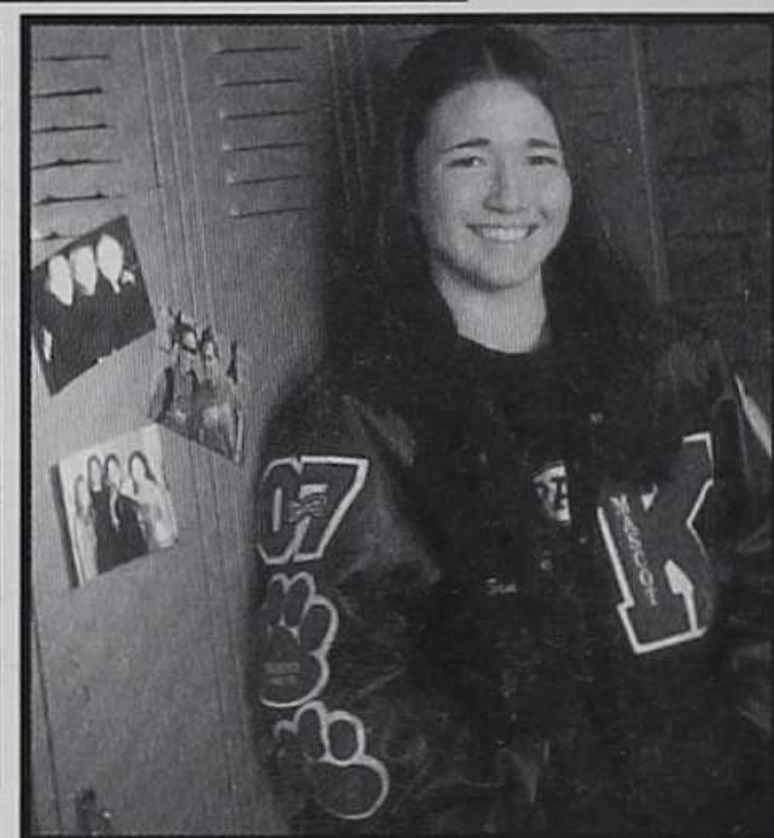

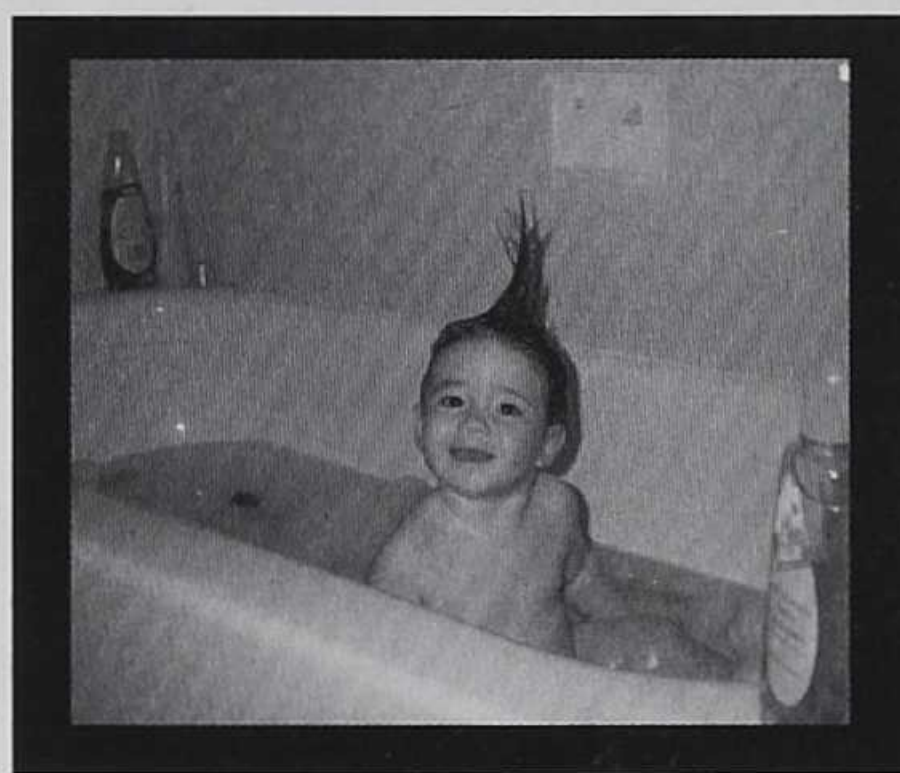

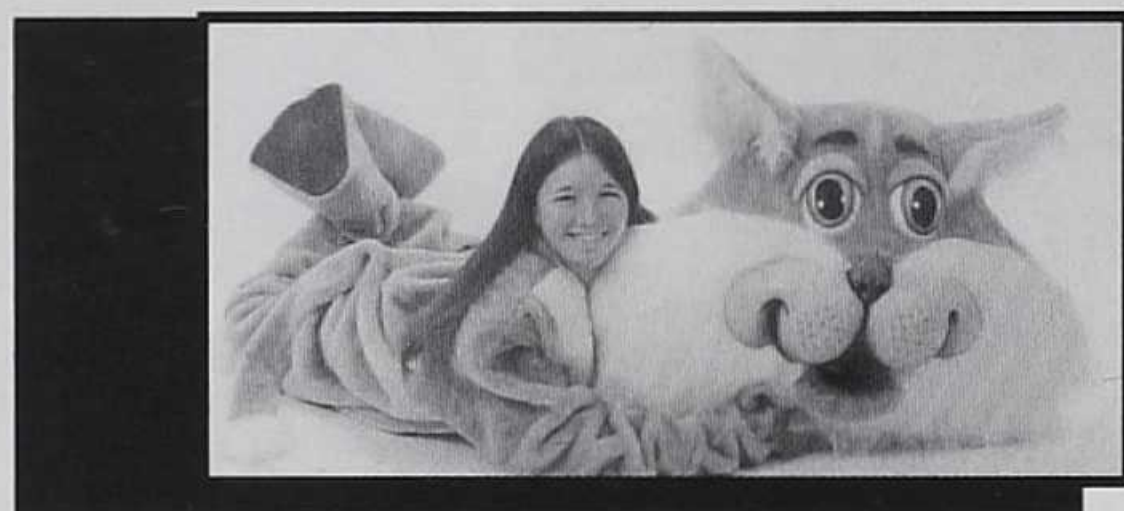

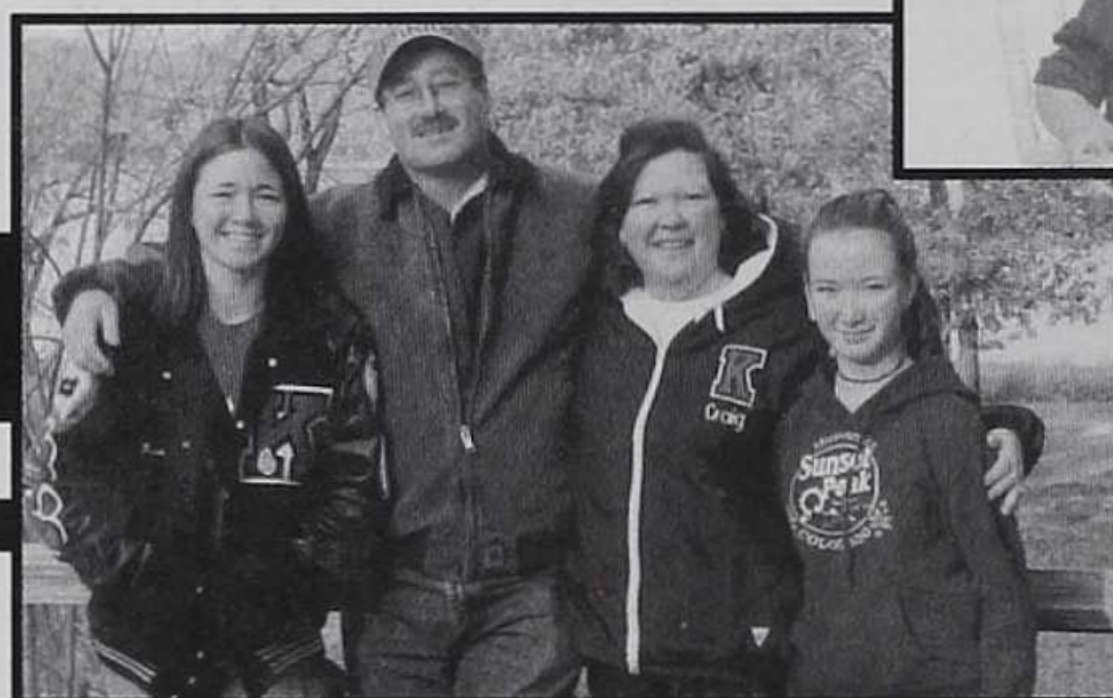

Sam,

We are so proud of you and all your accomplishments in school and in your life. It has been a blessing for us to have you as our daughter and to watch you grow up. Since the moment you were born, you have grown into a beautiful and talented young lady.

Remember always keep God #1. We love you and we will always be here for you if you ever need anything. We know that whatever you set out to do in life, you will do great in it because you have the Lord with you.

Also remember that Papa is watching over you and he was very proud to have you for his granddaughter. You have brought lots of joy to all our hearts...

We love you, Mom & Dad

Sissy,

We have lots of memories together that I don't ever want to forget. Never give up and always persevere in whatever you do.

Love, Amanda

P.S. You are going to teach me how to drive.

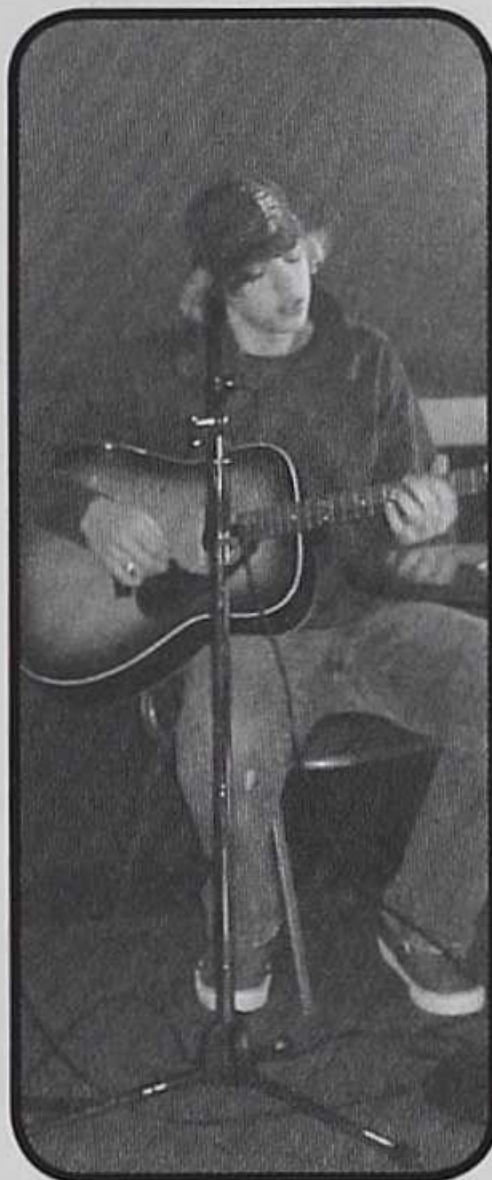

TRAVIS FORD

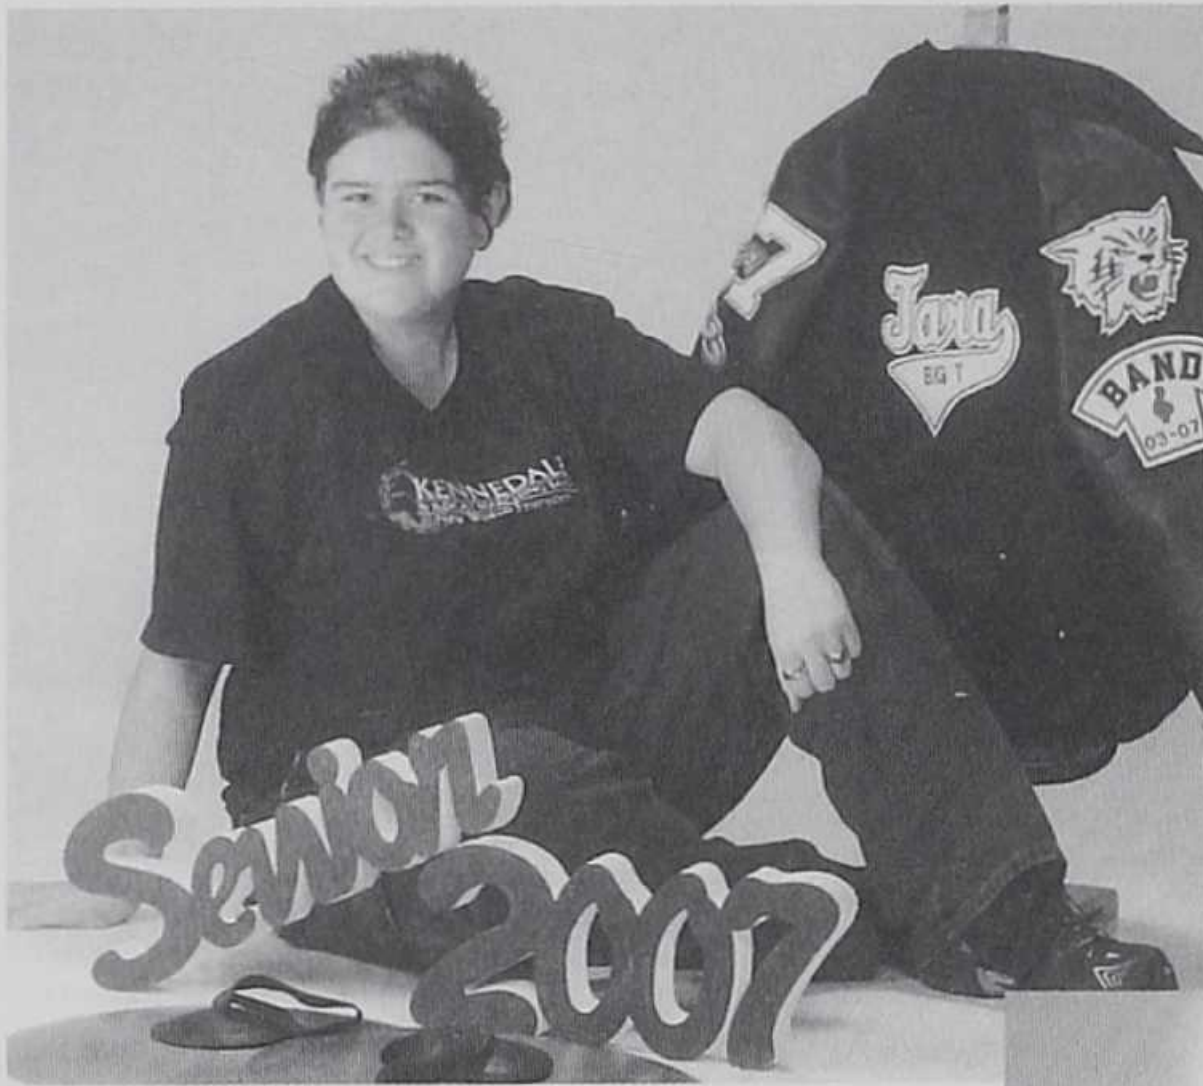

Travis,

Congratulations on graduating this year! You have achieved so much in your life already. We are so proud of you. You have developed into an awesome young man who is ready to go out and tackle the world. The world is waiting for you! There are so many exciting opportunities waiting for you in Wyoming. We will be watching you with anticipation as you go after your dreams and your calling in life. As you go through life, remember to put Jesus first above all things and everything else will fall into place. We are always here for you and we will support you in all that you do.

Love, Mom and Dad

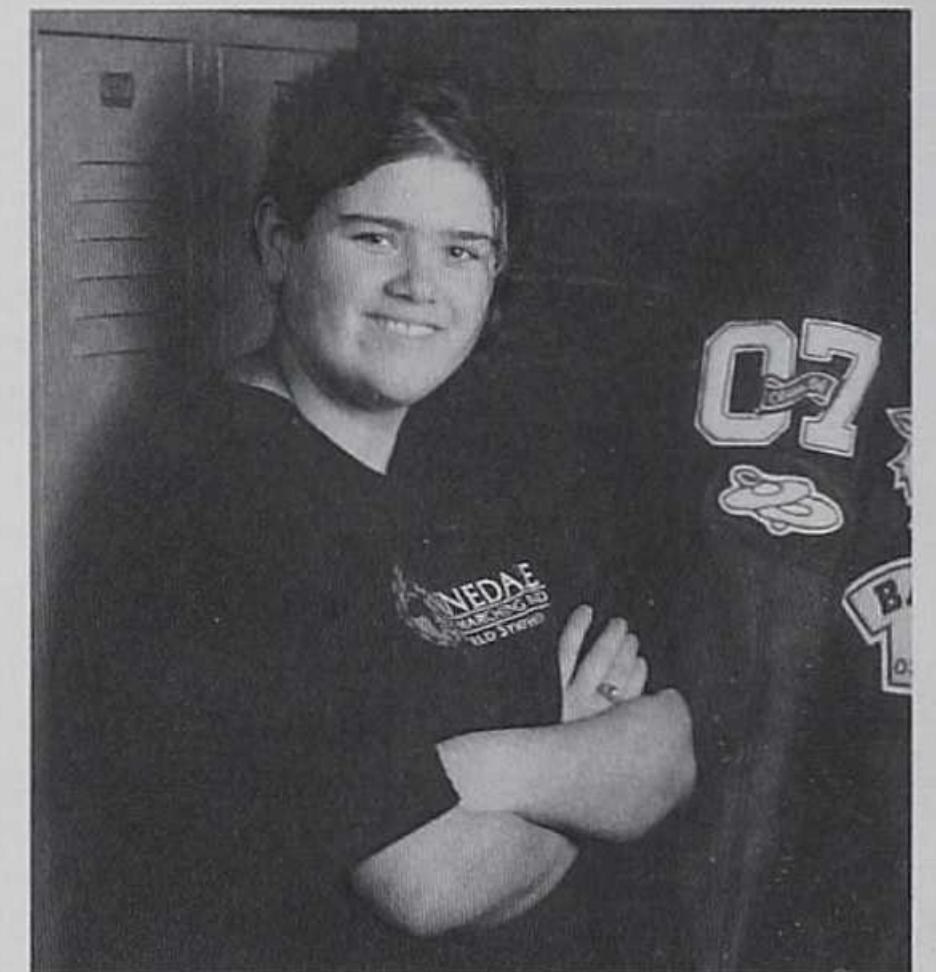

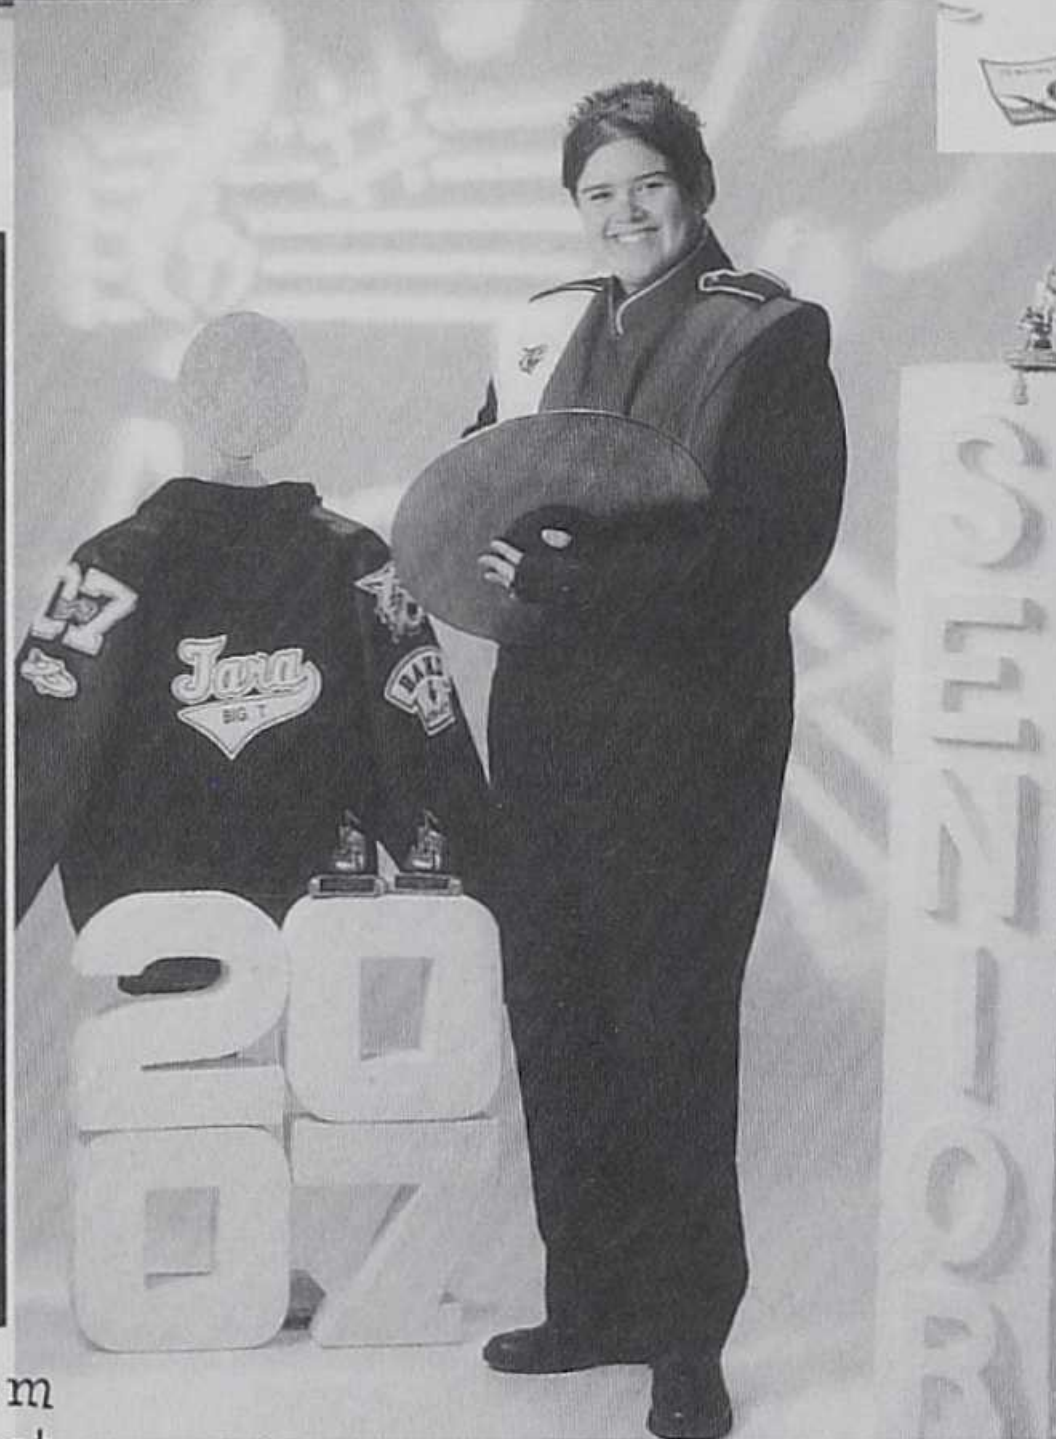

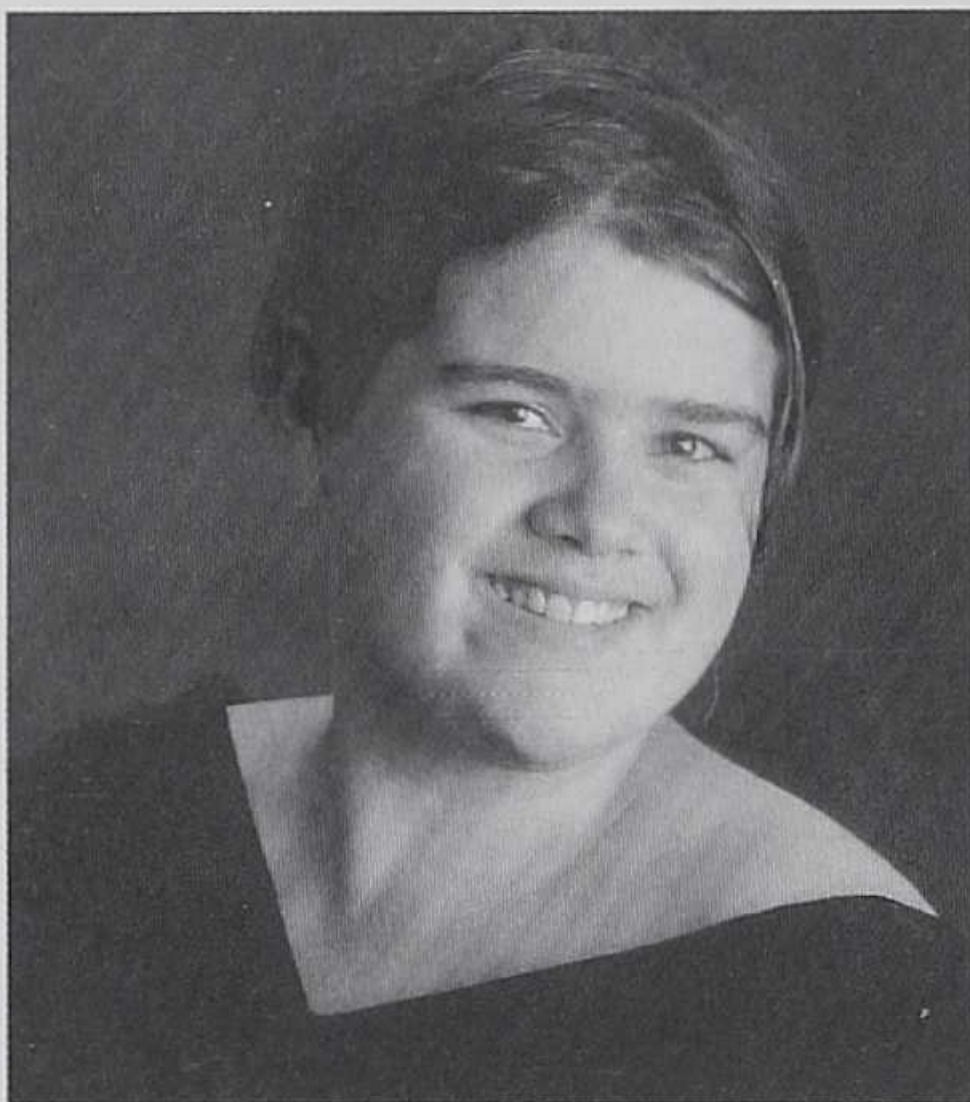

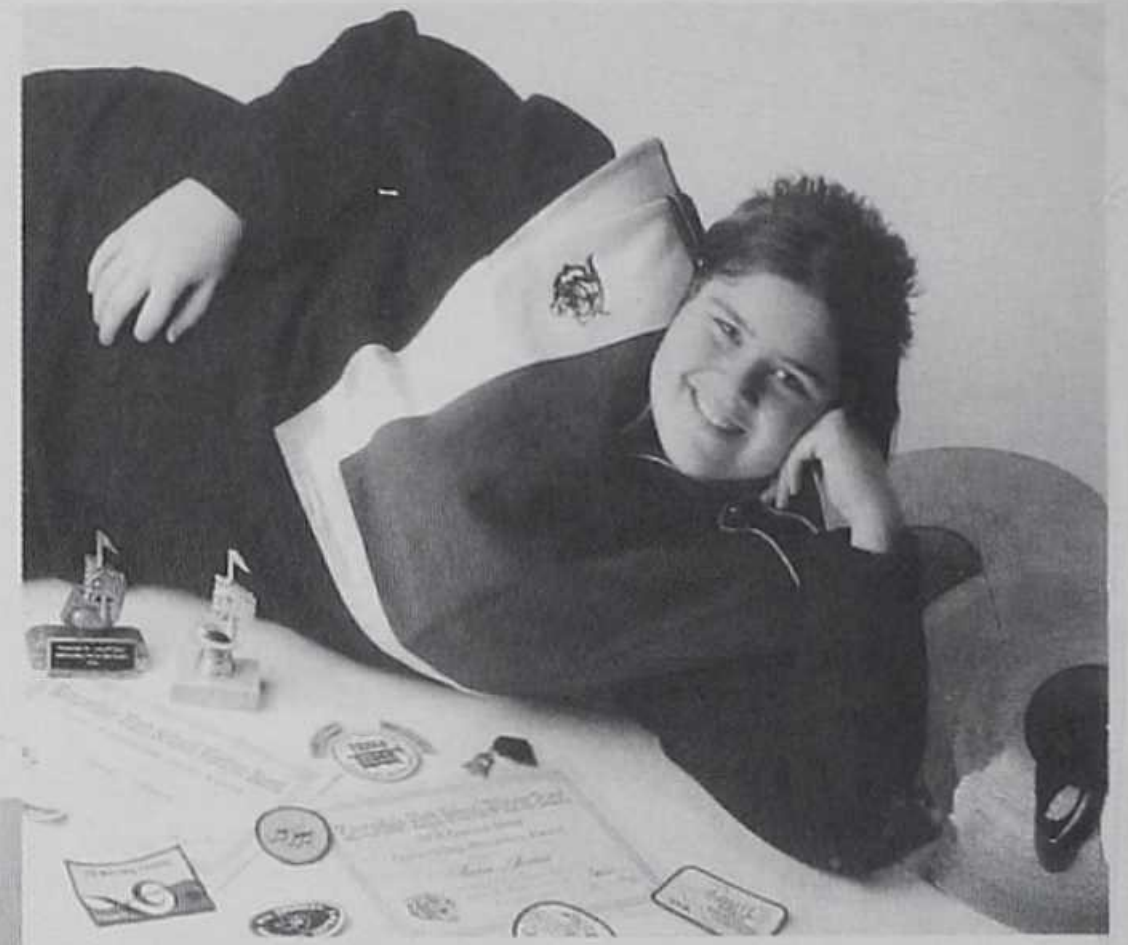

TARA JONES

IT'S ALL ABOUT BAND - SENIORS 2007

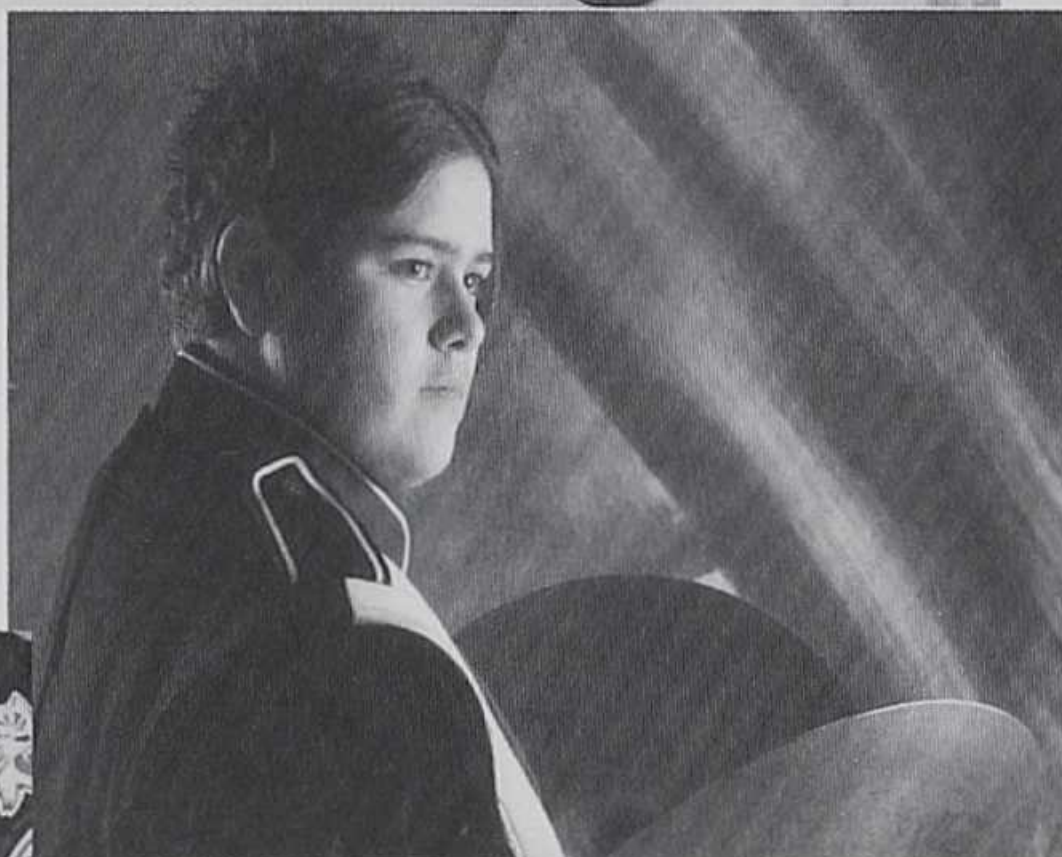

Tara, you are a wonderful daughter. I always look forward to the times spent with you. You have a personality and demeanor that will serve you well in life. Always strive to be the best you can be and life will reward you. God bless and love always, Dad.

Tara - You've come a long way, from shorter than me to almost a foot taller, through fights and "sprite and oatmeal cookie moments," changing schools 3 times, many trips to Disney World, and drama, drama, drama, but you're still my little (big) sister and I'm so proud of you. Congrats on going through it all and making it to the end!

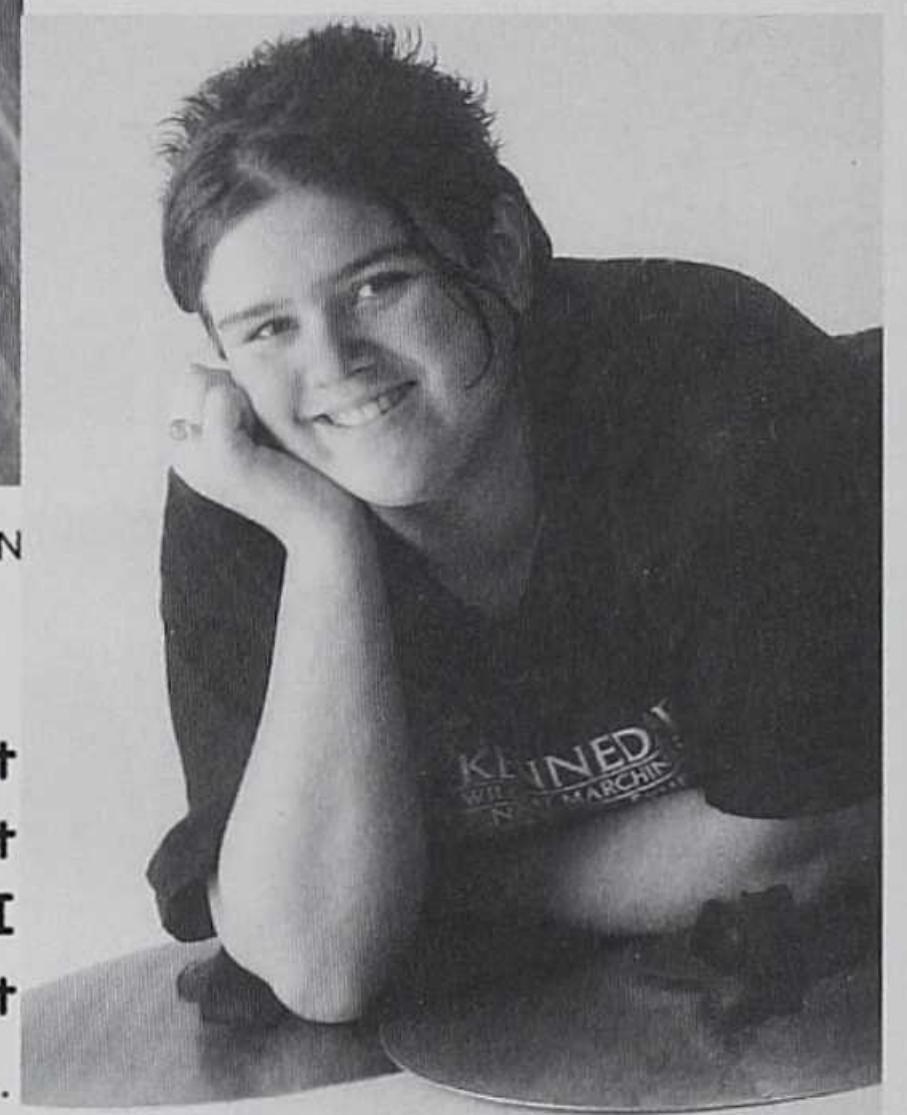

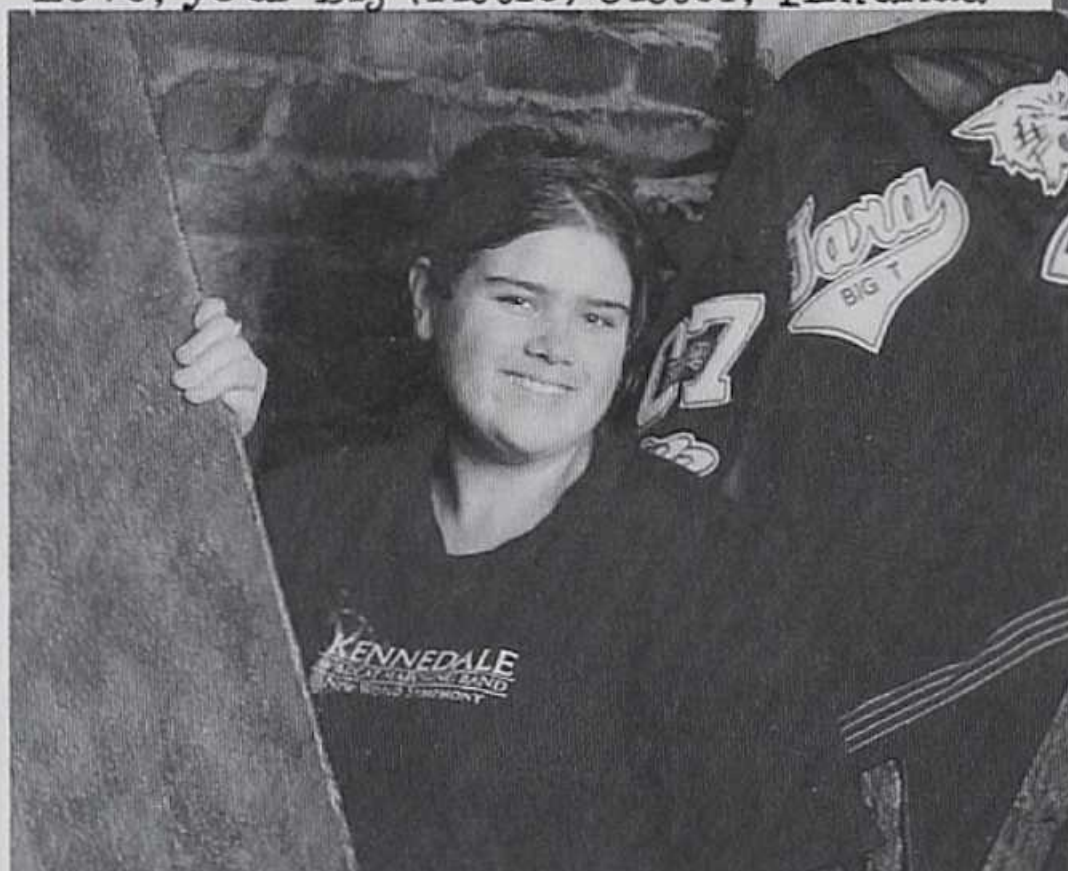

Love, your big (little) sister, Amanda

You have a great gift for life, love and faith. Your loyalty and care for others is beyond all boundaries. I trust and respect you, and cherish all memories made in the past - looking forward to the future ahead. Disney Chefs, watch out for the new kid in town! I'm so proud of you...All my love, Mommy "O"

I LOVE YOU TARA, WE'VE ALWAYS HAD FUN AND I'LL MISS YOU MUCHOS! VINCENT

Tara, you're one of my oldest friends and it's sad that we won't be in school together anymore. I will miss summers when we hung out and the random moments at school. I'll miss you - Taylor

Amanda,

It's hard to believe the time has come for you to graduate.
The years have flown by so quickly.

You've brought us so much joy as we've watched you grow up into a sweet, caring, and beautiful young lady.
We are so proud of you and all your accomplishments.

Congratulations on your high school graduation. We wish you much happiness and success as you move on to college. We know you can accomplish anything you set your mind to utilizing the skills and talents that God has given you.
Remember that we love you and are always here for you.

Love,
Mom & Dad

Shelby Smith

Dear Sissy,

Wow...you're already fixing to graduate! How times fly!!! I am thankful for all the fun memories we spent together as we were growing up, playing Barbies everyday ALL day, dress-up, and playing princess. You have always been there for me through the ups and downs. You always pushed me to be a better person, although I always hated it, you never gave up on me, and that has helped me be the person I am today! We have been through some very rough times together but we have always seemed to find a way to get through them, which has brought us closer together. From Barbies to boys through thick and thin we have always been there for each other! You are my big sissy and you will always be my BEST friend! I love you so much and you mean the world to me! I don't know what I would do without you!

Love always,
Your Lil Sis Taryn

Shelb,

Seventeen short years ago you came into our lives, all too soon you have grown into a talented and beautiful young lady.
While it will sadden us as you leave home to follow your dreams, we are so proud of you and can't wait to share your future triumphs with you. We love you, and will always be here for you.

Mom and Dad

Nathan Richardson

What a great son you have been! We are more proud of you than you will ever know and although you have grown and matured and accomplished so many things, your journey is just beginning. You have already proven that there is nothing you can't do if you put your mind to it. May God continue to bless you and may you never forget how much you're loved.

Remember...Our wish for you is that this life becomes all that you want it to be and that all your dreams stay big and all your worries stay small.

Philippians 4:13

Mom & Dad

Zach Waters

Zach,

Time has flown by so fast. It's incredible to believe that your high school years are over. However, it is just the beginning of your journey. Your commitment to serve God simply humbles us as parents. We could not be prouder of your accomplishments over the years. You have learned that disappointment only makes you stronger and perseverance builds character and eventually bears fruit. We are excited to see what the future holds for you and know that you will do great things. We love you more than you will ever know.

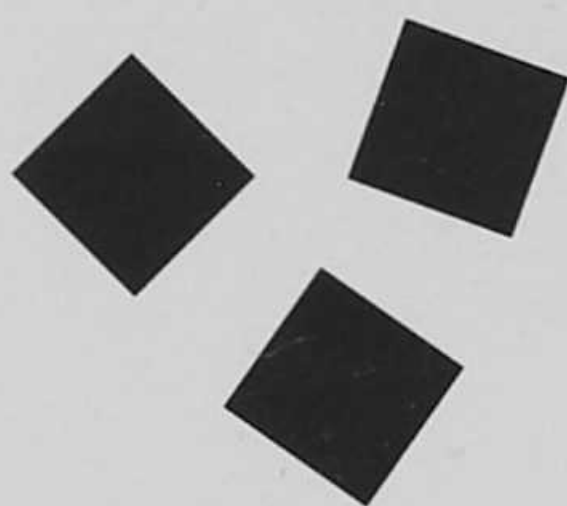

Mom, Dad, and Jacob

Ashley,

It seems like just yesterday that we were waking you into Delaney Primary for your first day of kindergarten. Here we are, your senior year, watching you graduate and prepare for the future. We are so proud of the amazing young woman you have become. Remember to always follow your heart.

We love you,
Mom and Dad

Ashley,

You are the best sister anyone could ever ask for. Thanks for everything you do.
Good luck in college! I love you!

Brittany

Ashley,

It's crazy to think how quickly our years together have gone. Through the good and bad I have come to realize that you are always there for me. Have an amazing time in college. I love you!

Sarah

Ashley Schramme

Mandy, it seems like yesterday that you were taking your first steps and now you are getting ready to walk across the stage and start the next part of your life. You were a beautiful baby and now you are a beautiful young lady. Always remember to believe in yourself and reach for the stars because nothing you want to do is impossible. Remember when you get out in the world and become a successful adult that you will always be our little girl. We are proud of you!

Love you,
Mom & Tim

Good luck, Manda!
We love you,
Kim & Bryan

Amanda McKissick

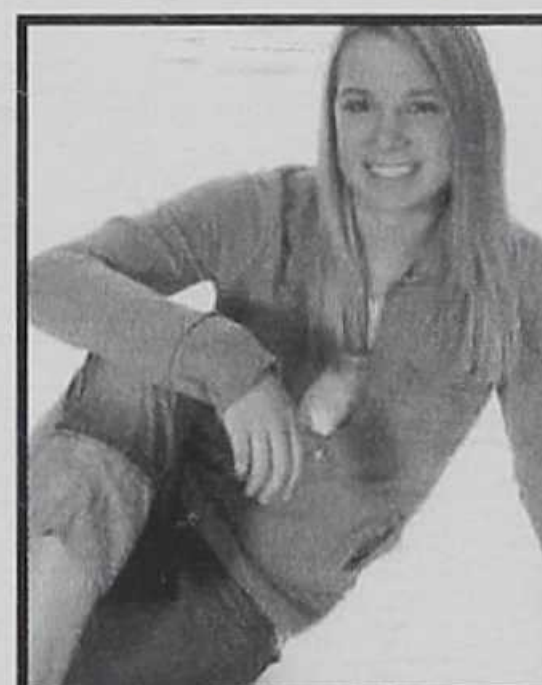

Dear Shannon,
How can you be through with high school when your childhood is just a blur? By the time you read this, you will most probably be away at college. You have become a strong, independent, beautiful young lady. We marvel at how eager you are to embrace your future! No doubt, you are armed with the things that will make you successful in college and in life:

- ambition and strong determination, without which success is elusive
- independence and sense of what is right and wrong, which will keep you on the right path
- humor, which eases the rigors of college and daily life
- God, whose love, strength and guidance are ever present
- your family, who loves you completely and forever

Shannon, we're here when you need us. We know you will have a happy, healthy, wonderful life!

Love,
Mom, Dad, & Lauren

Our Daughter....

You're a wonderful Daughter and Big Sister. We have watched you transform into a beautiful woman. Your decision to change your appearance changed your life. Your academic achievements are numerous. It seems that everything you attempt, you excel at. Your choices in life have been the right decisions. Your ability to deal with people of all types of mentality proves that your career choice to study 'Psychiatry' is right for you. Be assured that your family will always be there to support you through your college years. I know you will not have any problems in achieving all your future goals.

We Love You, Dad, Mom and Katey

Janet,
God gave talents to all and it seems like you've got them all! It has been a joy watching you grow up, I am very proud of the young woman you have become. Follow your dreams, for you know with God's help your future will be everything you can imagine.
Love you,
Mom and Dad

From the day you were born, and throughout the years, we have always been very proud of you. May your future hold the happiness you deserve. We are blessed by being your grandparents. May God be with you always!

Ali-

I have a lifetime of hopes, dreams, prayers, and wishes wrapped up in you. From the hopes that you would not cry when I left you on your first day of kindergarten to dreaming of you graduation from high school. You have grown into a fine young lady with hopes, dreams, and wishes of your own now. I have no doubt that God will watch over you and guide you through just as He has done for me. You will have a good life with insurmountable happiness! Choose your wishes and construct your dreams wisely so all your hopes and prayers you'll need will be good. And though you're almost grown up, my prayers and hopes will still be sent to you and for you, with love.

I love you! Mom

Meaghan Flaherty

Meaghan,

Congratulations on your graduation.
In the blink of an eye you changed from a cute little baby girl into a beautiful young woman. We are so proud of you and all that you have accomplished in twelve short years. You have a bright future and many new opportunities yet to come. We wish you much love, health and happiness.

Love,
Mom, Dad and Matthew

Paul:

I can't believe it's already time for graduation -- when it seems like just yesterday you were learning how to ride your bike. You've been the source of many laughs and tears over the years; but no matter how many bumps in the road we hit, the journey was incredible. You've brought so much joy into all of our lives and watching the amazing young man you've grown to be makes us so proud. Live every moment of your life and always be true to yourself. We love you so much and make this next chapter of your life unforgettable!!!

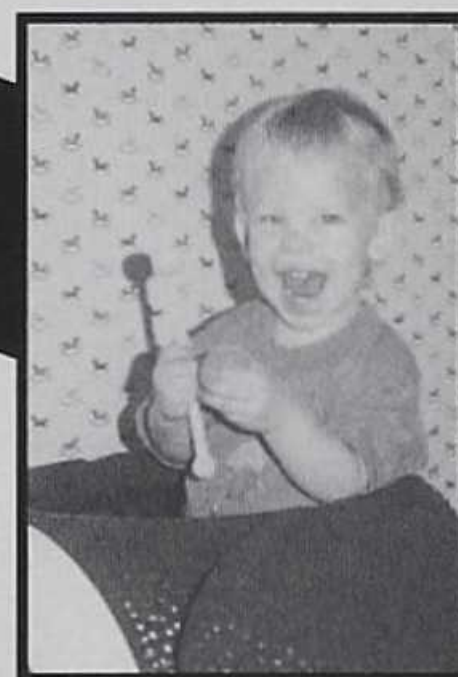

WE LOVE YOU!!!! Mom, Dad, Chandler & Allie

CARRY ON AS WE WOULD, SON.
LAY YOUR PROBLEMS DOWN TO REST.
PUT ALL BAD TIMES BEHIND YOU AND STRIVE TO BE YOUR BEST.

CARRY ON WITH CONFIDENCE;
YOUR HANDS NOW HOLD THE REINS.
DON'T THINK YOUR TALENTS WON'T COMPARE
FOR OUR BLOOD RUNS THROUGH YOUR VEINS.

CARRY ON WITH HONESTY;
YOU KNOW WHAT'S RIGHT AND FAIR.
JUST CALL ON US WHEN PROBLEMS STRIKE;
YOU KNOW WE WILL BE THERE.

CARRY ON THE DREAMS, MY SON.
LET YOUR CONSCIENCE BE YOUR GUIDE.
REMEMBER WHEN YOU FEEL ALONE,
WE WILL BE STANDING BY YOUR SIDE.

*Congratulations
Class of 2007!*

My Son

You were taken from us
Too early my son
The news is sinking in
For now we are stunned
It happened so quickly
On that fateful night
The Lord chose to take you
You went into the light
Loving you was easy
Losing you is hard
In our hearts you'll always be
Under close watch and Guard
Your memories we'll share
To help ease the pain
Your voice will never leave us
Our love for you remains
Charming, trustworthy, and kind
We were blessed with a great son
We raised an amazing young man
Anything you wanted, you could have done
We will always love you with all of our hearts
And we know one happy day we'll meet again
Until then baby, we will remember the good times
And know you're somewhere better wearing your beautiful grin

[meta MORPH osis

As we come to the end of another year, we look back and see the metamorphosis that we have all gone through this past year. We have changed from little fish to experienced high school students, from driver's permits to licenses, from juniors to seniors, and from seniors to Kennedale High School Alumni. We have successfully maneuvered around the construction workers and their vehicles, while avoiding the taped off areas claiming caution. We accepted the new dress code of polos and khakis, which was a big step for all of us. Through the year we have gotten to know the many new teachers, who at the beginning of the year were complete mysteries to us. We have faced and overcome the challenges that a new athletic district brought us, and we have come out on top of the competition. Throughout the year our lives have become intertwined with the lives of the other students around us. We have grown closer and have shared some remarkable events with our peers. We came together to help each other cope with the tragic loss of a fellow student. The memories we have gathered from this year will stay with us forever, despite the numerous transformations that we will face in the coming future. Our lives have been touched, our paths may have been altered by the things we have seen or participated in this year as Wildcats. We have all been changed in some way- no one has been left unaffected. We may have gotten a different hair style, dressed in new clothes, fallen in love with someone new, or we may have found ourselves by walking through those high school halls. For better or for worse, we have made it through the year. Next year will bring its own opportunities and its own challenges for all of us Wildcats to take on. New students will come, and old ones will move on. This year, however, won't be forgotten, for we have completed (at least one part) of our metamorphosis.

“It was a truly unique, wonderful, and exhausting year. I cannot wait for next year!”

- Jim Voronin, Vice Principal

Specifications

The 2007 Wildcat Track Yearbook, volume 57, was produced using Adobe InDesign CS2. The 8.5" x 11" book contains 11 signatures and was printed on eighty pound enamel paper. The yellow to blue gradient on the cover symbolizes a metamorphosis and the green in the middle represents our school pride. The 2007 Wildcat Track was sold for $50. The yearbook was produced with funds generated from book sales, business advertisements, and senior advertisements. Four-hundred and twenty-five yearbooks were printed to sell.

Special Thanks

Thank you so much to Tammy Hollier, Janey Garrison, and all those at Taylor Publishing who helped us create another remarkable yearbook. Thank you to the local businesses and parents who purchased advertisements. A huge thanks to Glamourcraft Studios for being such a joy to work with again this year and for taking great pictures. Thank you to the faculty and staff at Kennedale for their patience and cooperation with our disruptions throughout the year. And finally, thank you to the yearbook staff for all their hard work!
